COURT'S RULING JOLTS DEFENSE OF BOSS HINES

Tilt Over Testimony Won by Dewey.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Judge Charles C. Nott Jr. announced today at the retrial of Tammany Leader James J. Hines that he would not be bound by rulings made during the first trial of the Democratic boss.

Judge Charles C. Nott Jr.

Then he permitted District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey to go ahead with testimony in the chronological order of the conspiracy in which Hines is accused of selling political protection for the policy racket under the late Dutch Schultz, gang leader.

Ruling Contrasts With Pecora's.

The ruling was in contrast with one by Judge Ferdinand Pecora, who presided at the first trial last fall and threw out the case on a technicality.

Judge Pecora is a former Tammany assistant district attorney and an important figure in the Roosevelt-Farley machine. Judge Nott, who is 69 years old, is a Republican and has been on the bench since 1914, when he was elected after serving with distinction as assistant district attorney of New York county. He was re-elected in 1928 for another fourteen year term.

His ruling today was based on a judge's discretion to permit introduction of testimony establishing the crime at issue upon the prosecutor's assurance that the defendant subsequently will be connected with the evidence.

Forced to Revise Plan.

At the first trial Pecora refused to permit Dewey to proceed in this manner, ruling that the prosecutor had to begin with testimony linking Hines with the policy racket. Dewey thus was forced to revise his plans, which had called for orderly presentation of evidence of the conspiracy with Hines entering into the evidence at the time when he was alleged to have become associated with the racket.

Bowing to the ruling at the first trial, Dewey called George Weinberg, Schultz gangster and star witness. Weinberg told of a gang conference at which Hines agreed to fix judges and the police to permit the racket to be operated without interference. Then Weinberg left the stand and Dewey began building up the story of the conspiracy from its start.

Defense Seeks Blockade.

Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief of the defense counsel, tried to force Dewey into the same position today when the state called its first witness, but Judge Nott overruled his plea.

"I don't consider myself bound by rulings of the other court," said Judge Nott. "You can prove a conspiracy only one step at a time. We are not going to put the cart in front of the horse."

Two witnesses laid the groundwork of Dewey's case. One of them, Camille Monsanto, a former policy game worker, testified that he and twenty-five others had been arrested in policy game raids and had been freed in wholesale fashion by Magistrate Francis J. Erwin, who now is dead. The state contends that Hines effected the release.

The other witness, Wilfred Brunder, a former policy king, described the practical workings of the policy game.

DRIVES ACROSS 2 TRESTLES WITH TRAIN ON HEELS

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Richard Ebenschweiger drove into a dead end street today and then turned down a railway track, hoping to find a grade crossing. Instead of a crossing he found two high trestles. He crossed them just ahead of a fast passenger train, although three tires went flat from impact with the ties. Just as the train was catching up with him he turned from the rails unscathed and greeted pursuing policemen with a smile. He was charged with trespassing.

SENATORS JOIN HOUSE IN DRIVE FOR ECONOMY

Approve 150 Million Slash, 47 to 46.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt suffered a major defeat in the senate today, one that many senators believe marks the end of third term ambitions. The senate refused to restore a 150 million cut in a deficiency relief appropriation bill made by the house. The President had demanded that the house action be reversed.

A coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats defeated the administration by a vote of 47 to 46. The senate then adopted various committee amendments and adjourned until tomorrow for a final vote.

The crucial vote came on an administration amendment, offered by Senator Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.], to increase the appropriation to finance the WPA until the end of the fiscal year, July 1, from 725 million dollars, as voted by the house, to 875 million dollars, as demanded by President Roosevelt. There are 3 million WPA enrollees.

Precedent for Economy.

Economy minded Democrats and Republicans hailed the senate action as a significant victory on principle, since it establishes a precedent for future economy efforts and a curtailment of federal deficit spending.

Having previously learned that it could not control the house, the administration received the same lesson in the senate today. It was the administration's first real test of strength in the senate since the new congress convened, and every conceivable kind of pressure was brought to bear to whip senators into line.

Pressure Groups Active.

The administration lobby lavishly dangled projects and patronage in the corridors and cloak rooms of the senate. It was aided by the United States conference of mayors, the 35,000 administrative employés of the WPA, the Workers' Alliance, a communist dominated organization of relievers, the C. I. O. and its political adjunct, Labor's Nonpartisan league, and various other pressure groups.

The galleries were jammed when the roll was called at 3 o'clock. The vote progressed neck and neck until the end of the roll call. There was a dramatic suspense until the clerks completed their tally and Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], president pro tempore, announced the result.

Twenty-six Democrats for Cut.

Twenty-six Democrats, twenty Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite, Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, voted against the increase. Voting for it were forty-one Democrats, two Republicans—William E. Borah of Idaho and Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota—and three radicals, Ernest Lundeen of Minnesota, George W. Norris of Nebraska, and Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

Scott Lucas, the new Illinois senator, a Democrat, surprised the New Dealers by voting "no." A few hours before the vote they had confidently counted upon him. Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] voted "yes."

Result Stuns Barkley.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who had announced and apparently felt assured that the administration would win by three or four votes, appeared to be stunned by the result. Senators Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.], and Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], the triumvirate who led the opposition forces, were jubilant.

The administration forces were deprived of the opportunity of making a final appeal under a unanimous consent agreement which they had proposed. The time before 3 o'clock was to be divided equally between the two sides. Senator Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] used the hour and a half allotted to the administration with a tirade on money, gold and silver.

Closing for the appropriations committee, which had sustained the house cut, Senator Adams said the reduction would be welcomed by the country as an indication that congress finally intended to curb spending.

MAYBE BENITO WAS PLAYING FOR KEEPS

The Sergeant Puts It Down in His Big Book

Leaves from a night police reporter's notebook:

Maurice Raymond—He went into a tavern at 7351 North Keeler avenue one day last June. A stranger bit one of his fingers so thoroughly an amputation was necessary. Yesterday Mr. Raymond, an Aurora coal dealer, sued for $25,000 damages. Defendants are Dr. Lewis V. Kogut, the alleged biter, and the tavern owners, Alfred F. Richter and his wife, Pauline.

Patrick O'Boyle—He is 19 years old, 6 feet 5 inches tall. A slot machine was found in his possession. He told Police Sergeant Wilbur Davis he stole it from Edward Hoffherr's grocery at 6346 Greenview avenue. Hoffherr said it was against the law to have a slot machine and it wasn't his. Puzzled, police weren't sure why they were holding Patrick.

Herman Rohder—Herman, now 22, left an orphanage 5 years ago. Since then he has lived mostly in CCC camps. There was one interlude. He told the Summerdale police about that yesterday. "I was a stickup man in December, 1937," he said. "Pulled four jobs and got about $50. Then I traveled. Early this week I went to see my brother, who is still in the orphanage. Then I went to a church and prayed, and the Lord showed me it was my duty to confess and make good." The police will take him to court to find the road back.

John Kurlinsky—He parked his car on North avenue. While he was away, thieves came and stole a case of shoes. The shoes were samples, and all fifty were for the left foot.

Mrs. Catherine Malcomb—She told police: "My husband Henry brought me here from our old home in Birmingham, Ala. When we got downtown he gave me six cents, put me out of the car and said he guessed we'd separate." The police turned Mrs. Malcomb, who is 16 years old, over to the Travelers' Aid society.

Jack Strobbe—He is a salesman for a Michigan City Indian novelty company. While he attended the sports show in the International amphitheater thieves broke into his parked car and trailer and stole $300 worth of Indian head bands, bracelets, and rabbit's foot charms. Strobbe telephoned police because that was quicker than a smoke signal.

TWO HUSKY LADS OPEN UP A BABY TENDING SERVICE

Belleville, N. J., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Two husky high school football guards have opened a baby tending service. They will mind any child from 1 day to 10 years old. The service includes diaper changing.

For about a year the two seniors, Robert Reeves and Robert Ward, both 16 years old, supplied the service, for young parents who wanted to go to the movies. They did it free. Now however, they have decided to make something of the business. They charge 50 cents for the four hours preceding midnight and 25 cents an hour after that.

While minding the babies they study. They will be graduated in June. Asked whether he didn't believe that tending babies was a girl's job, Reeves snorted: "Girls are afraid of the dark."

Rudolph Meets a Pair of Big Money Makers

Rudolph Fischman.

"I can show you how to make money," said the stranger. "Make one dollar bills grow into fifties. Come up to my apartment at 4121 Sheridan road." Fischman went.

"My name's Bergoff," he said his host told him. "Meet Mr. Ginsberg. He has a money making machine."

Ginsberg waved them into a darkened room.

Money Makers Lack Dough.

"This is confidential," said Ginsberg. "How much business do you do a year?"

"My three brothers and I have five food shops," Fischman told him. "We take in a million and a half a year."

Ginsberg beamed. "I will show you how to make money," he said. "Ah, it we only had two $1 bills."

Fischman handed him two. Ginsberg dropped them into a solution. He put them between two blotters to dry. He ran a rubber roller over them.

"Now!" said Ginsberg, turning the lights lower. He raised two blotters, disclosing two $50 bills. "Examine them," he commanded, handing Fischman a great magnifying glass. "Take them to your bank. Deposit them. If they pass, return with $10,000, and we make you our partner."

Gives 'Em Back the Makings.

Fischman departed. That was Jan. 20. Several days later Ginsberg and Bergoff came to his store.

"We need our two $50 bills now," said Ginsberg. "I got scared and threw them in the furnace," Fischman replied. "Here are two $1 bills. Take them and make yourself a couple more fifties."

Fischman telephoned Detective Sergeants John Griffith and John Warren. They arrested Ginsberg and Bergoff in their apartment. Ginsberg, they said, is really Frank Elsman, and Bergoff is Otto Page. Ginsberg, the detectives said, is an ex-convict who was sent to prison for money making machine swindles.

Fischman was waiting for the pair in the detective bureau.

"Give us back our $100," said Ginsberg, "or we sue."

King May Get New Crown for Canadian Visit

BY DAVID DARRAH.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Purchase of a new crown for King George VI. for use in connection with his royal visit to Canada this spring was suggested in England today. It would be a special Canadian or dominions crown and would be added to the collection of crowns, which the king already has for special occasions.

The visit of the king and Queen Elizabeth to Canada will be ceremonial as well as a display of the real machinery and function of kingship on the American continent. If King George adjourns the Canadian parliament, as now suggested, it will be the first time that an actual crowned monarch has performed the function of government on the American continent since the days when Brazil had a Portuguese emperor.

Proper Crown Needed.

To adjourn the Canadian parliament, King George must be regally robed and have the proper crown, according to court circles here. Although there is a special crown for King George to wear in his capacity as emperor of India, there is none for him to wear as king of the several dominions.

By tradition, the crown of England never leaves the shores of England. An Indian crown cannot be worn in Canada any more than a bowler at the opera. As a result a new Canadian or dominion crown is necessary unless a precedent is created by allowing the English crown to go to Canada.

A new crown would cost a lot of money, for royal crowns, besides being made of gold, are studded with precious stones. The imperial crown which King George wears in the house of lords is distinct from the one he wore at the coronation. The coronation crown is the most valuable of the collection and is kept under guard in the tower of London.

Valued at $25,000,000.

The entire set of crown jewels, which consists of twenty-six pieces including five crowns, swords of state, orbs, and other gadgets, is valued at $25,000,000.

The suggestion for a new Canadian crown was made when an address in Toronto, Ont., Canada, by Sir Gerald Campbell, British high commissioner, was emphasized in today's newspapers. He announced that if some great cataclysm occurred the British empire would move its general headquarters from London to Canada.

King George today gave his permission to hang the painting of his coronation in the British pavilion at the New York World's Fair. The painting, done by Frank Salisbury, was the gift of the dominions' government.

FRENCH INSPECT DATA ON ORDER OF PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—The senate military affairs committee learned at a secret session today that President Roosevelt personally directed that permission be given for a French air mission to inspect an experimental bombing plane which embodied military and technical secrets and was constructed for war department competition.

Ambassador Bullitt.

The war department previously had refused to grant permission for the French mission to inspect the plane, said to have been the finest light bomber in the world. The plane, constructed by the Douglas Aircraft corporation, crashed at Los Angeles last Monday with Capt. Paul Chemidlin, a representative of the French air ministry, aboard. The Frenchman was injured and John Cable, the test pilot, was killed.

Two Secretaries Clash.

At today's session of the military affairs committee, attended by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, and other officials from the treasury and war departments, it became known that William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, was the man who aided the French air mission by enlisting the intervention of Secretary Morgenthau and President Roosevelt. A clash which Bullitt's demand on behalf of France precipitated between the war and treasury secretaries was renewed at the stormy, closed session of the military affairs committee.

Members of the committee said later that a little encouragemet from the senators would have brought the two cabinet officers to blows. Their principal dispute concerned the capacity of American aircraft manufacturers to fill huge orders for France and England while preparing at the same time to accommodate the airplane building program contemplated by President Roosevelt's national defense proposals.

Testimony Contradicts President.

In this respect Secretary Woodring's testimony flatly contradicted what President Roosevelt, at his press conference two hours earlier, had told newspaper men. The President said it was a good business proposition to build airplanes for France because most of the factories in this country were idle. He said that six of the major companies were practically closed, while one of the largest engine companies had laid off 1,500 men.

When Secretary Morgenthau took this position before the senate military affairs committee, Secretary Woodring vehemently disputed his contentions, saying the factories were not capable of filling foreign orders on hand and getting ready at the same time for the vast amount of work that this country's armament program will demand of them.

Questioned by Senators.

Senators Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], and several other committee members sharply questioned the treasury and war department officials concerning the disclosure of military secrets to a foreign power. They intend to go further into the matter at another secret session tomorrow with Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staf of the army.

There was much speculation among the senators on the causes of the acciden. at Los Angeles. Some senators were inclined to blame it on the unscheduled tests made for the benefit of the French government's agent.

It was reported that at the renewed inquiry the senators will seek to learn just what demands were made by Capt. Chemidlin, in the name of the French mission, and whether the knowledge of presidential interest in the matter and the possibility of more big French contracts led to premature tests and contributed to the tragic death of Pilot Cable.

The senatorial interest has been increased by the fact that Douglas Aircraft officials will make no comment on the cause of the crash or the reason for Chemidlin's presence on the ship.

Seek to Reveal Policies.

Senators Clark and Nye announced that at a later date they will demand that a transcript of the hearings be made public so the country will know just how far the Roosevelt administration is going in its efforts to aid the French and British rearmament program while imposing a "moral" embargo through the state department on airplane shipments to Japan and other aggressor nations.

From the company viewpoint the irony of the tragedy lies in the fact that although the corporation did land an order for sixty planes to be delivered to France by Aug. 1, the great bomber has been destroyed and cannot be entered in the American war department's competition for which it was designed.

Army officials point out that if the bomber had been entered and had been accepted by the American government no foreign power could have inspected it or have purchased planes like it for a year. The law forbids inspection or purchase of accepted planes within that period.

See Lineup with France.

The ultimate question, the senators declare, is whether the administration emphasis on aerial armament and the speeding up of production facilities is really a smoke screen for the aerial rearmament of France and England against the threat of Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany.

One member of the military affairs committee referred to the explosive situation in Europe as a result of the fall of Barcelona to the Spanish insurgents and said that President Roosevelt's action seemed "definitly to line us up with the French." Territorial demands by Premier Mussolini of Italy as a result of the victory in Spain may precipitate a general European war, this senator declared.

As told by members of the military affairs committee, the story of the French mission and the experimental bomber that crashed is briefly as follows:

Ambassador Bullitt was in this country a few weeks ago reporting on the danger of war in Europe and the utter unpreparedness of France. He went to the war department and requested permission for the French mission to have access to the latest type American military planes, particularly the Douglas light bomber, just completed on the Pacific coast and awaiting entry in the forthcoming spring competition with other experimental planes for war department use.

Since the plane incorporated military secrets, developed at great expense to the taxpayers, including a bomb sight said to be the best in the world, a new radio development and a new altimeter, the war department refused Bullitt's request. Regulations of the air corps do not permit access by a foreign power to an experimental plane.

President Writes Letters.

Bullitt went from the war department to the White House and interested President Roosevelt in the French mission. Then he went to the treasury department and interested Secretary Morgenthau. Both Bullitt and Morgenthau put pressure on the President, who finally wrote letters to the war, the navy, and the treasury departments, directing that the permission requested by Bullitt be granted.

Secretary Woodring had no alternative but to issue the order, and it was issued in the name of Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps. It authorized the French to inspect not only the experimental bomber but its secret military and technical improvements.

It was not definitly established whether the new bomb sight was on the plane when the French agent flew in it, and members of the committee received the impression that it was not. Other secret facilities, however, were on the plane.

France already has ordered 100 Curtiss pursuit planes and the mission now in this country intends to buy at least 600 and perhaps 1,000 other planes at a total cost of $65,000,000.

As the meeting of the military affairs committee broke up, Morgenthau, quite red in the face, called Chairman Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.] aside and attempted to put a gag on the committee.

Concerned About Publicity.

"None of this is going out, is it?" asked Morgenthau. Chairman Sheppard assured him that nothing would get out.

Sheppard then passed an embarrassing half hour with the press. He referred to Capt. Sydney Kraus, one of the witnesses, as a retired naval officer, now with the treasury procurement division. Herbert Gaston, Morgenthau's public relations assistant, only made things worse when he tried to help Senator Sheppard.

"Capt. Kraus is not retired but in active service," Gaston said. "He is not with procurement division, but merely assigned to coöperate in this particular project."

When newspaper men demanded to know what the "project" was, Senator Sheppard could say only that it related to the purchase of planes by the French mission.

Tells of Treasury's Interest.

"The treasury is interested because the procurement division assists the army and navy in purchasing planes," said Senator Sheppard.

"Is it a procurement division for the French government, also?" Senator Sheppard was asked. He said he didn't know.

At his press conference, President Roosevelt airily dismissed the subject by saying it was quite an ordinary thing for France, needing planes, to purchase them from American manufacturers. He said the Douglas bomber had not been accepted by this government, the manufacturer had a right to sell it to a foreign power, and the war and treasury departments had no objection.

ROOSEVELT ASKS 50 MILLIONS FOR NEW WAR PLANES

Urges Immediate Start on Defense Program.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt today asked congress to make 50 million dollars available immediately for purchasing and equipping 565 new combat planes for the army.

Map locates Kaneohe bay, Sitka, and Kodiak.

The fund would be used to start on the 552 million dollar defense expansion program which the President has sent to Capitol hill. His request today was in a letter to Speaker William B. Bankhead.

Mr. Roosevelt's plea was in line with the administration's emphasis on speed in building up the country's air power. Funds for the balance of the expansion program, if it is approved by congress, would not be made available until July 1.

Urges 46 Million for Ships.

The President proposed the expenditure of $46,442,829 for purchase of the planes and their accessories, $1,490,071 for radio equipment to be obtained by the signal corps, and $2,067,100 for plane armament to be bought by the ordnance department.

The President suggested that the 50 millions be made available immediately to take up the present lag in airplane construction. The sum would be deducted from the 300 million dollar air development plan he proposed for the army.

Army officials said that the 50 million dollars would not be spent before June 1, but that the money would get the airplane program under way. The President's request provided that the sum continue to be available after the close of the present fiscal year June 30.

Admiral Tells of Plans.

At the time the President's letter was received, Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, was informing the house naval affairs committee that the navy plans to station approximately 400 planes permanently at bases in the Pacific defense area.

Admiral Cook told the committee that passage of the Vinson air and naval base bill would provide permanent bases for 588 planes. Of these approximately 400 would be on Pacific islands, from Guam to Alaska.

The admiral declared that Kanoehe Bay in the Hawaiian Islands is the natural center of all seaplane operations in the mid-Pacific and because of its vital importance sixty planes would be based in its waters. He also said the Kodiak and Sitka bases, which would be allotted twenty-four and twelve, planes, respectively, are important.

He gave no figures for the island of Guam, where proposed fortification has aroused the Japanese government. He said that no planes were to be based at Wake Island, which is within short flight distance of the heavily fortified Japanese mandate islands.

LARGEST FLYING BOAT WITH SEATS FOR 74 ON FIRST TEST TRIP

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—The world's largest flying boats, the new 74 passenger Boeing Clipper, cruised from Seattle to Tongue Point near Astoria, Ore., today on the first leg of a flight that will take it to the orient and back. The flight was said to have been uneventful.

Aboard the super ship were eighteen men, crews from both the Boeing Aircraft corporation, the builder, and Pan American Airways, the new owner. A check for $500,000, one of the largest single checks ever paid for an airplane, was turned over to Boeing recently when the sale was completed.

The 41 ton airship has been approved by the civil aviation authority as airworthy, but it must complete 100 hours of service operation before it can be put into service on any air route. This plane and five others being built for Pan American by the Boeing company will be used in both trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific service.

Twenty-seven of the cadets are from Illinois. Eleven are Chicagoans: Lee Arnold, 4939 North Whipple street; Jack A. Bankman, 7349 N. Seeley street; Nicholas L. Gavares, 4714 North Talman avenue; Clinton R. Hummer, 6019 Harper avenue; James Laris, 5036 West 63d street; George E. Lindmark Jr., 8244 Harper avenue; William M. Mahler, 8019 Langley avenue; Glen W. Martin, 4031 Kenmore avenue; Carl R. Peterson, 6545 South Union avenue; Ralph B. Priestley, 1520 East 72d place, and John F. Smith, 2705 South Avers avenue.

PRINTER COLLAPSES; DIES IN HOME.

Walter S. Covey, 63 years old, a printer, collapsed and died, apparently of a heart attack, in his home at 1110 South Highland avenue, Oak Park, last night.

AIRWAYS STUDY PERIL OF SHARKS IN SEA CRASHES

Aquarists Confirm Fears of Cavalier Survivors.

Airways officials yesterday were considering the possibility that sharks may present a definite peril to passengers aboard air liners that are forced down in southern waters or in the gulf stream. Their concern grew out of stories told by survivors from the flying boat Cavalier that sank last Saturday 300 miles east of Cape May, N. J.

During the ten hours the five women and five men clung to life belts their greatest fear was of sharks, said Radio Officer Patrick Chapman. He believed he saw one, attracted, he thought, by the bodies of three persons who died of injuries or drowned after the ship was forced down.

Afraid of Living Persons.

These bodies were the real source of danger, if there were sharks about, since the species that might have been in that vicinity can be frightened away by living persons, experts declared yesterday. A wounded or disabled person, however, would be preyed upon, it was said.

At intervals during the long wait for rescue Chapman and First Officer Neil Richardson swam around the Cavalier's surviving passengers, churning up the water as a warning to any lurking attackers. These efforts may have saved the others. Two eminent American aquarists said yesterday it is quite possible this was the case.

The two are Dr. W. H. Chute, director of the Shedd aquarium here, and Dr. Christopher W. Coates, director of the New York aquarium.

"It would be unusual if sharks should be sighted in the gulf stream as far north as Cape May at this time of year," said Dr. Chute. "But it could happen. Stragglers have been seen off Atlantic City in the summer and the gulf stream is warm all year 'round.

"The man eaters—the great white sharks of the South Seas—would never have been seen that far north, but the tiger sharks of our own tropical waters might wander up."

Follow Stream to Europe.

Dr. Coates considered it quite possible that sharks might have been at the spot where the Cavalier went down, even in January.

"They find the gulf stream a suitable habitat and even follow it to Europe," he said. Asked about the old controversy over the inclination of sharks to attack and devour men, he continued: "They definitly do. The tiger will attack and take off arms and legs. It can be frightened away by splashing the water. The great white shark will attack and devour. Nothing can frighten it away, once it scents a meal."

Other authorities, notably Dr. Charles H. Townsend, director emeritus of the New York aquarium, believe the shark has an amazing instinct that tells it when a swimmer is near death from exhaustion, in difficulty, or has been injured. These are the ones the shark selects as prey, usually at dusk.

Scent of Blood Attracts.

This same instinct enables it to determine when another fish is in difficulty. Most sharks prefer to be harmless scavengers, but the scent of blood in the water will attract them from great distances. [The three Cavalier passengers who sank had been injured by the flying boat's shattering impact with the water.]

Fishermen have observed repeatedly that small fish can swim with safety among sharks under certain circumstances. But if one of the smaller ones is injured, or has been hooked by a fisherman, sharks will fight viciously over its body.

There are specific instances to prove sharks will attack persons if they are disabled. A passenger who fell from a ship in Tampico, Mexico, harbor in 1929 lost a leg. In a boat accident in the harbor of Santiago, Cuba, in 1898, six injured men were killed by the deadly fish.

CHILE EVACUATES QUAKE ZONE TO AVERT EPIDEMIC

Survivors Are Taken Out by Wagon, Truck, Ship.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHILLAN, Chile, Jan. 27.—A mass evacuation of survivors from cities and towns which were stricken in the great earthquake which spread death and ruin in south central Chile Tuesday midnight continued tonight.

The evacuation order was given this morning by President Pedro Aguirre Cedra and his premier and minister of interior, Pedro Alfonso, after a tour of the devastated areas.

The president's decision was taken in an effort to avert an epidemic. The threat of typhoid fever is particularly great. Thousands of bodies still are buried in the débris, with little hope that they can be recovered for days, if at all, and the summer heat makes the danger greater.

Cities to be abandoned shown by heavy type.

Refugees Trek to North.

The first survivors to be evacuated from Chillan [pronounced Cheel-yan, accent on last syllable] were 500 women and children. They were taken north in a procession of trucks, automobiles, and wagons. Arrangements were made to feed and shelter them en route to Santiago. The evacuation will continue as facilities become available. All motor vehicles were placed under military control. The uninjured male survivors in Chillan will remain temporarily under orders of the army to assist in relief work.

The British cruiser Exeter is assisting in the evacuation of refugees from Concepcion, Talcahuano, and other coastal cities. The Exeter reached Talcahuano with food supplies for that port and for nearby Concepcion and started back to Valparaiso immediately with 500 survivors. They were landed in Valparaiso this evening.

Airplanes took children in urgent need of medical attention to Santiago.

Observers in the quake area agree that previous figures, official and otherwise, of the casualties in this great disaster have been underestimated. It is impossible to set an accurate figure. Many thousands are known to be dead, and it is agreed that many hundreds of bodies never will be recovered from the shambles.

Many Children Are Victims.

The only buildings which partially resisted the quake were those reinforced with concrete, but these amounted to less than one per cent of the total structures in the area. A majority of dwellings were of timber and adobe, and these collapsed, killing outright or entombing the occupants. It is estimated that in some centers one-third of the children and approximately an equal percentage of the women perished.

After an automobile tour of more than twenty towns in the southern quake region it seems certain that some of these must be permanently eliminated from the map.

This was confirmed by Arturo Natho, secretary to the interior ministry, who said Chillan, Bulnes, Parral, San Carlos, and Cauquenes must be abandoned by the residents. If these five centers are to be rebuilt, he said, the débris must first be removed.

While Chillan was razed to the ground, Concepcion appears more like a bombarded city. The central business section is a scene of desolation. A few of the main office buildings remain standing, but their condition is threatening. The cathedral tower inclines at an angle of forty degrees over the bishop's palace.

Fortunately the main hospital in Concepcion resisted the quake and continues to function in the midst of ruins of other buildings. The dead in Concepcion so far are estimated at approximately 2,000. About 600 bodies have been identified. Concepcion will be partially evacuated, but will not be abandoned.

Train Smothered by Station.

Five cases of looting have been reported in Concepcion. The death penalty was immediately invoked.

A vivid description of the scene in Chillan when the first shock occurred was given by Thomas Sargent, a former British consular officer. Sargent was aboard a train 150 yards from the Chillan station at the time.

"There was a terrific shake and crash," he said. "I jumped from my sleeping berth and ran towards town in the darkness. There were screams all around me. The roof and walls of the station smothered another train standing alongside it.

"Together with other passengers from my train I assisted in rescue work, but operations were difficult in the darkness. Yesterday I witnessed permits for 4,000 burials. I calculate the dead in Chillan alone are at least 10,000. I base this figure on the population of 40,000 and a count of survivors which I witnessed in the central plaza."

The heartrending work of burying the dead in trenches hurriedly dug in the streets—where the streets could be traced in the débris—or in the fissures opened in the earth by the temblors, continued today. The wreckage of the city is dotted with white flags—any white fabric obtainable—to indicate spots where bodies are known to be which have not yet been recovered. Hundreds of these flags are fluttering in the breeze.

Officials on the spot sent new appeals for urgently needed supplies of food, water, medical supplies, doctors and nurses. The naval office in Talcahuano, after receiving the entire supplies of units of the Chilean fleet which arrived there, said this was insufficient. More tents are wanted and radio appeals were sent out for anti-tetanus and anti-gangrene serums.

U. S. Sends Two Army Planes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Two army planes from the Panama canal zone will start tomorrow on a mercy mission to the scene of the Chilean earthquake. Taking George Smith, Canal Zone Red Cross director, and medical supplies, the planes are expected to reach Lima, Peru, tomorrow night and to arrive Sunday in Santiago, Chile.

VON RIBBENTROP ENDS HIS VISIT TO POLAND; MISSION CALLED FLOP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 27.—Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, left Warsaw today after three days of discussions with Foreign Minister Josef Beck and other Polish officials. Von Ribbentrop told correspondents he was pleased with his visit, but admitted some questions remained unsettled.

An official statement said the discussions were friendly and frank, and that there was harmony of views on questions concerning European appeasement.

Polish sources, however, declared Von Ribbentrop's visit was a flop. The Nazi foreign minister, they said, asked Beck to commit Poland to neutrality should Germany become involved in complications in connection with a renewed demand for colonies. Beck is reported to have refused on grounds that weakening of Poland's military alliances with France and Rumania would have a serious reaction in Poland.

SPANISH REBELS CAPTURE POWER CENTER; PUSH ON

Franco's Advance Within 70 Miles of France.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], Jan. 27.—(AP)—Spanish insurgent armies today captured Badalona, only seventy miles air line from the French frontier, after pushing north from captured Barcelona.

Refugees streaming into Caldetas, on the Mediterranean coast above Barcelona, said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's advance guards had reached Mataro, twenty miles north of the captured government capital and only five miles from Caldetas.

Officers aboard the French destroyer Le Fortune, which arrived at Port Vendres, France, from Caldetas, said Franco's columns were sweeping up the coast virtually without opposition.

Converge on Granollers.

While an insurgent force on the coast pressed a campaign to wipe out the last government resistance in northeast Spain, other troops converged on the city of Granollers.

Both Badalona and Granollers have been important to the government's defenses in its shrinking Catalonian territory. Badalona was a source of the government's electric power and the center of many of its war industries. Granollers straddles the line of the government's retreat.

[Insurgent reports indicated Franco's troops were occupying Masnou and Premia de Mar, between Badalona and Mataro. Another force captured Sabadell, highway junction nine miles northwest of Badalona, the rebels asserted, and continued northward to take Mollet. This force and another operating from Mataro were reported by the rebels to have pushed remnants of the government troops back on a broad front more than twelve miles from Barcelona.]

British Tanker Sunk.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Lloyds reported tonight that the British tanker Miocene, owned by the Lotco Shipping company of London, had been sunk at Barcelona. No details were given. The 2,153 ton vessel was built at Cleveland, O., by the American Shipbuilding company.

LAUD GROUND TROOPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Doughboys, backed by artillery, dealt the knock out blows to Barcelona. This is the opinion of several military experts here tonight, who have been analyzing the day to day movements of Gen. Francisco Franco's victorious rebel army.

In the offensive, which opened on Dec. 23, Franco's army of 300,000 men advanced eighty miles, much of it over difficult terrain, to the outskirts of Barcelona in thirty-four days. On the thirty-fifth day the rebels entered the capital of the Spanish loyalists with little or no opposition.

Loyalists Use Up Reserves.

While French experts are free to admit that the constant bombing of the loyalist trenches and of the cities behind the lines by Franco's Italian and German air force tended to "soften" the defense and weaken morale behind the lines, they declare the real punches were delivered by Franco's artillery, tanks and infantry. He had plenty of big guns and tanks and, most important of all, he had the infantry reserves for a series of maneuvers. With these reserves he delivered one smashing attack after another.

In contrast the loyalists had used up their reserves and therefore were unable to counterattack.

Gen. Juan Yague's Moroccans, marching twenty miles in a day, occupied the airport south of Barcelona and pushed on to Montjuich. From that height, Yague's artillery was able to dominate the port section of Barcelona. Meanwhile other columns of Navarrese and Italian troops closed in on the city from the west and northwest. Once the circle was complete, the capture of Barcelona became only a matter of hours.

Rebel Gains Continue

While a new municipal government took control in captured Barcelona, troops of Gen. Francisco Franco yesterday pushed on northward near the Catalonian coast. The cities of Badalona, Mataro, and Sabadell fell to the rebels, who pressed on toward Granollers. Heavy line on the map shows the battle front after yesterday's rapid gains.

CROWDS STORM RATION CENTERS IN BARCELONA

Rebels Hand Out Food; New Regime Begins.

BARCELONA, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Thousands of Barcelona's war-weary and hungry population feasted tonight on bread and milk as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's rebel trucks brought food to replenish the city's empty cupboards.

A huge task faced the insurgent conquerers of desolate Barcelona. They must feed an estimated 1,500,000 persons who have been living on meager rations.

Crowds surged against the iron doors of supply centers this noon while workers rationed out bread, condensed milk, and some meat. Lines of men, women, and children waited with pans, plates, and sacks to be handed what, for many, was the first substantial meal in weeks.

Lines Are Seven Blocks Long.

Some of the lines were seven blocks long. They were policed by members of a special insurgent corps of 18,000 men which swung into action to restore discipline.

The blue uniformed corps of women workers, Franco's Auxilio Social, were distributing the food twice daily, first between noon and 1 p. m. and again between 6 and 7 p. m.

Rebels asserted the food problem was somewhat simplified by crowds which broke open stores of supplies hidden by the retreating government. Enough was found, they said, to feed several thousand persons. Insurgent officers said the crowds learned of the caché a few hours before the city was occupied and seized it.

Hotels Begin Serving.

Although grocery and other food stores still were closed and there was not one open restaurant, hotels began serving simple meals.

At Moncada, five miles north of Barcelona, the insurgents said they seized 600 truckloads of government supplies. Another 800 trucks were taken just outside of Barcelona. Additional quantities of stores were found still unpacked on wharves in Barcelona's port, it was announced.

The rebels occupied the headquarters of the autonomous government of Catalonia and the magnificent building along the Avenida Gracia where government Premier Juan Negrin had headquarters until his flight. Franco left municipal rule to his military governor, Gen. Eladio Alvarez Arenas.

LOYALISTS' WILL TO FIGHT GREATER NOW, ENVOY SAYS

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Spanish government embassy today interpreted the fall of Barcelona as strengthening rather than weakening the Spanish government's determination to resist the rebels.

An official statement asserted that the government of Premier Juan Negrin still controled:

FIRST—An army of approximately 700,000 men.

SECOND—A navy of three cruisers, thirteen destroyers, seven submarines, five torpedo boats and two gunboats, all "functioning in perfect order."

THIRD—The Island of Minorca, in the Mediterranean with a naval base superior to that on nearby Mallorca Island, which the rebels hold.

FOURTH—Eleven of Spain's provincial capitals.

FIFTH—Five hundred miles of coastline with the ports of Almeria, Alicante, Valencia, and a first class naval base at Cartagena.

SIXTH—A population of more than 10,000,000, including 3,000,000 refugees. [A 1930 census gave the total population of Spain as 23,563,000.]

BRITISH PREMIER PLANS SHAKEUP OF HIS CABINET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, it was disclosed tonight, is planning to revamp the cabinet before parliament reassembles Tuesday. The changes, which will be announced officially probably on Sunday, will involve the transfer of W. S. Morrison, minister of agriculture and fisheries, and Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coördination of defense, to new posts.

Inskip or Morrison will succeed Malcolm MacDonald as secretary of dominions, it is reported. This would leave MacDonald the colonial ministry and allow him to concentrate all his energies on handling the Palestine situation.

Frank Medlicott, Liberal National candidate and choice of Prime Minister Chamberlain, was elected to parliament in the East Norfolk by-election. He defeated N. R. Tillett, his Labor opponent, by a vote of 18,257 to 10,785.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT MAY INCREASE TERM OF MILITARY SERVICE

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Informed political circles tonight said the French cabinet tomorrow would discuss a proposal to add three months to the two year term of obligatory military service. The calling of some special army reservists to the colors also will be considered, these sources asserted.

Both projects are said to have been the result of a study by the war ministry of the recent calling up of reservists in Italy.

The war ministry has revised the military mobilization system so it could speed up wartime troop concentrations. Special attention has been given, informed sources said, to mobilization plans for the Italian and Spanish borders. If Italian troops are used by the Spanish rebels in their northward drive in Catalonia, bringing them close to the French border, a grave situation might arise.

BRITAIN CREATES JOB TO GET ARMY READY FOR WAR

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Appointment of a director of mobilization to whip Britain's fighting forces into battle trim was announced today.

The London Gazette, official government publication, disclosed that Maj. Gen. H. C. B. Wemyss had been named to the new post. He took over his duties as of Jan. 9. Maj. Gen. Wemyss was assistant adjutant general in the war office from 1935 to 1937 and last year was at the imperial defense college.

War office officials said the appointment marked another step in War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha's scheme for further simplification of the growing, detailed duties of the high command.

Adolf Hitler Congratulates Franco on Rebel Victory

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today congratulated Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel commander in chief on the capture of Barcelona. He telegraphed: "I send you my heartiest congratulations on the brilliant success with which the national Spanish army under your leadership has met in the freeing of Barcelona. I confidently hope an early victorious ending of the war will bring peace to the Spanish people and open a new epoch of happy development for the Spanish nation."

ITALIANS WAR ON FRENCH CONTROL OF MONTE CARLO

Hope to Get Protectorate Over Gaming Capital.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Jan. 27.—The principality of Monaco, midget state on the French Riviera near the Italian border, is the object of an undercover Fascist campaign, French and Monegasque quarters in this city asserted today. The Fascists seek to place Monaco under an Italian protectorate. It is now under a French protectorate.

The campaign is part of the "irredentist" movement which the Italians are trying to create among the Italian minority in the region surrounding the little state, which so long has been Europe's favorite gaming resort.

[The irredentist doctrin began in Italy about 1878, when the Italian Irredentist party was formed. It was pledged to incorporate with Italy those areas surrounding the country which were under foreign rule but which had a majority of Italian residents. These areas were called Italia irredenta, or unredeemed Italy.]

There has been a marked increase in Italian influence in Monaco in past months. This increase has made itself felt in actual expulsions of French citizens from the region by the Monaco government, as well as in hostility to extension of French labor laws to the protectorate.

Gets Glimpse of Its Rôle.

Monaco became conscious of the rôle which it may play in a future European war in the weeks before the September crisis when the number of Italian autoists and other travelers from Italy attained unusual proportions. French authorities were seriously perturbed by the discovery that many of these visitors went into the Alps and along the Mediterranean where new French fortifications are being constructed quietly.

Acting under the terms of the treaty between Monaco and France, the French compelled the principality to expel many Italians suspected of spying but failed to get expulsion orders against its own nationals revoked. It is a frequent complaint of the French residents that Monaco's authorities are under Fascist influence.

Given Pledges By Fascists.

Monaco is in the curious position of a country in which "natives" are in the minority. There are only about 8,000 Monegasques as compared with some 10,000 Italians and an equal number of French.

It is the Italian claim, however, that the majority of the natives have a closer ethnical relationship to the Italians than to the French, and that in the event of a plebiscite they would vote in favor of exchanging the French protectorate for an Italian one.

Italian overtures allegedly have been made behind the back of the ruling prince of Monaco, who spends most of his time in Paris. He is Prince Louis II., now 68 years old.

[France annexed Monaco in 1793 after a long reign by the house of Grimaldi. In 1814 Honore IV. recovered the principality and by the treaty of Vienna in 1815 placed it under the protection of the kingdom of Sardinia, now a part of Italy. In 1861 the Sardinian protectorate was transferred to France.]

Spain's Ex-Rulers Attend Mass to Mark Rebel Victory

ROME, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The former king and queen of Spain, Alfonso and Victoria Eugenia, with other members of the Spanish royal family attended a solemn mass in the Spanish Church of the Virgin of Montserrat today. The service was in celebration of Barcelona's capture by the rebels. Vladimir Ledochowski, superior general of the Jesuits, and Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, Vatican undersecretary of state, attended the service.

MEXICAN PAPER CALLS RAIDS ON JEWS BARBAROUS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Violent anti-Jewish demonstrations in which a Jewish merchant was threatened with lynching last night brought rebukes today from the Mexican press. La Prensa termed them "acts of barbarous Fascism similar to those which converted Germany into a theater of foreboding."

Several Jewish owned stores were stoned after a meeting organized by the Popular Democratic Front at which President Lazaro Cardenas' administration was assailed. Newspapers said some of the anti-Jewish demonstrators attended the meeting.

The gravest incident occurred when about 1,000 persons threatened to lynch Jacob Glantz, manager of the Jewish Welfare society and a director of the Jewish Chamber of Commerce. He was rescued by police.

The crowd then stoned other Jewish shops and the Jewish Chamber of Commerce. Police sent fifty extra guards to the suburban home of Leon Trotzky, Russian bolshevist exile.

SNUB TO ENVOY AGAIN STRAINS FRENCH-JAP TIES

TOKIO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Japanese foreign office today disclosed that French-Japanese relations were further strained by France's rejection of Masayuki Tani as ambassador to Paris.

Japan proposed Tani in November, the foreign office said, but France refused to accept him on the grounds that he erroneously had accused France of aiding China. Tani's statement was said to have been made at a press conference last summer.

The foreign office statement said Japan repeatedly had protested to France against munitions shipments to China.

"It is proper, therefore," the statement asserted, "for Minister Tani to uphold the expressed views of his government. The French government's attitude is a matter which the Japanese government fails to understand."

FRENCH PREPARE TO ANNEX TUNISIA AS A POSSESSION

TUNIS, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Faced with Fascist demands for Tunisia, France has taken the first step toward absorbing this North African protectorate within her wholly-owned possessions.

The Italian press has clamored for equal rights for Italians with Frenchmen in Tunisia on the grounds that Tunisia legally is an independent nation. France fears such rights would be an opening wedge for ultimate Italian domination of this strategic Mediterranean territory.

For the first time since the French protectorate was established in 1881, a French general has been made minister of war in the government of the Bey of Tunis, ruler of the country. He is Gen. Amedee Blanc, commander of France's armies in Tunisia. With him as war minister, all the Bey's forces will be integrated in the military might of the French empire.

ITALY, SPURRED BY REBEL GAINS, HITS PARIS ANEW

Marching Students Cry "Down with France."

ROME, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Italy pressed her anti-French campaign with authoritative press attacks and noisy student demonstrations today following recent Spanish rebel victories in Spain. The Fascist attitude was that the day is nearer, as a result of the fall of Barcelona, when Italy will present a bill to France for payment of colonial claims.

This was a continuation of the campaign started by Fascists several weeks ago for French concessions. The Italians have clamored for Tunisia, French protectorate in North Africa; Djibouti, French Somaliland, and the Island of Corsica.

Authoritative Fascists, commenting on an official French offer to call an international conference on the European situation, made it plain any such conference must be, if Italy is to take part, one in which Italy could better her position in the Mediterranean.

Wants Ruling by "Big 4."

Premier Mussolini's attitude long has been that Britain, France, Germany, and Italy—the "big four" of Munich—should settle Europe's problems.

[The French suggestion of a conference was made by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet in the chamber of deputies yesterday.]

In Rome today a crowd of students, augmented by many Fascists, tried to march upon the French embassy but were turned back by police. The students shouted: "Down with France!"

The crowd had just come from the Piazza Venezia, where their cheers twice had brought Premier Mussolini to the balcony of his apartments to salute them.

Scoffs at Parley.

In Genoa a thousand marching students staged a similar demonstration directed against the French consulate. Here again police turned them back, but they refused to disperse until firemen drenched them with fire hoses.

Of the French proposal for an international conference the newspaper La Tribuna asked whether past experience had not shown the "inanity and uselessness of such initiative."

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND RUSSIA HOLD MYSTERY TALKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, conferred today with Jean Maisky, the soviet Russian ambassador, at the same time that Georges Bonnet, French foreign minister, consulted Jacob Suritz, the Russian envoy to Paris.

No announcement was made concerning the subject under discussion. It was presumed the British and French were sounding out the Russians on negotiations now in progress between Berlin and Moscow. Reports from Berlin tonight said plans to send a delegation to Moscow had broken down at the last minute. Other reports said the German mission already is in Moscow.

Both the French and British are wondering whether the so-called German trade delegation really is going to Moscow on a political mission, the purpose of which would be to secure a Russian promise to stay neutral in any quarrel which Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini might pick in western Europe.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The cabinet council today decided to reduce the number of officers and men in Czecho-Slovakia's army. How many would be dropped was not disclosed. Czecho-Slovaks were told not to be disturbed if they saw German military transports on certain sections of Czecho-Slovak railroads.

ASK LA FOLLETTE IMPEACHMENT IN FIGHT OVER AMLIE

Senator's Stand Assailed in Legislature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—The impeachment of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette was suggested on the floor of the Wisconsin assembly today in a renewed attack on President Roosevelt's appointment of Thomas R. Amlie, lame duck Progressive congressman from this state, to a $10,000 a year job on the interstate commerce commission.

Earlier this week, both the state senate and assembly adopted resolutions assailing Amlie as a communist agitator and demanding that the United States senate refuse to confirm the appointment. Senator La Follette was quoted as saying in Washington that "nothing the Wisconsin legislature does surprises me and it will not alter my stand behind Amlie."

Fitzsimmons Makes Attack.

Rising to the point of personal privilege, because of La Follette's statement, Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons Jr. [D., Fond du Lac], who presented the house resolution denouncing Amlie's record, asserted: "If this is an indication of Senator La Follette's stand the possibility of replacing him before his term expires might well be considered."

"The Wisconsin legislature is three times closer to the people of this state than is Bob La Follette," Fitzsimons continued. "I can't understand how any man who has lived off the public since he was a boy can ignore this legislature. I say to him and to you that a resolution might well be introduced urging the United States senate to impeach a man we are paying $10,000 a year to represent Wisconsin."

Alfonsi Defends Amlie.

Rising to the defense of Amlie, Assemblyman Paul R. Alfonsi [Prog., Pence] assailed the Republican-Democratic coalition in the Wisconsin legislature for deliberately sidetracking a joint resolution urging congress not to reduce President Roosevelt's request for 875 million dollars to continue the WPA program, and then rushing through resolutions assailing Amlie's record and demanding that the President withdraw the appointment.

"I am a Catholic and I am proud of it, but I regret that the religious issue has been brought into this controversy," Alfonsi declared, referring to criticism of Amlie for his expression of sympathy to the loyalist government in Spain. "If there are any virtues in the majority group in this legislature, consistency is not one of them. If a man is not a Republican or a reactionary Democrat, then he immediately is labeled as a communist or a radical."

SENATE GROUP VOTES PUBLIC HEARINGS ON AMLIE'S NOMINATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—The senate's interstate commerce committee voted in closed session today to hold public hearings on the nomination of Thomas R. Amlie of Wisconsin to the interstate commerce commission. Both critics and friends of the nominee were assured of an opportunity to present their views.

A subcommittee of two Republicans and three Democrats was appointed to conduct the hearings, which will begin Feb. 6. Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], a member of the subcommittee, said Amlie would be given a chance to testify.

President Roosevelt's nomination of Amlie to replace Balthasar H. Meyers, a Republican commissioner whose term expired recently, has stirred a storm of protests from both Democrats and Republicans on the ground that the nominee's views are too radical.

REPORT MARSHAL WU TO HEAD JAP REGIME IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who was China's most powerful military leader fifteen years ago, was reported by the Japanese today to have accepted the presidency of a new régime under which the Japanese sponsored governments in conquered China would be united.

Japanese reports from Nanking said Marshal Wu had accepted the post after a conference in Peking of Chinese chieftains of the Peking and Nanking Japanese sponsored governments. The new régime, merging these two puppet governments, would be called the "central China pacification commission."

Japanese reports from Peking said Marshal Wu expressed readiness to end a twelve year retirement from politics "to serve China." The Nanking report said Wu intended to establish headquarters in Kaifeng, Honan province.

OFFICE HOLDERS IN CHINA TOLD TO AVOID FRIVOLITY

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 27—A census of officials' wives has been started in connection with a prohibition of social habits considered frivolous or too expensive for wartime.

Officials will be held responsible for the social activities of their wives. They will be expected to see that they do not indulge in dancing, gambling, drinking or frequenting of public resorts except those devoted to the most wholesome pleasures.

Meanwhile, strict control has been placed on the morals and habits of officials. They are expected to confine themselves to the performance of their daily duties and the simplest out-of-office pleasures involving a minimum of expense. Officials seen too frequently in tea houses will be subject to censure.

Russian Communications Commissar Reported Fired

MOSCOW, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The absence of the signature of Communications Commissar Matvey Berman from an official disciplinary order today gave credence to reports he had been removed from office. Berman was criticized in the Journal of Electricity last month. The disciplinary order, signed by Vice Commissar V. V. Yartsev, held seven executives of the communications commissariat for trial for failure to proceed against lazy workmen.

CHEATING THE STREET

By CALEB

WITHOUT any accompaniment of masks, surfboats, ladders, engines, bronze medals or citations—a life-salvaging business is being carried on systematically and daily at two Chicago addresses, 1534 West Van Buren and 2413 West Jackson, by an institution to which the Chicago of tomorrow will owe some of its finest citizens, in lieu of its most dangerous culprits.

Functioning solely for the guidance of underprivileged boys and girls—"cheating the street," in a word—the Off-the-Street Club was founded in 1900 by John McMurry, and is under the present direction of Auguste Mathieu, whose own career, prior to engaging in the splendid work of character-building, began as an engineer, and later became that of artist and writer. In its two-story, twenty-four-unit structure on Van Buren, with a branch housed rent-free in the recreation building of the Jackson Boulevard Christian Church—gymnasium, libraries, locker-rooms, shower baths, game and study rooms and playground facilities are provided that now reach more than 3,000 boys and girls.

Often enacted here are dramas of youth rehabilitation whose details rival any inventions of fiction. Yet the methodology of the Club, thanks to a beautiful wisdom and understanding in its management, is that of drawing—not driving. Guidance comes disguised; good influence flows through unsuspected channels. Scheduled activities like art, baseball, football, boxing, dancing, wrestling, basketball, woodcarving, dramatics, music, singing, photography, cooking, not only prove constructive antidotes to larceny and shoplifting: they leave in their wake such priceless legacies as honor, courage, clean lives and keen ambitions.

Forms of leadership grouping within the Club's ranks have been interesting developments: a Service Club, Scout Troops, Best Pals' Club, a "Young Flashes" with 500 membership, the "American Eagles" for girls of 13 and over . . . all vigorously enlisted with a volunteer and paid staff to put "Off-the-Street" on the map! "Now a boys' cooking class," smiles Director Mathieu, "has gone over with a 'bang,' and we also have two older boys' and girls' dramatic clubs."

So proceeds, without fanfare, a good-citizenship project whose materials are loving, laughing, learning, law-abiding street cheaters—five to twenty years young! From shadows under the tracks, drab pavements, gloomy alleys and sodden slum yards, Off-the-Street Club—like hundreds of agencies in Chicago and elsewhere—is successfully salvaging today's neglected youth to become the respected manhood and womanhood of tomorrow.

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do

Rub baby's back, chest, and throat with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him deep into bed. What a comfort to know that VapoRub goes to work right away to relieve the misery of his cold without "dosing"—without risk of stomach upsets. And what a comfort to know that long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub will still be working—two ways at once—direct through the skin like a poultice, and direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. You'll find that often by morning the worst of the cold is over. VICKS VAPORUB

SLOT MACHINES WEAR DISGUISE OR GO IN HIDING

But Other Devices Lay in Wait for Suckers.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kewanee, Ill., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Slot machines here are wearing disguises or they have gone into hiding as the result of the state campaign to eliminate them ordered by Acting Gov. John Stelle and Attorney General John E. Cassidy.

Consequently, few of the coin snaring contraptions have been observed in a tour of a dozen counties in the northern part of the state. The brazen, law defying type which give the player an opportunity to put in a coin, pull a lever, and look at a few cherries, plums, or oranges, and a lot of lemons have been buried in cellars.

Nickels Go Into Maw.

Here and there a new variety of gypping mechanism may be found. For example, in Dixon the suckers may put a nickel in a slot machine, pull a plunger, and send a lead ball spinning around an imaginary race course. Sometimes the nickel comes back accompanied by several or many others. A bartender was telling this morning of a patron whose 5 cent "horse" won at odds of 40 to 1.

Along several highways a machine was in operation by which a lead pellet might be propelled forward and then, after a few bounces and bumps, some kind of a score might be registered on a colored glass frame.

But a concealed lever on the right side of the pretty plaything proved to be the trigger which made it into an outlaw gambling device. Pulling this trigger resulted in the spinning of an inner wheel and the lighting of colored spaces. When a certain combination of lights "comes up" the customer is presented with some unknown number of coins.

Barred in Chicago.

These so-called pin ball games are to be found by the hundreds all over the state. They are barred in Chicago by city ordinance. Some of them are actually games. Others are what the trade calls "spitters," because they sometimes spit back coins.

In Rockford the city licenses the pin games, but bans the spitters. Many of both kinds were to be seen on a 300 mile trip of investigation. But during the trip none of the old fashioned kind of slot machines were found.

"What's the matter with that Horner crowd?" asked a Kewanee tavernkeeper. "The machines weren't doing any harm and they were paying our rent."

HEAR FREEDOM APPEALS OF 412 FELONS MONDAY

Applications for parole, filed by 412 inmates of Illinois prisons, will be heard by subcommittees of the state parole board Monday. Of the petitioners, thirty-four were returned to their cells recently as parole violators.

Among those seeking freedom are Albert Ferrari and Tony Mucerino, who held up the rectory of St. Columbanus church at 71st street and Calumet avenue and escaped with $1,000 from the parish safe. Two priests and a housekeeper were terrorized by the robbers, who were caught soon afterward. Ferrari and Mucerino were sentenced in June, 1934, to one year to life in the penitentiary.

Another seeking leniency is Charles Karovich, sentenced to one to twenty years for bombing the home of his sweetheart in January, 1938. Seven women at the Dwight reformatory have requested paroles.

THREE JAILED IN PETER ARNO BLACKMAIL PLOT

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Three men, one of whom Peter Arno, cartoonist, had befriended with gifts of money and clothing, were held in $10,000 bail each today on charges of trying to blackmail Arno by threatening to defame him through faked obscene photographs.

"I want to commend you for having these men arrested," Magistrate Thomas A. Aurelio told Arno in Felony court. He remanded the three to the Tombs prison.

The prisoners described themselves as Paul Wickholm, 32 years old, George Pussey, 30, and John Wingate, 30. Detectives said Wickholm, who once worked at an East 56th street address when the cartoonist had a studio there, was the brains of the plot. Arno, they declared, befriended Wickholm, but knew neither of the other two prisoners.

Terrorized by Gang

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Miss Ellen Goff, forced to lie on floor by four men who took $22,000 in jewelry and $200 cash in jewelry store holdup.

Miss Stella Zielinski (left) and Miss Eunice Schmidt, also terrorized by the robbers.

Five bandits were sought by police last night for a brazen robbery early in the day of the Busch Jewelry store at 3258 Lincoln avenue. They took $22,000 in rings and watches, and $200 in cash.

Four gunmen wearing masks entered the store. They herded nine employés into a cashier's cage, including three women: Miss Eunice Schmidt, 19 years old, of 2236 North Springfield avenue; Miss Ellen Goff, 18, of 6409 North Sawyer avenue, and Miss Stella Zielinski, 18, of 6124 Fletcher street. The bandits carried cartons into which they dumped the jewelry they took from showcases.

Two bandits, removing their masks, carefully selected 100 rings from the show windows as scores walked past the store.

The bandits fled in an automobile driven by a fifth man. Passersby took a license number which was being traced by police.

GUILTY OF FRIED KIDNAP-MURDER; TWO MUST DIE

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Demetrius Gula and Joseph S. Sacoba, both 27 years old, were convicted by a jury in general sessions court tonight of kidnaping Arthur Fried, 32, of White Plains, N. Y. Under the verdict, reached after three hours' deliberation, the death sentence is mandatory.

The east side ex-convicts were accused of abducting Fried on Dec. 4, 1937. The victim never has been found and the prosecution contended the defendants shot him to death and cremated him.

In discharging the jurors, Judge John J. Freschi said:

"This is the first conviction under this new kidnaping statute [providing a death penalty if the kidnap victim is not returned before the trial of alleged kidnapers]. I think you were amply justified in convicting these men. I am satisfied that they kidnaped and killed Arthur Fried."

Governor of South Dakota Signs Death Penalty Bills

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Gov. Harlan J. Bushfield today signed bills which after July 1 will make murder in South Dakota a crime punishable by death in the electric chair. For the last 24 years the severest penalty for any crime in this state has been life imprisonment.

From this select group of 300, three authorities on photography selected ninety for the salon. Then from these ninety were chosen three prize winners and ten others which received prizes of $5 each and honorable mention.

FRUGAL BANDIT SAVES HIS LOOT TO GET MARRIED

Clarence Frank, 19 years old, who has confessed twenty-five robberies and been identified by seven victims, told Detective Le Roy Hallen of the Chicago Lawn police yesterday that he had saved most of the proceeds of his crimes because he was going to get married. His bank book showed a balance of $285. He had two second-hand cars, both of which he bought.

Frank, who lives at 5220 South Laflin street, was arrested Thursday by Detective Hallen as he was driving one of his old cars. It has no license plates. Nearly all of Frank's robberies were of small butcher shops and groceries. He admitted he usually locked his victims in a rear room or the refrigerator. Police estimated his total loot at about $500.

BOMBAY FREES 40,000 SLAVES; ENDS OLD SYSTEM

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Bombay presidency, a province of India, today freed 40,000 native serfs from centuries old bondage to landowners. Their subjugation was part of a system under which serfs, known as "halpatis," borrowed money to get married and repaid landowners at rates so small they never could hope to clear their debts in a lifetime. The India national congress party leaders, Mohandas K. Ghandi and Vallabhi Patel, fought for the change.

A STAY AT HOME WIFE SUES HER FOOTLOOSE MATE

How her husband's wanderlust wrecked their marriage was related yesterday in a suit for separate maintenance filed in the Superior court by Mrs. Loretta A. Schneider of 1400 Lake Shore drive. The husband, George A. Schneider, 52 years old, formerly a Chicago attorney, is now residing abroad.

Mrs. Schneider, who is a sister of State Senator Arthur J. Bidwill of the 7th district, said Schneider inherited $250,000 of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Emily Beck Schneider, in 1935. He promptly gave up his $15,000 a year practice, she added, and started on his travels. For a time she accompanied him, but left him in Belgium in September, 1936. Mrs. Schneider objected, she said, to traveling in small freight boats; and her husband told her he preferred to wander alone.

The petition requested that the wife's allowance be increased from $200 to $500 a month. Judge Robert C. O'Connell granted a temporary injunction tying up Schneider assets. Mrs. Schneider is represented by Attorney Payton J. Tuohy.

Robs Cafe So Quietly 50 Diners Are Unaware of It

A young bandit executed a robbery so quietly in Yonkers restaurant at 51 East Chicago avenue last night that the fifty diners were not aware of it at the time. He stepped up to Miss Frieda Mauer, 30 years old, the cashier, threatened her with a revolver, and warned: "Keep your mouth shut and hand me the money." She handed over $200. The bandit walked leisurely out of the restaurant and escaped.

MARTIN DEFINES REDS AS ISSUE IN UNION BATTLE

Foes Base Their Fight on Ford Negotiations.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flint, Mich., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Communism and Henry Ford were defined as the rival issues on which Homer Martin and his enemies are striving for control of the United Automobile Workers as Martin carried his fight to the rank and file of Flint automobile workers tonight.

After denouncing communists in a speech here Martin said:

"I'm never going to stop until those rats are driven out of the union and it is made fit for loyal Americans. That is a declaration of war. You can make no compromise with a cancer unless you want to visit a cemetery."

Defends Ford Negotiations.

Martin also defended his negotiations with Harry Bennett, Ford personnel chief, looking toward a unionization campaign in Ford plants and reëmployment of some 1,700 union members who are on strike against Ford or who allegedly have been fired for union activity.

Martin spoke before a friendly audience. Significant of the attitude of the automobile workers toward the American Federation of Labor was the fact that only his denunciation of communists drew greater applause than his assurance that he was not going to lead his faction of the union into the A. F. of L.

"Some people are saying that I am maneuvering to get you into the A. F. of L," said Martin. "The A. F. of L. isn't in this picture. But one thing about it, we're not going to accept the tyranny of a man down in Washington who wants to be a dictator."

Refers to John L. Lewis.

The last reference was to John L. Lewis, who drew a denunciation from Martin after the C. I. O. indorsed his rivals. Martin charges that the present schism in the auto union was bred by Philip Murray and Sidney Hillman of the C. I. O. coördinating committee, and that in splitting the union Lewis is serving his communist allies.

The anti-Martin, C. I. O.-backed faction in the union, led by executive board members whom Martin suspended from the union and who then suspended him, continued their fire on him today on charges that he was conspiring with Bennett to set up a company dominated union in Ford plants.

George Addes, secretary-treasurer of the anti-Martin organization, took the air in Detroit tonight to charge that Martin was seeking to betray the union in the negotiations with Bennett.

N. L. R. B. RENEWS ITS ATTACK ON FORD COMPANY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Victorious over the Ford Motor company in the Supreme court four weeks ago, the National Labor Relations Board today renewed its charge that the company is guilty of unfair labor practices and terrorism at the company's River Rouge plant.

Under permission unanimously granted by the high court Jan. 3, the board reissued a proposed order against the Ford company and arranged for the concern to make oral argument before the order becomes final. This oral argument conforms to the court's dictum in the Kansas City stockyards case that federal administrative agencies must afford a full and fair hearing to those at whom enforcement orders are aimed.

The order commands the Ford company to stop interfering with self-organization of its employés, to cease discouraging membership in the United Automobile Workers, to refrain from recognizing the Ford Brotherhood of America, which the NLRB calls a company union, and to reinstate with back pay twenty-nine employés discharged for union activity.

RENAME ALL BUT 1 IN STATE LABOR FEDERATION VOTE

All but one of the officers of the Illinois Federation of Labor were re-elected in the balloting which closed Dec. 31, it was announced last night when tabulation of the votes was completed. Reuben G. Soderstrom of Streator, president since 1930, again heads the organization. Victor A. Olander of Chicago, secretary and treasurer for twenty-four years remains in his post. Neither was opposed. The only change in the nine vice presidencies was the election of William L. McFetridge, president of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, as sixth vice president. He defeated O. Daley of Bloomington.

Pedestrian Barely Escapes Death; Camera Gets Scene

Fined for Accident

MISS LAURA GABRIELSON.

Herbert Waldock, 6934 Princeton avenue, will begin his vacation on Feb. 6. He will spend five days of it in the county jail as ordered yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in the Safety court. Waldock, who was arrested after a trafic collision, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving, but added that if he were sent to jail his wife and two children would suffer. Judge Schiller arranged for the vacation imprisonment.

Robert I. Joyce, 10 South Mason avenue, a WPA superintendent, was fined $100 for reckless driving. His automobile struck and injured a woman.

Miss Laura Gabrielson, 22 years old, of 3714 Sheffield avenue, a stenographer, was fined $10 for striking and injuring Park Policeman George Snyder at Ohio street and Lake Shore drive on Jan. 20. Miss Gabrielson testified that the policeman stepped into the path of her car, but the court ruled that the pedestrian always has the right of way.

PICKETING WHEN NO STRIKE IS ON AROUSES JUSTICE

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Justice William I. Schaffer of the State Supreme court interrupted argument in a labor case, here today, to remark: "This will cease to be a land of liberty if the picketing of plants where employés are not on strike is permitted to continue. I am amazed that such a thing as picketing a plant where the employés are satisfied exists in this country."

The case is one in which the Knit Goods Workers' union holds it has the legal right to picket the Yale Knitting Mills with nonemployés in order to force the plant to unionize.

Would Shield Small Business.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Vice Chancellor Maja Leon Berry ruled today that large labor unions must be prevented from crushing small employers.

He handed down a decision saying that if a big union were allowed to act against "small business" the same way that collective bargaining statutes empower it to act against "big business," the union might become a "rich and powerful oppressor" with the employer at its mercy.

Berry's ruling was explanatory of an injunction restraining picketing of a Newark eating place, where the three workers were on strike. "An employer whose business requires the services of only three men," Berry said, "should be entirely free to choose his employés."

FATHER IS KILLED BY HIT-RUN AUTO AS SON LOOKS ON

Hunt Second Death Driver; Clews Left in Road.

Frank Lattino, 52 years old, was struck and fatally injured last night by an automobile in Greenwood road near 154th street, Dolton. The driver fled after the accident, which happened as Lattino's son Lawrence, 14 years old, looked on. Lattino died in Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey. The Lattino home is near the place where he was injured.

Struck Down in Road.

Jefferson Park police yesterday were searching for the driver of a hit-run car which struck and killed John Curtis, 50 years old, 5619 North Nagle avenue, at Nagle avenue and Northwest highway early in the day.

Curtis had just alighted from a bus and was crossing Northwest highway. Glass from a broken headlight and three chromium strips were found on the road.

Four Indiana residents were injured when their car hit the elevated structure at Lake street and Wabash avenue. They are Meyer Shon, 27, the driver; Miss Vivian Ross, 18; Marshall Kambs, 25, all of Michigan City, and Miss Billie Mauck, 18, of Fort Wayne. They were taken to Passavant hospital.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Sallie Hawkins, colored, died in Englewood hospital last night shortly after she had been struck by an automobile in front of 6028 South Racine avenue. Mrs. Hawkins, who was 68 years old, lived at 6224 South Morgan street. The car was driven by Robert E. Rogers, 1237 West 78th place.

A hit and run driver who passed on the left side of a standing street car ran down Chester Urbanski, 20 years old, at Cermak road and Leavitt street last night. Urbanski, on his way to his home at 2026 West 18th place, was walking around the front end of the street car, from which he had alighted, when he was struck. Police found a broken spotlight and a door handle at the scene. Urbanski was seriously injured and taken to the County hospital.

The Illinois state highway division reported that there were 2,173 trafic deaths last year as compared with 2,598 in 1937.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday eighty-eight persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these seventy-two were killed in Chicago, where 1,540 were injured in the same period.

DESERTER FLEES FORT SHERIDAN UNDER GUNFIRE

Nicholas Nedhoff, an army deserter under a one year sentence escaped from Fort Sheridan yesterday under fire of a sentry and was believed to be hiding in Chicago last night. He is 22 years old.

Yesterday Nedhoff tripped the sentry, and fled as the latter fired a shotgun charge at him. He went to Highland Park and then to Glencoe, where he hired a taxicab. The driver, Edward Kieser, told military authorities that Nedhoff had a $10 bill, and was driven to Clark street and Diversey avenue in Chicago.

Capt. A. E. Wilson, provost marshal at Fort Sheridan, said Nedhoff's possession of the $10 bill indicated some one had smuggled the money to him. Nedhoff first caused trouble last autumn when he took absence without leave. On Oct. 7 he disarmed a sentry, fired at him, and escaped. He was recaptured. Fort officials said Nedhoff, whose home is in Granite City, Ill., was to be turned over to Lake County, Ind., to serve a sentence for forgery at the expiration of his desertion sentence.

PROFESSOR FIRED OVER LECTURER ON WAR IN SPAIN

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Rev. Harry B. Cummins, S. J., president of St. Louis university, announced last night that Dr. Moyer Springer Fleisher, veteran professor, had been dismissed because of his sponsorship, with other persons, of a Spanish war lecture by an "unfrocked" priest.

The statement said Dr. Fleisher had not withdrawn his sponsorship, although he had been asked to do so by the Catholic Club of St. Louis and the dean of the university's medical school.

A non-Catholic, Dr. Fleisher, head of the bacteriology department of the medical school, had been a member of the university's faculty for 23 years. He declined to comment on his dismissal.

BILL GIVES PENSIONS TO GEORGIA FARMERS, BUT THERE'S A CATCH

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The state senate welfare committee gave unanimous approval to Senator Moses Brinson's bill to pay a $30 monthly pension to every Georgia farmer over 65, providing he had farmed in Georgia for thirty years. The money to foot the bill? Well, several committeemen smilingly admitted today they didn't have any idea where that would come from.

Czechs Recognize Franco; Sever Ties with Loyalists

PRAGUE, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Czecho-Slovak cabinet council decided today to recognize the government of Gen. Francisco Franco, rebel commander-in-chief in Spain, and break off relations with Premier Juan Negrin's government loyalist régime.

LABOR ASKS PLAN TO FORESTALL NEW DEPRESSION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's monthly survey of business suggested today that some means of national planning for industry be set up to forestall another depression in 1940.

"A very real danger lies ahead," the publication said. "By 1940 the present wave of government spending will have largely exhausted its stimulating effect on business, and unless plans are devised to set private industry to work producing goods and raising living standards, we shall either face another depression or a greater armament program to put men to work. Government cannot forever go on piling deficit on deficit.

"In this critical outlook, which literally may be a matter of life or death to all of us, the first step is to establish a national planning board of representatives from business, labor, agriculture, consumers, and government with a mandate to stimulate the production of goods by private industry."

PENNSY DEMOCRATS LEFT STATE A PILE OF BILLS, SAYS GOVERNOR

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Gov. Arthur H. James said tonight the preceding Democratic administration spent in twenty months funds which it raised to run the Pennsylvania government for "two full years."

"Like Old Mother Hubbard we find that the cupboard is bare," the Republican chief executive declared in an address prepared for a statewide broadcast on the commonwealth's financial status.

The governor asserted that his Democratic predecessor, George H. Earle, went out of office leaving behind a "pile of bills which will represent a deficit of approximately $50,000,000" for the biennium.

THE CHARGES AGAINST SECRETARY PERKINS.

The impeachment of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, of James L. Houghteling, commissioner of immigration and naturalization, and Gerard D. Reilly, department of labor solicitor, upon charges made in a resolution offered by Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, is now before the judiciary committee of the house of representatives. Chairman Hatton Sumners of the committee says that the matter is one of serious concern and will be taken up by his committee immediately.

Mme. Perkins and her assistants are accused of violating the law in protecting communist enemies of the United States government, of its constitution, and of its order and security. Specifically, she is charged with refusing to execute the law against Harry Bridges, the Australian west coast organizer of maritime strikes and disorders, a revolutionary and agitator, communist and alien, whose deportation was recommended by the Seattle immigration officials. She is also charged with failure properly to prepare the government's case against Joseph Strecker, an alien and a communist whose deportation order was reversed by a Circuit Court of Appeals and is now before the United States Supreme court.

Miss Perkins, in a letter written to a woman member of congress, has denied that she has any sympathy for the communist party, its practices, or principles. The proposers of the impeachment nevertheless expect to prove that her administration of the department of labor has given encouragement and protection to the communist drive against American industry, with its seizure of plants, its instigation of lawless disorders, and the consequent disruption of such services as maritime transport.

There isn't another country in the world in which Bridges as an alien could have conducted a long series of strikes which tied up shipping, stopped the transport of food, blockaded ports of entry, and prevented the flow of goods between the American mainland and some of its island possessions. From any other country he would have been deported. A foreigner would not have been permitted to take such a part in a domestic conflict. This would be true not only of the dictator states but of all others. Bridges would have been sent out of any other country as an undesirable alien who was abusing the hospitality of the land he had been permitted to enter. It may be added that the communist, Fascist, and Nazi states would not have been satisfied with deporting him. They would either have executed him or sent him to a concentration camp.

The American communist party has endeavored to protect its revolutionaries in the present attack on the American economic system by declaring against violent overthrow of government. The pretense of its new constitution is that a person advocating violent overthrow is ineligible for membership and any member discovered in such advocacy is to be expelled from the party. That tactical move was intended to secure immunity and to escape penalties provided by law for persons advocating the overthrow of government by force, which is the first principle in the communist seizure of power. By this maneuver American communists have established themselves as a legal party of political action. The Supreme court opinion in the Strecker case is expected to establish the law in the matter.

Mme. Perkins has not been out of line with the other departments in Washington. The present splitting up of the automobile workers' union is proof of the communist penetration of that C. I. O. organization and evidence that the sitdown strikes were maneuvered by communist activists whom John Lewis has supported against Homer Martin. Miss Perkins believed in the legality of the sitdown strikes and urged the New Deal governors to use their troops to protect the expropriators.

Her sympathies with the revolutionaries were apparent and active at every point of contact her department made with them. But then she was not alone in this. The postoffice department and the department of justice followed her and the New Deal governors gave aid and assistance to the revolution. Proceedings in the judiciary committee should throw light upon the attempt of the revolutionaries to take possession of industrial production and transportation in the United States. It's all part of the New Deal program for the remaking of America.

TWICE SIX IS TWELVE.

The distance by rail from Chicago to St. Paul is 431 miles. The streamliner which leaves here at 8:45 in the morning covers the distance in 6¼ hours, or at the rate of 69 miles an hour. When, as occasionally happens, the train is held to make connections with late trains from the east or south, it leaves a quarter of an hour later but gets in to St. Paul on time, and to do so travels at better than 72 miles an hour. According to railroad men, this rate of speed can be maintained without difficulty.

If it can be done between Chicago and St. Paul it can be done, also, between Chicago and New York. It is a little more than twice as far to New York as to the Twin Cities. The trip by rail should take a little more than twice as long, say, at a rough calculation, 12 hours and 40 minutes. Eastbound, the trains might leave here at 8 o'clock in the evening and arrive in New York at 9:40 the following morning. The western roads have shown that such speed is safe and that it attracts business. The eastern roads should profit from the experience.

130 LIVES A YEAR.

At the suggestion of Clayton Smith, president of the county board, a meeting of state, city, and county officials is being called to devise a program of elevated highway construction. Mr. Smith has delegated Daniel Ryan, chairman of the county's committee on roads and bridges, to arrange the meeting.

It is to be hoped that this means a determination to get action where action is greatly needed. As Mr. Smith well said, "a civilized community can no longer tolerate the annual slaughter of hundreds and the crippling of thousands on Chicago streets."

Engineers for the Chicago Motor club have gone on record with the assertion that a northwest, a west, and southwest elevated highway can be constructed for 55 million dollars in all, and that the costs can be met over the next ten years from existing gasoline taxes. Such a system, extending 41 miles in all, would prevent, so it is estimated, the loss of 130 lives each year and avert 4,500 personal injuries resulting from automobile accidents. The project is feasible both from the engineering and financial viewpoints. The need is urgent. The public officials who authorize the start of construction will have earned the gratitude of all citizens.

MEXICAN MADNESS.

Mexico expropriated the foreign oil properties, without compensation, to satisfy the communists, the Stalinite revolutionaries who are taking over the railroads, mines, farms, and industries. Lombardo Toledano, the labor dictator, Mexico's John Lewis, is a follower of Josef Stalin. President Cardenas disavows connection with communism, but that is of no consequence. If Toledano is not the stronger of the two men he at least can manipulate the real trends of the revolution. Communism is its only possible destination.

Mexico cannot have a dictatorship of the proletariat without liquidating private property. When it has liquidated private property it will have a Moscow government. As the national resources are transferred from private enterprise to proletarian control the national income is reduced, governmental revenues disappear, production stops, and the whole Russian phenomenon of dictatorship, disruption, and destitution makes its appearance south of the Rio Grande.

This is the logical, the inevitable sequence of events in the revolution, but there are also some curious and contradictory consequences. Mexico could not sell the stolen oil in the markets into which it had gone before expropriation, a condition which brought Nazi Germany into Mexico as a buyer, but not for cash. Germany's barter system will give Mexico German goods, but no money. Confiscated American oil properties will be used to cause the replacement of American products by German products and also to give Stalin's enemy, Hitler, a supply of oil for military purposes.

The New Deal government in Washington is a mainstay in the support of Mexico's shaky financial structure. The crazy American silver purchases give Cardenas a revenue when everything else is slipping away. John Lewis and Mexico's Toledano are warm friends. The New Deal does to American private investments just about what Mexico does to them. The two governments are sympatico and equally communistic at heart. Nevertheless it works out that as the United States bolsters up Red Mexico the Mexican communists help out Nazi Germany, which is expected to attack Stalin's Russia.

Who's loony now? Everybody, it would seem.

THE RED SABOTAGE OF FRANCE.

The sabotage of French national defense begun by the Red front, which gained power under the Socialist Premier Blum, might seem to be the strangest thing on record if it were not understandable in the light of one of the two major, although conflicting, communist intentions. One is to save soviet Russia in any general war. The other is during that war to destroy capitalistic bourgeois society.

Intention number one would require that France be put on as effective a military footing as possible. Intention number two requires that the resources upon which France must depend in a war should be so sabotaged that they would break down and expose the country to the revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

The best information obtainable on the French air force places the number of probable usable fighting machines at 1,800, with a conservative estimate that only 600 are reliable first line planes. The Red front took possession of airplane production and, refusing to accede to the imperative necessity of speeding up, imposed restrictions which appear to have reduced France to virtual negligibility at a time when its enemies are dominating the European situation by threatening destruction from the air.

The Red front so distorted not only the loyalty and patriotism of the French workers but their regard for their own security that France, the one time dominating force, has been reduced to the status of a second rate power. The Red brotherhood, by undermining all French industry and military resources, is exposing the country to the Nazi and Fascist enemy in order to present Stalin with another proletarian dictatorship incapable of making any resistance to its own sworn enemies.

Stalin's personal fears for his own security lead him to sabotage Russian defense, he being in constant terror of insurrection, and the Nazis and the Fascists, so favored by the people they have sworn to destroy, go about the business of dominating Europe.

A MYTH IN ENGLEWOOD.

So you would like to hear our story, "A Myth in Englewood," as a companion piece to the recently told "A Myth in Evanston"? Like Evanston's ancient automobile, it illustrates the myth making habits of the mass mind.

A city editor, nose for news twitching, handed a young reporter an enlarged photograph, showing a man and woman in ceremonial attire, and said:

"This man was engaged to marry this girl. While he was away on a long business trip the girl died and was buried. He had her body exhumed and dressed in her wedding costume. Then he posed with the corpse for this picture. A girl who works in the circulation department brought it in to us."

* * *

The picture bore an address in the vicinity of 63d and Halsted streets. It was an art and photographic supply shop, run by two Poles whose answers to questions were reluctant. . . . Yes, they sold the picture. . . . Yes, they had heard the story. . . . No, they could not name the people depicted. . . . They had acquired the picture from the former owner of the shop. . . . No, they did not know where he lived, and had forgotten his name.

The reporter tramped the streets of Englewood for hours. Where was the original shopkeeper? This or that person might know, he was told. And each of the two dozen inhabitants with whom he talked had heard the story about the disinterred bride. He estimated that about 100,000 people in the region believed it.

* * *

Finally he found the original owner, who explained:

"That picture was left in our shop by a salesman for a brand of photographic paper. It represents two characters in some rural play—possibly 'Way Down East.' Schoolgirls with morbid minds saw it in our window and invented the tale. Our successors exploited the myth by selling copies to any one who wanted to invest 25 cents in a gruesome souvenir."

Note the parallel with "A Myth in Evanston"—a maudlin, melodramatic fantasy of tragic frustration on the verge of matrimony.

A GODDESS IN ANGER.

Like thunder clouds that chase across the peaks
Which stand against the sky still faintly red,
So anger sweeps athwart her brow and cheeks
As Trojan troops were once to battle led.
And then the storm; impassioned and aglow,
It seethes and breaks; in vibrant fury blown
From crest to crest of her artistic soul;
A tempest that Olympus might have known.
Then he who loves the beautiful is lost—
Lost to the passion that this tempest bred;
Helpless before a goddess thus embossed
With fury; with a nimbus o'er her head;
And he as surely dead who can withstand
Her soul's majestic beauty, tempest-fanned.

Children, See the Pretty Street Car!

Perhaps you know that Progressive Educational association theories are being used in the Evanston schools. Last summer an Evanston weekly showed a picture of a class at work. Who knows what subject it was—civics? sociology? geography? Boxes, boards, etc., had been assembled and arranged in a vague representation of a street car. One child acted as conductor, another as motorman, and others as passengers. The purpose was to give the children a lesson in how to board a car, pay the fare and make change, dramatizing it to make it effective, as the Progressives put it. As you so elegantly said, O, mon Dieu! H. H. O.

GUEST TOWEL NO. 1001.

As you lie among your kindred in the dust of desuetude
I am minded to recall how our acquaintanceship was brewed.
Did I win you in a grab bag or at a church bazaar?
(I'm sure you're not a golf prize won for shooting less than par.)
Did I once excel at lexicon, mah jong or pick-up-sticks,
Or at bridge did I corral the major share of winning tricks?
At lotto I am blotto, and it wouldn't be quite nice
To admit it if I'd won you by manipulating dice.
That linen club, I wonder? Was the lucky number mine?
Was it dominoes or ping-pong? No, in these I do not shine.
Did I answer twenty questions in as many seconds flat?
Are you mine by right of purchase? (There could be no need for that.)
Though your origin is misty, we may set that fact at nought:
You're the symbol, the summation, the quintessence of mass thought!

DODGING AND REMOVING WARTS.

ALMOST any kind of a wart is a nuisance. Not only are these pests in the way but they may be subjected to irritation and thus become infected. Those seen on the fingers and hands appear as irregular, raised masses of heaped up cells which may be tinged with pigment [yellow or brown].

There is every reason to believe that the condition is brought on by some filtrable virus—too small to be seen by the most powerful microscope but which may spread from one person to another, probably by direct contact. In other words, we may say that warts are contagious and not only have they been passed from child to child in the schoolroom or on the playground, but transference has been proved from man to animals. The old saying that schoolboys acquire these lesions through handling toads may not be so far-fetched after all. The warty aspect of toadskin no doubt led to the suggestion.

A recent epidemic of plantar warts [on the soles of the feet] is described by MacKenna. Occurring largely among those of adolescent age, the malady swept through a boys' school and nearly every pupil was bothered. The manifestations were small, clear looking, raised areas approximately one-eighth of an inch in diameter. No signs of inflammation were present, although slight discomfort was caused whenever a spot was tread upon. At first most of the patients disregarded the matter, but some visited the school physician thinking that a tiny bit of sand or grit had become imbedded in the skin. Despite preliminary treatment the blemishes increased in size, becoming rough, yellowish-gray, hard protuberances.

Later most of the lads gave a history of throbbing pain, particularly severe in the morning on getting out of bed or on starting to walk. After a time the distress diminished, although after a hot bath discomfort became more pronounced. Some of the students assumed that calluses were forming, but a grand rush to adjust and refit shoes was followed by no improvement. A skilled dermatologist was then brought in, whereupon the true nature of the difficulty was recognized.

His first move was to institute preventive measures by segregating all infected pupils, limiting them to certain bathrooms, sleeping quarters, etc. Care was taken that no articles of clothing previously worn by one with the trouble should be used by an uncontaminated lad. Those who presented the ailment were instructed not to walk with bare feet. Mild cases were then treated with a dilute mixture of zinc chloride and salicylic acid. The warts were touched lightly several times daily with this material until some peeling took place. A few were given X-rays as representing an effective remedy. Subsequent to a few exposures no new crops were observed and existing outgrowths dried and sloughed away. In only a few instances was surgical excision required. Here a local anesthetic [novocaine] was employed to permit a thorough removal of the excrescences.

The plan suggested a few years ago of immersing the extremities in a whirlpool bath—as hot as can be borne—is helpful. After two or three treatments the offending structures begin to swell and protrude more and more from the surrounding skin. Within a week the smaller ones may be loosened and lifted out with an orangewood stick. Even those that are sizable will respond to the continued application of moist heat.

Chiropodists frequently manage these affairs successfully. Many will employ some chemical to destroy the existing growth, creating just enough reaction on the part of the healthy tissue so that normal healing of the bed will ensue.

Plantar warts are not rare, hence caution must be exercised in avoiding those who have become victims. If a case develops in the family the infectious agent may be corralled by observing ordinary hygienic precautions. If a common bathroom is utilized the patient should not be permitted to walk barefooted. Only occasionally will it be necessary to resort to a surgical procedure and the possibility may be avoided by attacking these growths promptly.

BRONCHIAL COUGH.

R. H. M. writes: My 4 year old daughter is affected with a bronchial cough every winter. What can be done for her? Would sun ray treatments be beneficial?

REPLY.

Attempts should be made to raise the child's resistance to infection. Plenty of rest, a well balanced diet, and the use of extra vitamins are indicated. Ultraviolet will be beneficial. Make certain, however, that there is no disease of the lungs. A chest film—X-ray—is suggested.

DOUBLE VISION.

A. F. H. writes: What causes double vision? What is the treatment?

REPLY.

Double vision results when the eyes are unable to focus accurately. A common cause is some muscle imbalance. In children this is not difficult to correct. An adult suffering from alcoholic intoxication may see two for one as though his eyes were crossed. He may be able also to envision all the animals of the zoo. Organic disease, such as brain tumors or encephalitis, may be responsible. Relief depends upon removal of the cause.

TRY EAR MUFFS.

J. R. writes: Can anything be done for a person who is sensitive to another person's sniffing?

REPLY.

A blindfold and ear muffs should prove effective. We must learn to overlook personal idiosyncrasies on the part of others.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY ARTHUR SCHOLES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONGKONG.—Mme. Chao Yu-tang, "Mother of Chinese Guerrillas," left Hongkong recently for the South seas aboard the French liner Marechal Joffre. The moving spirit behind thousands of guerrillas operating throughout China is a Manchurian woman, 58 years old.

Mme. Chao is known throughout the guerrilla ranks as "our old mother." Time has turned her hair white, criss-crossed her face with lines. But one thing age cannot dim is her enthusiasm, almost bordering on the fanatic, for the cause espoused by the irregulars—to defeat Japan.

"I am an old woman and do not know how to speak," she said. "Today I am going to the South seas to raise funds to rearm the guerrilla units. I hope our compatriots will listen patiently to an old woman who is better able to carry a rifle than to talk. I have been overwhelmed by the generosity of Hongkong and Canton. Altogether in these two places I have raised $30,000. Of this I have sent $20,000 to the five guerrilla armies in the north. The rest will be used to organize a guerrilla force in Kwangtung. My boys do not need much money—only enough to pay villagers for food and to buy ammunition for their rifles."

The "mother" is proud of the fact that she helped organize the powerful National Anti-Japanese army, now 15,000 strong, near Peiping.

"We love our country," she continued. "We fight for its existence. We are always ready to coöperate with any people who fight against the Japanese invaders. These are all the principles of our political platform. We fight not for our own fame, nor position, nor party, but for the emancipation of our fatherland from Japanese imperialism."

Mme. Chao, whose maiden name is Hung Wen-huo, was born into a poor Manchu family on the Liao-tung peninsula in Manchuria. She was brought up in the cradle of far eastern conflicts.

"I saw the last Chinese-Japanese war when I was 14 years old and the Russian-Japanese war at 24," she said. "The outrages of the Japanese troops as well as of the czarist soldiers in my native district in those two wars left an indelible hatred of aggressors on my heart."

When she was 17 she was married. Eight daughters and four sons were born. They were living happily in their native province seven years ago when the Japanese invaded the territory.

"I long for a happy and peaceful home again, but what will become of my family if my country is lost," she pointed out. "I am convinced there will be no more happy homes for us Chinese until the Japanese are driven back to their native land. For the reconstruction of our homes I sent my sons, daughters-in-law, and daughters to the front, and I devote myself to the country, leaving my 76 year old husband alone in Hunan."

Following the Japanese occupation of Mukden in 1931 guerrillas took up arms throughout Manchuria, and most of them died within two years. One of the few guerrilla armies which still carries on the struggle against the Japanese is the Young Iron and Blood army in Liaotung peninsula. This army was born in Mme. Chao's home when the old woman, together with two sons and three young students, pledged to unite the people and resist Japanese imperialists.

The young men then went into the mountains, leaving Mme. Chao and her daughters to serve as "communication officers," ammunition transporters, and organizers of recruits. Many times the old woman went out in snowstorms to bury rifles in the forest or in old tombs; many times she escorted new partisans to guerrilla headquarters. Sometimes when the guerrillas come into her courtyard she would look after them personally and, when they were hotly pursued by the Japanese, help them to escape.

When Hweihsen fell into Japanese hands, friends who came back from the front informed Mme. Chao that her daughter had been killed by the Japanese. With tears in her eyes the old mother of the guerrillas said:

"I did not regret sending my daughter to the front."

She has gone now to Singapore and the East Indies to collect money to organize a guerrilla army in Kwangtung so that Canton may be recaptured.

"I am an old woman now," she declared. "I may die soon. Yet I still devote myself wholeheartedly to my country and would rather work to death than wait for it."

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died, leaving no will and no children.

1. He had property willed to him by his father at his death, with no deed, and this wife is not known in the will.

2. I signed a small note with my husband before his death. How long will judgment note run on property?

3. Can that man put note on that property? My husband has no brothers or sisters, nephews or nieces.

4. Can I borrow his property as a mortgage from one of the nephews without the consent of all? L. A.

1. It is not clear whether you mean that the husband or his father died first. If your husband died first, then you would not share in the estate of your father-in-law. If your father-in-law died first, then you would inherit what your husband had previously inherited.

2. The note itself is not a lien against the property. The limitation period on the note is ten years from the maturity date. If judgment is taken on the note, the judgment will be a lien for seven years if execution is taken.

3. Depends on facts that are not before us.

4. If you can find one of them who is willing to lend you, presumably this is because you have an interest in the property. It is not clear what additional question you intend to ask.

ESTATE ASSETS.

Mattoon, Ill., Jan. 19..—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend was the holder of several stock certificates which the wife now desires to sell. The husband passed away some time ago. These certificates were not indorsed by the deceased. Will you advise the proper procedure for her to take in disposing of this stock? H. D.

The transfer officers of the corporation can insist on probate. The best way to ascertain their attitude toward waiving probate is to take the matter up with them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

DEFYING THE PEOPLE'S WILL.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 25.—Evidently the people did not speak loudly enough on Nov. 8 for Mr. Roosevelt and some congressmen and senators to hear them. The office holders the people repudiated Mr. Roosevelt has immediately placed in positions of greater authority. It is nauseating to see some of our wily senators publicly announce their disapproval of this or that, but when called upon to vote either excuse themselves from voting, or vote for the very project they have denounced. Instead of acting in behalf of the best interests of the people they put party affiliation and what they think is their personal political interest above all other consideration.

Our only salvation is for the voters of the United States to speak loudly enough and often enough to the men they elect to office so they may distinctly hear and give heed to the voice of our nation. H. R. FAHNESTOCK.

LICENSE PLATES.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 23.—While I find that THE TRIBUNE is generally right in its editorial policy I cannot subscribe to your view in an editorial today which finds fault with the custom of the secretary of state in issuing a number, year after year, to a motorist who pays his license fee early and requests that number. I believe this practice should be encouraged, as it enables the state to make early collection of these fees. The law requires new license plates on Jan. 1, and the motorist who obeys the law is certainly entitled to the small inducement of receiving, if possible, the number he requests. If this makes the motorist feel a bit self-righteous, what of it? Probably he feels that he has paid for the privilege of driving his car on the streets and highways, while the man who waits until the police order him to buy new plates is taking advantage of the leniency with which this law is enforced in Illinois. It seems likely that the citizen who obeys the law requiring new plates might also be more law abiding with regard to trafic laws.

DAVID P. MCLELLAND.

REFERRED TO COUSIN JUNE.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Just a few doors west of Broadway on Berwyn avenue a lordly cock crows a greeting to passersby as he struts proudly about or stands in the doorway. In winter when the days grow cold and stormy, he takes up his abode inside the store where he crows his greeting. He arrived at his present home some three and one-half years ago in company with five brothers and sisters, all of whom, alas, found their way to a customer's table.

Was it the appeal of a beautiful snowy plumage and ruby comb or just luck that preserved this cheery old cock to become a unique neighborhood pet? M. M. W.

FOR A' THAT.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—A certain Chicago society woman is referred to as princess. I understand her husband, the prince, is working in Chicago and so assume that he is an American citizen. Then why this silly title of princess? Any real American woman should be proud to be called Missus, which means the wife of the finest husbands in the world, the plain misters. PLAIN MISSUS.

FROM A TEACHER OF FRENCH.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—I cannot let the editorial on "Foreign Languages" go unchallenged. Is it not possible that the writer of the article is not so conversant with conditions as the teachers in the schools? More students in my school chose French as an elective last year than in any of the five preceding years. I heard a teacher in the Roosevelt school make a similar statement at a conference of French teachers.

I agree with you that one of the purposes of studying French should be to learn to speak the French language, but I insist that there are other ends. Think of the contribution of the French to the literature of the world. One of my classes is reading with great enjoyment "The Three Musketeers." Another class acted before an audience a scene from one of Molière's plays. I could cite many examples. The beginning classes are quite excited when they discover a French word with an English derivative. One may study a subject for the pure joy of studying. Is this not true?

As for speaking the language, I myself am almost as much at home there as in English, and this seems to be the case with any of the teachers with whom I come in contact. We belong to French clubs; we take French periodicals. I have found these teachers to be some of the best educated, the most traveled, of any Chicago citizens. Surely it is an advantage to the student to be associated with such people, to get first hand information as to the geography, history, political problems of France. I invite the writer of the editorial to visit my French classes some day.

MOORE LASHES ADAMOWSKI FOR CHARGE OF DEAL

G. O. P. Seeks Defeat of All Democrats, He Says.

The Illinois Democratic party was lashed last night by Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee, for the charge by Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski of the Horner-Courtney machine that there is an alliance between the Kelly-Nash organization and the Republicans.

"The scandalous charges of Ben Adamowski against the Republican Cook county central committee are lies," said Mr. Moore. "They were made in cowardly fashion under the cloak of legislative immunity by a multiple officeholder. He has been violating the Illinois constitution by serving in two branches of government simultaneously, as a member of legislature and as a master in chancery.

G. O. P. Opposes All Democrats.

"The Republican county central committee is opposed to all Democratic factions. It considers one of them as bad and as guilty as the other. It has been public knowledge that corruption and graft have saturated the administration of the city's affairs. Yet Mr. Courtney, the state's attorney, has for six years been sitting idly by and has never convicted any one for the commission of a serious public offense.

"Republican ward committeemen believe that the only solution to Chicago's problem and the only manner in which the stables can be cleaned of their present stench is to throw Kelly out of office and to defeat all Democrats. These committeemen fought the Kelly-Nash machine last November without assistance from Mr. Adamowski and Mr. Courtney. Now they are fighting both Democratic factions to elect Dwight H. Green mayor of Chicago."

Charges Made in House.

Adamowski made his charges of a bi-party alliance in the house of representatives on Thursday. He was opposing passage of the Bidwill open primary bill. This bill, if the senate concurs in amendments next week, will permit voters to select their party ballot next month regardless of how they voted in last year's primary. Many Republicans voted in the Democratic primary last year.

A. K. Stiles, Republican state chairman, yesterday urged Illinois members of his party to observe appropriately the Feb. 12 birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The Young Republicans of Illinois will hold their annual ceremony at the tomb of Lincoln in Springfield on Saturday, Feb. 11.

Green yesterday received an indorsement from the 15th ward ex-service men's organization. In the evening he addressed two ward meetings. Tonight he will award two trophies at an ice meet in the Chicago arena.

Courtney Raps Kelly Regime; Mayor Cites Civic Betterment

State's Attorney Courtney last night accused the Kelly-Nash machine of pressure and intimidation of voters, and Mayor Kelly cited his record as qualifying him for reëlection. They are rivals for the Democratic nomination for mayor in the primary election Feb. 28. News from their camps follows:

COURTNEY—

State's Attorney Courtney, in a radio address, charged that Mayor Kelly has his back to the wall in the primary battle.

"Machine control, such as exercised by the Kelly-Nash organization, means using the power of public office for the financial benefit of a few," Courtney said. "It means putting a yoke around the neck of every public official and employé and instilling in his mind fear of losing his job or being thrown out of the party unless he follows dictation.

Assails "Paving Ring."

"It means contracts for necessary supplies of government cannot be expected unless there is a sleight-of-hand financial return from the contractor. It means the favoring of a small ring of paving contractors to the exclusion of all other contractors who might bring a lower bid."

Courtney said Mayor Kelly had never aided in the fight to eliminate racketeering and to bring about a better administration of law and order. He asserted that under the guise of economy the length of the school year had been reduced and teachers' pay cut.

"What is the controling factor that has made real estate in Chicago a drug on the market?" the prosecutor asked. "It is Mr. Kelly and his tax eating machine. Property values are going down and taxes are going up. Voters should take their tax bills to the polls. Then they will know how to vote.

Asks Aid of Republicans.

"Statistics show that Chicago, among all the cities of the country, once occupied second place in the number of buildings constructed each year. Today Chicago has dropped to 38th place. Every one will agree that real prosperity will never return to our city until we make the tax situation such that there will be an inducement for people to build, thereby providing an opportunity for building tradesmen to return to work."

Courtney asked the Republicans who voted in the Democratic primary last year to vote for him as one means of beating the machine.

KELLY—

Mayor Kelly, speaking at three ward meetings, listed his accomplishments in six years as the city's chief executive. He spoke before large crowds at 4270 Archer avenue, in the 12th ward; at 1143 Chicago avenue, 26th ward, and at 2922 Southport avenue, 45th ward.

"When you go out to hire a man," he said, "you hire him on his record, not his promises. In my six years as mayor, there have been 1,700 miles of streets paved and 300 miles of sewer laid. We have developd the lake front.

Wants to Build Up Chicago.

"We have built more than 75 schools. We are starting on a great subway project and I would like to be around when it is finished. Some ambitious people want to tear down what we have built up. My viewpoint is different—I want to make Chicago the greatest city in the world."

Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the All Chicago committee for Mayor Kelly's reëlection, issued a statement yesterday, speaking, he said, as a taxpayer and a business man, not as a partisan. He deprecated what he called exaggerated statements about the tax situation in Chicago.

"There is not the slightest reason for hysterical orations about the tax picture," Col. Sprague said. "Property owners have not and will not pay more than $37,000,000 a year for the operating expenses of the city. That amount is fixed by state law.

Taxes Paid Decline.

"It is true that we have a higher tax rate today than we had some years ago, but that rate includes not only the city but all the other local governments. The point to be kept in mind is that assessed valuations are much lower. Therefore, even with the higher tax rate, property does not pay as much in taxes as in former years."

Joe Rhoden, member of the Chicago Typographical union, speaking for Labor's Non-Partisan league, charged Courtney with attempting to dominate and corrupt the labor movement in Chicago. The league has endorsed Mayor Kelly. Rhoden asserted that Courtney has made illegal raids on union meetings, attacking and harassing labor leaders.

ELECTION BOARD POSTS GIVEN DALY AND ADAMOWSKI

William B. Daly, district superintendent of the south division of the park district since 1934, yesterday was appointed a member of the board of election commissioners. State Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, minority leader in the house, was named attorney for the board.

William B. Daly.

Immediately after his appointment Daly met with the other two board members, Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke and Harry A. Lipsky. Lipsky was elected chairman of the board. Lipsky's three year term expires next December. Mrs. Reinecke was reappointed yesterday to serve until December, 1941.

Daly's appointment runs to December, 1940. He fills the unexpired three year term of Alexander J. McKay.

The selection of Daly and Adamowski was announced by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, head of the county election machinery. The appointments were regarded as political plums, inasmuch as Judge Jarecki, Daly, and Adamowski are supporters of State's Attorney Courtney, who is opposing Mayor Kelly for the Democratic nomination for mayor in the Feb. 28 primary. Daly will draw $6,000 a year. Adamowski's annual salary will be $7,500.

SENT TO PRISON FOR 14 YEARS IN BRICK SLAYING

Earl Hicks, colored, was sentenced by Judge John C. Lewe to fourteen years in prison yesterday, after pleading guilty of murder.

Hicks was a companion of Robert Nixon, colored, who beat Mrs. Florence Johnson to death with a brick in her home at 4631 Lake Park avenue last May. Nixon has been tried and sentenced to death. His case is now awaiting review by the Illinois Supreme court.

Prosecutor John Boyle told Judge Lewe that Hicks had appeared as a state witness against Nixon.

SENIOR STUDENT AT N. U. SEIZED IN CAFE BURGLARY

Harry Elton Albright, a senior in the Northwestern university engineering school, withdrew from school Thursday because he was out of money. Last night he was in the county jail, charged with burglary.

Albright, who is 21 years old, was arrested early yesterday as he left an Evanston restaurant at 643 Library place. He was carrying ten oranges, four bananas, some chocolate, and a watch which he confessed he had taken from the restaurant. To Lieut. Arthur Seivers and Policeman Daniel Woodruff he confessed that he had broken into the restaurant a week ago and taken the overcoat he was wearing.

ROCKFORD CIRCUIT JUDGE WILL RETIRE; CITES HIS 76 YEARS

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher withdrew today as a candidate for the Republican nomination for reëlection. His decision was revealed in a letter to Attorney Guy B. Reno, chairman of a special committee appointed by the Winnebago County Bar association to consider candidates.

The bar last week agreed to select three candidates for the consideration of the Republican county central committee instead of recommending only one. "I would not be a candidate unless I was the choice of a majority of the bar," said Judge Fisher. "By quite a majority at our last meeting the bar refused to permit a vote for a single candidate, and I interpret that to mean a majority of the bar do not want a judge past 76 years old."

Hamburgers with Haircuts Cost 3 $25 Each in Court

Monroe, La., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Luring haircuts with hamburgers today drew fines of $25 each and 30 day jail sentences for T. C. Moore and two employés in his barber shop and restaurant. Judge David I. Garrett convicted Moore and his two barbers of giving a coupon good for one hamburger with each 50 cents of barber trade, thereby violating a state price fixing law. The court suspended the sentences after warning the defendants not to mix the culinary and tonsorial arts.

Hopes Missing Small Fry Won't Go to Pot in Big City

They knew nothing of city life. During all their sheltered existence they had seen only the green hills near Ottawa, in La Salle county. Then yesterday they started for Chicago in a gay party. But when their car arrived they had disappeared. Walter Pike of Ottawa, who had been their chaperon, told New City police they were very young—just at the frying age. The police said they would help him hunt for the chickens.

PACKING HOUSE PLANT DAMAGED BY $200,000 FIRE

Fire in a two story frame building owned by the Drovers' Packing company, 3944-56 Normal avenue, yesterday did damage estimated at $200,000 by William E. Russell, owner. The building housed the hog killing department and a number of animals were destroyed. All 150 employés escaped. A quantity of stored meat also was lost.

The blaze started in the basement, apparently from a rosin tank which became overheated or exploded. Although it spread so rapidly that a 3-11 alarm was sounded, it was soon brought under control. Part of the roof and walls of the frame structure collapsed. Much of the damage was to equipment and machinery.

Five election officials of the 54th precinct, 24th ward surrendered yesterday. They face contempt charges as a result of accusations that they permitted irregularities at the primary election last April.

The five are Sidney Brill, 3311 13th street; Jerry Keblusek, 1313 South Spaulding avenue; Samuel Bloom, 1311 South Homan avenue; Sidney Epstein, 1301 South Christiana avenue, and Mollie Friedman, 3352 Douglas boulevard. BOOKISH GENT'S SCHEMING PUTS 2 BEHIND BARS

Miss Bremmer, 25 years old, and also from Rochester, who had been sharing an apartment with Van De Putte at 4545 Hazel avenue, was sentenced to ten days in the Bridewell on a disorderly conduct charge. Police said Van De Putte has a wife in Rochester. The scheme? Stealing books from a loop department store and reselling them at slightly below list price.

U. S. AGENTS FIND MISSING PAPERS AT CRABB HOME

Delavan, Ill., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Federal agents today examined bank documents seized at the home of Willis W. Crabb, ousted president of the Tazewell County National bank, seeking evidence to present to a federal grand jury which will hear charges that Crabb violated national banking laws. Crabb, arrested at his home last night, was free on $10,000 bond.

District Attorney Howard L. Doyle returned to Springfield from Peoria today. He said the grand jury, originally slated to meet at Springfield Monday, probably would not be called until the middle of the week.

The prosecutor said he wanted to give the federal agents time to peruse the box of papers, which he reported included mortgages, promissory notes, deeds, and other documents which had been missing from the bank. They were taken from Crabb's home when he was arrested.

Doyle asserted "more than $50,000" in questioned notes and chattel mortgages was listed in the bank's assets.

Moy Ching Am has a wife and two children in wartorn China, but he doesn't want to go back there. Moy entered the United States in 1924 on mercantile papers, which permit him to remain so long as he is conducting a business. He lost his store in 1930. Judge Michael L. Igoe will hear arguments in the case next Friday.

Vivid Chronicle of Netherlands Empire in East

"History of Netherlands East Indies," by E. S. de Klerck. [W. L. and J. Brusse, N. V. Rotterdam, 2 vols.]

The struggle for raw materials, and the colonies that provide them, is the framework of history. In the narrative of that struggle, the story of the Netherlands and its romantic empire in the east is a vastly important chapter. Yet it has been badly neglected by historians—especially those of the Netherlands itself. The result has been a series of misconceptions detrimental to Holland's reputation as a colonial power. To the rescue now comes E. S. de Klerck, with a history of his country's treasured possessions—a history that perforce must become a first choice of scholars and historians seeking a thorough, fair, and yet concise story of the East Indies.

Herr de Klerck, a retired army officer, was formerly a lecturer on colonial history in Leyden university. With the spirit of the true historian, he faces the facts and lets them speak for themselves. His stated purpose is "to make it clear . . . that in the course of the centuries Holland has accomplished a work of civilization of which she may be proud and that, though separated by a distance of thousands of miles from the East Indies, she is still able to carry on her historical task." This he accomplishes, but the accomplishment is incidental to his contribution to the reference shelves of history.

The history is written in two volumes. The first includes a 98 page introductory history of the Netherlands which is a marvel of condensed informative writing. Maps and annotated reference material fortify the work, without becoming supercargo. The narrative is as clear and vigorous as the winds that blow over the tulip fields of Holland. It emanates from a mind completely clear of the dust that too often clogs the workings of an historian's mind.

Mistakes of administration are not excused. Inequities are put into the scales and balanced against the wisdom and the intelligence that finally solidified an empire of many small tribes and races. The result is that the history becomes at once readable and believable—interesting without being casual. W. D.

A Tour of Old Mexico

"New Designs for Old Mexico," by Henry Albert Phillips. [McBride, $2.75.]

"Mexico is the most lively and vivid example that we can recall of the adage 'history repeats itself.' We discover a succession of cavalcades of conquistadores, each conqueror, native or foreign, bringing with him his own design for Mexico, with always new designs for old."

This is the key to Henry Albert Phillip's comprehensive and colorful study of our neighbor to the south. Mexico City, Taxco, Cuernavaca, Puebla, Toluca, Merida, Oaxaca, Uruapan, Chichen Itza, and other picturesque mileposts are covered by this well known world traveler, in the interesting tour on which he takes his reader.

The book is packed with information the average tourist would like to know, but probably would never dig out of an ordinary reference book. It also has many a useful hint to prospective visitors who still think Mexico a dangerous place. Good end paper maps, however, would have added much to the value of this entertaining volume. A. C.

Scientific Crime Detection

"He Wouldn't Stay Dead," by Frederick C. Davis [Crime club, $2].

This is another of the Prof. Cyrus Hatch stories of scientific crime detection with a New York sociologist unraveling the mysteries. The plot is lively, the dialog fair, and improbabilities are at a minimum. Hatch's father, who is police commissioner of New York and an old school copper, hasn't much patience with his son's methods, but Lady Science does the right thing for the young man when the hour for solution arrives. "Coffins for Three" is a previous book by the same author. P. W.

Artistry in Writing Enhances Poignant Tale of Orphan Girl

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"The Death of the Heart," by Elizabeth Bowen. [Knopf, $2.50.] Published Monday.

For sheer artistry—beauty of form, skilful creation of pattern, and clear, lucid style—this new novel by Elizabeth Bowen is a delight. But it is something more than fine writing: it is the poignant, exquisite picture of a young girl as she starts to face life alone.

Elizabeth Bowen.

Portia Quayne at 16 is an orphan. For a year she is to stay in the London home of her half-brother and his wife, but she feels immediately that she is not welcome there. The house is a thing of icy perfection, aristocratic, and shining. Everything in it is regulated to suit Anna, the adored wife of Thomas, the half-brother. The two live an utterly selfish, narrow life that does not admit any third person.

Portia can turn to only one friend, Matchett, the housekeeper, and it is through her shrewd, steely eyes that the reader sees the whole background of the Quaynes, learns of the strange tragedy of the last years of Portia's father and mother, and sees the intimate workings of the present household. The girl, in her diary, carries the story further.

It is inevitable that in this atmosphere of artificiality and decadence she experiences "the death of the heart." Instead of the bread of kindness and affection she is given a stone. Anna ridicules her, is amused by her, and then is antagonized by passages in the diary which she secretly reads.

The frantic flight of the young girl to the only person she feels will help her is one of the most moving parts of the book. And the end is as inevitable as life itself.

"The Death of the Heart" is quiet, subtle, extremely beautiful, and deeply moving—a memorable novel.

Tale of Tenement Life

"Here Comes a Candle," by Storm Jameson. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published Tuesday.

The action in this new tale by Storm Jameson takes place in an ancient house, once magnificent but now cut up and made into poor shops and tenements, in the heart of London. New Moon Yard boasts of a night club, an Italian café, and a cabinet maker's small establishment, but for the rest its inhabitants are down-at-the heel figures: an impecunious young aviator, an elderly anarchist, a Negro evangelist, a woman of no reputation, a senile pauper who has seen better days, and a doctor who is a drunkard, to mention only a few.

Their lives and stories are all strung together, like beads on a cord, to create a warm, human, compelling drama. You come to know each person and to understand his joys and his problems. The plot gathers momentum and there is taut suspense until the final crash, long anticipated, takes place before your eyes.

New Helen Hull Novel

"Frost Flower," by Helen Hull. [Coward-McCann, $2.50.] Published Monday.

This narrative about an American family is as highly emotional and full of sentiment as Elizabeth Bowen's book is restrained and finely distilled. Helen Hull simply writes all over the place with tremendous gusto and verve. She tells you every last thing about the Collings family from the indiscretion Mrs. Collings committed twenty years ago and which is now, at this late date, rearing its ugly head again and threatening her security, to the toothache which finally drives Mr. C. to the dentist.

Phyllis has plenty to worry about beside her own trouble. Her father, Major, is suffering from a bad heart; her daughter is at the perilous age which balks at authority and plunges recklessly into danger; her son has bashed himself up in the family car, and her brother discovers his wife is a cruel hypocrite. That's a pretty kettle of fish for any woman to handle!

Helen Hull steers her heroine through one predicament after another, saving the tensest moments for the end. "Frost Flower" is no rare orchid of a novel, but it's entertaining and plausible.

Literary Reminiscenses

"The Literary Life and the Hell with It," by Whit Burnett. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published a week ago Thursday.

Here's something to talk about over your cocktails. Whit Burnett, one time journalist, author, and now editor of Story magazine, may not possess what a friend of his calls "total recall," but he does remember 276 pages' worth. In these reminiscences he chats about everything from his first meeting with Dreiser and what he [Burnett] thinks about amateur authors and their output to Vienna in the balmy days. He darts from Utah to Manhattan to Jamaica, and from Tess Slesinger and Rex Stout to Gertrude Stein.

He explains in his dedication that the title of this book "can be taken as much for a simple explanation of the literary life as a malediction." Among the many laughs scattered through the pages one of the best is on "hammock writing." Another is furnished by the chapter on "dear old Græbisch."

"The Literary Life" is light, amusing, witty—just the tonic to take on a dull, gray winter day.

Dorothy Richardson's Long Work Issued in 4 Volumes

Dorothy Richardson received great critical acclaim, but no popular response from the reading public, when the first volume of her literary innovation, "Pilgrimage," was published in 1915. Assorted List of Poetry for Varied Tastes

BY RUSSELL MAC FALL.

"Perhaps a translation can never be more than a plaster cast of the original marble," writes M. D. Herter Norton apropos of Translations from the Poetry of Rainer Maria Rilke [Norton, $2.50]. In keeping with this, the translations are printed on facing pages with the German text and have been kept purposely literal. The contents include selections from the early poems, "Book of Pictures," "New Poems," and the entire "Life of the Virgin Mary" cycle.

A book which departs from orthodox form is In Dreams Begin Responsibilities [New Directions, $2.50], a story, a verse play, a long poem with prose interludes, and lyrics, from the agile pen of Delmore Schwartz. The long poem, "Coriolanus and His Mother," and some of the lyrics best represent the poet's wit and social message. Kenneth Fearing also belongs among the insurgents. Dead Reckoning [Random, $1.25], his third book, superficially recalls e. e. cummings, but it is bitter and critical, where cumming prefers to jest.

It is a staggering fact that Merrill Moore, a 34 year old physician, has written 50,000 sonnets, but it would not be poetically important except that many of them are excellent. M [Harcourt, $5], as the title indicates, gathers together a thousand into a roughly autobiographical sequence which Louis Untermeyer calls "rich disorganization."

Slow Wall [Knopf, $2] includes a number of new poems by Leonora Speyer, as well as such familiar ones as "Hills About Jerusalem" and "Ballad of a Lost House." "Summer Boarders" and "Pompeian Quatrains" are among the notable new ones.

Negro Voices [Harrison, $1.50], an anthology edited by Beatrice M. Murphy, is published to give opportunity for expression to the younger poets of a race which has limited means for publication. Among its four score or more contributors are mothers, high school pupils, and colored men and women of every station and condition of education. But the standard is high, the selection capable, and the content justifies the anthology. Frank Marshall Davis, Lucia Mae Pitts, Inez M. Thurman, and Frank A. Young represent Chicagoland.

The Best Poems of 1938 [Harcourt, $2] is the seventh annual of its kind. Edited by Thomas Moult, it gives a rapid conspectus of contemporary American and English lyrics published in magazines.

Dorothy Quick is most widely known as a writer of fiction, but her brief poems in Spears Into Life [Putnam, $2] reveals her as a poet of crisp style and lyric feeling. Collected Poems [Dodd-Mead, $2] is a memorial to the late Judge John Jerome Rooney of New York undertaken by his friend, Edward Markham. Rooney found time in a busy career to write many verses, the best known of which is "Men Behind the Guns." Another garner of a busy life which has not been too full for poetic expression is Poems [privately printed], by Henry A. Pershing of South Bend, Ind. The subjects make them of especial interest to Hoosiers.

Two New Yorkers [Humphries, $1.75] is something of a departure in publishing. It brings together fourteen lyrics by Alfred Kreymborg and fifteen reproductions of prints by Alexander Kruse on the basis of a kinship of style and subject.

Why miss this year—as you did last year—so many new books you would deeply enjoy?

THE self-examination provided at the left will show the degree to which you may have allowed procrastination to keep you from reading new books which you want very much to read. Over 200,000 families—persons like yourself—have found a subscription to the Book-of-the-Month Club a really effectual means of solving this problem.

You are not obliged, as a member of the Club, to take the book-of-the-month its judges choose. Nor are you obliged to buy one book every month from the Club.

Publishers submit all their important books to us. These go through the most careful reading routine now in existence. At the end of this sifting process, our five judges choose one book as the book-of-the-month.

You receive a carefully written report about this book in advance of its publication. If you decide from this report that it is a book you really want, you let it come to you. If not, you merely sign and mail a slip, saying, "Don't want it."

You Still Browse In Bookstores

Scores of other recommendations are made to help you choose among all new books with discrimination.

If you want to buy one of these from the Club, you can get it by merely asking for it. Or you can use these reports (we find that most of our members do) to guide you in buying these miscellaneous recommended books from a favored bookseller.

In other words, instead of limiting your reading, this system widens it. You can browse among the books as always, but now do it intelligently; you know what to look for.

Once and for all this system really keeps you from missing the new books you want to read. You do actually buy and read those you want, instead of confessing sadly to friends, "I never got around to reading that!"

In addition, there is a great money-saving. Time and again our judges' choices are books you ultimately find yourself buying anyway, because they are so widely talked about. (Outstanding examples of these in 1938 were THE YEARLING, WITH MALICE TOWARD SOME, THE HORSE AND BUGGY DOCTOR, and a list of others too long to include here.) For every two books-of-the-month you buy you receive, free, one of our book-dividends.

Free Books You Get

These book-dividends represent a unique system of saving through quantity production. The resulting economy is extraordinary. For every $1 you spend for a book-of-the-month you actually receive over 75¢ back in the form of free books.

Some of the actual book-dividends distributed within recent months is the best indication of what can be done by this system: they included BARTLETT'S FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS (a special $6 edition); JOSEPH IN EGYPT (2 vols., $5); the Pulitzer Prize edition of ANDREW JACKSON, by Marquis James ($5); MADAME CURIE, by Eve Curie ($3.50); THE ARTS, by Van Loon ($3.95). These books were given to members—not sold, mind you!

What's Your Obligation

You pay no yearly sum to belong to the Book-of-the-Month Club. You pay nothing, except for the books you buy. Your only obligation as a member is to agree to buy four books-of-the-month a year from the Club. These may be either current or past selections.

Gay Week-End of Parties Will Start Tonight

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT cannot be said that the mid-winter doldrums have arrived, for engagement pads are filled with parties for today and tomorrow. Young and old will be dancing everywhere tonight, the evening being one of the gayest of the winter's Saturdays.

To the Harvey restaurant at 308 South Michigan avenue will go the city's swing music fans and all of the gay north side young married and unmarried persons who are friends of the board of Emerson Settlement House.

The Army and Navy will meet to dance and have supper in the Gold room of the Congress hotel at the annual Army and Navy ball. A dinner-dance at the Onwentsia club called the Midwinter will keep one hundred or more of that suburb's dancing set from making a trip into town for Saturday night gayety.

The Emerson House board, which believes in giving its money's worth in entertainment, is featuring swing music at this benefit, its first dinner-dance. A special music committee has selected what it considers the two best no-name swing bands in town.

The street level room at the restaurant is being decorated as the Latin quarter in Paris with its cafés and gay atmosphere. Two additional bars are being set up, and the smaller of the orchestras will play at cocktail time.

The large downstairs room of the restaurant will be used for dinner and dancing. It will be decorated with hundreds of colored balloons. More of the balloons will be tied to about 50 statuettes of Beppo, the clown, which will be placed about the room.

Among those who have reserved tables for dinner parties are the Winthrop Coolidges, the Corwith Hamills, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont III., Ernest Byfield, the junior Edwin M. Stanleys, Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, the senior Mrs. Byron Harvey, the Daggett Harveys, the Morrison Wauds, the Paul Rowans, the Allyn D. Warrens, and the Robert Critchells.

Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr., chairman, has announced that the tickets her committee has not disposed of will be on sale at the door.

High Ranking Officers Will Be Special Guests.

Gen. Stanley Ford, commander of the 6th Corps area, and Mrs. Ford, and Admiral Hayne Ellis, commander of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and Mrs. Ellis, head the list of especial guests at the Army and Navy ball, which is the 15th annual one.

Dress uniforms, decorations, and flags will assist in making the occasion colorful as well as gay.

A petition asking that the next Army-Navy football game be played in Chicago will be circulated. Gen. James A. Ryan is president of the Army and Navy club.

The party at the Onwentsia is being given by a secret committee, probably the same one that has organized these midwinter dinner dances in other years.

Another dinner-dance tonight is one that Miss Eleonore Thompson is giving at home in Astor street for Miss Joan Ford and Harger Rollo, who are to be married next Saturday.

There are dinner and dancing on the subdebutante program, too. Mrs. Warner Baird, Mrs. George Buffington, and Mrs. Henry Hooper Jr. are combining to give a dinner at the Racquet club for the young people who belong to the Dance club. Following dinner the fifty boys and girls in the group will go to the Girls' Latin school for the fifth dance of the season.

The student government of the Roycemore school will give a prom at 9:30 o'clock tonight in the school gymnasium. Joy Garrison, president of the student government, will lead the prom.

Junior Horse Show at Onwentsia Club.

Young Lake Foresters have an important engagement this afternoon in the Onwentsia club's riding arena. At 2:45 o'clock today the Lake Forest Junior Horse show takes place. The first event of the show is a costume parade for all of the exhibitors. Other events include a walk, trot and canter exhibit for beginners and advanced riders, beginners and advanced jumping events, a potato race, and a bareback exhibit.

Miss Charlotte and Miss Rosemary O'Brien are entertaining at cocktails tomorrow afternoon. The party will be held in the apartment at 1420 Lake Shore drive that their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. O'Brien, have taken for the winter. The O'Briens will move back to their home in Highland Park in May.

Other Interesting Events of Week-end.

The scholarship committee of the Francis Parker school is sponsoring a concert by Mischa Elman at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Civic Opera house. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams, Henry Monroe, Miss Emily Goehst, and Mr. and Mrs. Billings McArthur are some of those on the large committee which is headed by the Rev. Theodore C. Hume, Mrs. Arnold Joerns, Mrs. Convers Goddard, and Edwin W. Eisendrath.

Members of the Fourth Presbyterian church are making plans to be at the Great Northern theater tomorrow afternoon to hear Maurine Parzybok, contralto and soloist at the church, as soloist with the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Both choirs of the church are sponsoring the concert.

Among those who have taken boxes for the concert are Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schulze, Dr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, the Trade Schools Highly Praised at Graduation

Mid term graduating exercises for several hundred students of Chicago's elementary and special schools were held yesterday and last night.

The largest group was 301 young men and women who completed vocational studies at the Washburne Trade school. These exercises were held in Thorne hall on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university.

"Trained men and women are the substantial citizens of our country," Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, told the class. "Youths with untrained minds and hands become the misfits of industry—the liabilities of home and state."

The school board's vocational training program was praised by John Murphy, chairman of the apprentice committee of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and J. Walter Collins, secretary of the Electrical Contractors' association.

"We must train young people as craftsmen and artisians," Mr. Collins said." Just as much as we need to prepare them for occupations requiring academic courses."

Washburne school is the job training center of the public school system. Established in 1907, it teaches mechanics, beauty culture, sewing, millinery, electrictly, drafting, wood working, and printing, accounting and other trades and commercial studies.

At the Dante adult education center, twenty men and women representing nine nationalities received elementary school diplomas.

Richard Markese, 14 years old, who kept up his studies during three years of illness from a bone ailment, received his diploma at the Columbus elementary school. The illness necessitated 40 minor operations and kept him in steel braces or on crutches most of the time he was not in the hospital. Despite this he was elected mayor of the school. He lives at 2329 Cortez street.

Conditioned Reflex.

Members of Cornelia Otis Skinner's Candida company stared at her in amazement and amusement the other day at rehersal before the Shaw play opened at the Grand. In the scene where Candida enters with the lamp she has been filling in the kitchen, Miss Skinner came on stage without the lamp, but holding up her hand, grasping empty air. She had forgotten to pick up the real lamp. A throw-back to her years of working without scenery or props.

• • •

One of Miss Skinner's stories about her famous father concerns the time in his young days when he was stage manager with a small company playing one night stands. The company, though small, had a large répertoire of plays and comedies that were rotated in nightly succession. The troupe opened in Terre Haute, Ind. Half way through the first act the leading man, a pompous scene chewer of the old school, forgot his lines. He sidled over to the wings, where Skinner sat immersed in the pages of the New York Clipper.

"What's the line?" hissed the frantic actor.

Skinner dropped the Clipper and stretched a hand toward the high stack of dog-eared manuscripts beside his chair.

"What," he hissed back," is the play?"

Brother Rats.

There is an organization in town called the Mouse club that meets every two weeks. Mutual interest of the members, fondness for cheese. The men call themselves brother rats; the women, "mousie spreads." (The women bring cheese spreads to the meetings; the men, cheeses.) Unfortunately the nineteen pounds of camembert, rocquefort, goat's milk, Danish blue, and other cheeses purchased for Wednesday night's meeting of the Mouse club at the Brevoort never got there on account of the delinquency of a couple of brother rats entrusted with its delivery.

The Housewife

Housewives who have more than one grubby task to do during the day, jobs that leave grime and dirt in their knuckles and imbedded around the finger nails, will be relieved to know there is a lotion on the market that removes this soil quickly and efficiently.

Keep a bottle of this cleanser and softener for the skin and after an especially dirty task, apply it. No soap and water are needed. Simply put some of the liquid on your skin and rub it in. Keep rubbing and watch the soil come out. You'll be surprised, as we were, to see how much is removed. This lotion is not sticky nor greasy, and it contains no alcohol. It's not at all expensive. Wool Evening Coats Big News of Style Season

BY RHEA SEEGER.

This winter will go down in fashion history as the one that brought wool evening coats. A venturesome idea to relieve the shopping boredom of seeing too many velvet creations, the wool wave was a tremendous success.

For the first time you could find a distinctive wool coat, with or without glittering trim, and made in smooth streamlines and in a choice of colors that was postively unbelieveable. They're still going strong, and prices are down within reach of the limited budgets.

Following these long wool coats came another revolutionary idea. . . . short, boxy type evening models in the softest velvet. Red, white and black beauties are cut on a Chinese coolie coat silhouette, the sleeves long and wide, but not too wide. They are collarless but have a high, round snug neckline. These, too, have price marks that will please the average shopper. They are coats of startling appearance because of their color and the additional high fashion lure of being handsomely quilted, in an old fashioned long diamond shape design. Though quilted, there isn't too much bulk. The interlining has been placed in reasonable layers and the results are perfect. Most of these coats just cover the lower hipline, and every one of them can be worn with all-season clothes except, of course, during the sultriest nights of summer. A pair of wide flat buttons, fashioned in a clasp combine and of the same color as the velvet do double duty as decoration and closing device.

And when you talk of the fashion gifts of the winter don't overlook the big neck squares of brilliantly colorful plaids in swishing taffeta. Some are in hectic saffron contrasts, some in unusually mixed pink tones, some have deep fringed edges. There are as many as five colors in some. These offer brilliantly new color accents for dark coats and suits. Muffle a yard square of such swish around your collarline and defy the darkest midwinter day to keep you depressed.

Train High School Girl for Stardom of Clara Bow and Harlow

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Lana Turner, a high school girl not yet 18, is being groomed for the stardom once held by Clara Bow and the late Jean Harlow, it was disclosed today.

Anita Loos, writer of some of Miss Harlow's successes, described Lana as having the appeal of both Bow and Harlow plus the skill of Laurette Taylor. Miss Loos, the author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," will fashion a story for the newcomer.

Lana was said to have been on the verge of marrying a young attorney but has changed her mind in the face of the film success held out to her. She said officials of M-G-M, whose studio school she has been attending for the last year, didn't tell her not to get married "but they indicated I'd probably get farther if I stayed single."

Chinese Fan Palm Blooms First Time in 70 Years

An immense Chinese fan palm is in bloom in the Garfield Park conservatory, its first blooming in more than 70 years. In 1913 another Chinese fan palm bloomed at the conservatory for the first and last time. It grew so large it was cut down last year. The one now spreading its small golden blossoms across its leaves, 45 feet from the ground, will bloom for another two weeks.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Death in the Ozarks.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 27.—In response to a paragraph that appeared here recently about the cruelty that is practiced occasionally in motion pictures to get thrilling pictorial effects, the following letter is pertinent. It is signed by Sydney H. Coleman, president of the American Humane association, and to it is attached charges against the filming of "Jesse James," which the motion picture industry might well consider and answer. Mr. Coleman charges that one horse was killed brutally, another injured, and other horses thrown violently, apparently by violent means. He incloses affidavits to the killing of one horse, and I submit these herewith to the bosses of 20th Century-Fox, Darryl Zanuck and William Goetz, both of whom are horse owners.

"Dear Mr. Sullivan," writes Coleman. "I am delighted that in your column on stuntmen of the movies you have attacked the use of the Running W. [the wire that is attached to a horse's front leg to pull him violently to the ground], and other inhuman practices. I am inclosing some data with reference to the filming of the scene in which horses are hurled over a cliff in the picture 'Jesse James.'"

The first affidavit is from Irwin Elwood Cook and sworn to before C. M. Pooler, notary public of Osage Beach, Ozark county, Mo. The horses were blindfolded, says Cook, who was engaged as a guard, and then tipped down a greased slide or chute, the blindfolds being removed just as the horses were catapulted to the slick runway. "The first horse to make the 'jump' of seventy feet was a buckskin colored horse, which was painted or dyed or colored to appear as a strawberry roan with a blaze face. A chute had been constructed on top of the cliff with a collapsible end leading into the greased slide which projected out toward the water. In front of the chute a blanket had been stretched across the entrance, preventing the horse from seeing the sky or the depth to the water. The horse was blindfolded. At a given signal, the chute was dropped and the blindfold removed. Upon hitting the greased slide, the horse slipped and fell and went sailing into space with his legs sticking straight out. He struck the water, hindquarters first, and was badly injured due to the fact of landing on his right hindquarter and back. The horse submerged, partially rising to the surface of the water before drowning. Attempts were made to rescue the horse by throwing lariats over the few inches of nose that came to the surface. This failing, the horse again submerged and disappeared from view. Grappling hooks recovered the body of the horse and the saddle. The saddle was needed to use on another horse to retake the scene—the body of the drowned horse was taken ashore and burned."

There are affidavits from George Whitcomb Gore, Edward Burke, the sherif, the district attorney, and Missouri natives who were employed at the scene. They elaborate on the picture of callousness by pointing out that four horses were brought to the cliff, apparently in anticipation of failure on the first attempts. The second horse, apparently in sensing what was happening, jumped clear of the chute, not landing on the greased slide. He struck the side of the bluffs and then rebounded to the water, feet first, escaping death by an equine miracle.

In presenting the letter from Mr. Coleman of the American Humane association and the affidavits relating to the cruelty allegedly practiced in the filming of "Jesse James," I open the column to 20th Century-Fox for an answer. I trust sincerely that the answer will vindicate the movies.

A Young Artist Paints Animals with Rare Skill

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

John T. McCutcheon charged by rhinos! Fact or fiction? Whichever it may be, a vivid pictorial account of it may be seen in the exhibition of paintings by James Vlasaty at the Ackerman galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue.

Vlasaty is a young Chicago artist who has been painting for the last several months at the Brookfield zoo, the Lincoln park zoo, and even picking up ideas at the Field museum. His work is thought highly of by those who know animals. Robert Bean Jr., Floyd Young, and Dr. Wilfred H. Osgood back him against any comer in getting an authentic portrait of a beast—lion, elephant, or panda.

In the present first one man show of his work Mr. Vlasaty offers superb presentations of a number of wild animals. The chipmunks and baby panda are no more delightful than the larger paintings of moose and tiger. The artist uses water color throughout and the medium is highly successful. The paintings are alive, picturesque, and decorative as well as being authentic.

Vlasaty does not keep himself in the jungle. Far from it. Among his finest work are the portraits of dogs. The wire-haired, cocker spaniel, police dog, and sealyham heads, each a brilliant portrait of the individual animal, are fascinating.

The group of two white Persian cats is striking and the portrait of a horse, just a head, is well done, but neither cat nor horse quite equals the dog pictures. The exhibition will run to Feb. 9.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There's a new compact out that will do a great deal to counteract the prejudice many women have against cake powder. It's a good looking vanity, very thin, light in weight, and well made. It's flat as a flapjack, too, and won't take up much room in the purse.

But the big news about it is the quality of the cake powder. The powder contained in it is a well known one and a good one, pressed into compact form. Some cake powders are marred by the use of an imperfect "binder" which makes them chalky and changes their texture completely. In this new vanity the texture of the powder is as fine and fluffy as it is in its loose form.

The powder whisks onto the puff at the slightest touch, but it has the great advantage of not tumbling all over your person and your pocketbook as you dust your nose. The puff is a nice, generous one—not one of those postage stamp affairs that are dainty but useless.

The powder comes in six shades—all of them flattering.

The powder puff situation these days is certainly better than it used to be; we notice fewer women flaunting soiled puffs than we used to. But we still feel that women with oily skins, or a tendency to acne, are not sufficiently aware of the necessity for an immaculate puff.

Those inexpensive cotton puffs, in all shapes and sizes and colors, that can be thrown away after EACH using are a great help in keeping that type of skin well groomed and well protected against infection. You can tuck six or eight of these in your purse of a morning, wrapped in a clean handkerchief, and toss them away after each powdering. They cost much less than a penny apiece.

Good Morning!

This is a good little spy melodrama. And timely!

Its subject matter is concerned with federal government activities in apprehending and bringing to justice an organiztion of spies known to be tapping United States munitions plants, chemical laboratories, and aircraft factories for information on secret formulas and plans. . . .

Who is the master mind of this aggregation? Who, his so able assistants? Those crack federal operatives, John Baxter and Ted Hall, with the aid of clever cohorts solve the mystery for you.

Ralph Bellamy and Regis Toomey give smart account of themselves as the hunters. . . . Walter Kingsford is slick, sleek, and resourceful as the spy overload. Excellent performances are contributed by Fay Wray and other supporting players.

The picture springs a number of surprises, has considerable suspense, and isn't too long. The story now and then seems far fetched—but everything that happens COULD happen. . . .

Gary Cooper, Once a Cowboy, Refuses to Herd Film Sheep

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Paramount studio reported today with a straight face that Gary Cooper, for the first time in his acting career, had flatly refused to obey instructions in playing a scene.

Cooper, who used to be a Montana cowboy, reverted to the traditional enmity between cowmen and sheepmen and declined to herd a flock of sheep in a picture.

"I'll be damned if I'll have anything to do with a bunch of sheep," Cooper was quoted as saying. "The men back home would give me the horse laugh."

Cooper had his way and was replaced in the scene by Ray Milland.

A Stranger in the Dark

(Copyright: 1939: By Frank R. Adams.)

SYNOPSIS.

The hero, pursued by a detective, is stopped in a Chicago railway depot by a young man, apparently dying, who gives him his wallet and baggage check to get him his medicine. He gets the sick man's bag, then, seeing the man being carried away on a stretcher, he uses the man's ticket, is on his way to Clovis, N. M., as John Bowman—an innocent fugitive, having taken the blame for missing bank funds to save his father. Before reaching Clovis he confesses his identity to Sheriff Tom Johnson, who boards the train to welcome John Bowman, whose father, Pete Bowman, is dying and longs to see the son separated by divorce from him since babyhood. The sheriff persuades him to take on the rôle. John's sister, Mary, and her fiancé, Charles Ferdinand, manager of her father's ranch, meet him in Amarillo and fly him to the ranch in Charles' plane. Mrs. Lodge, wife of Pete's physician and guest, is with them. Our hero falls instantly in love with Mary and dislikes Charles, a handsome show-off, who is the pet of Pete's sister, Matilda, who had loved Charles' father. The hero meets paralyzed old Pete Bowman, kept a virtual prisoner by Matilda. Pete asks him to stay and help Mary, and gives him his guns. Charles is carrying on an affair with Mrs. Lodge and even Dr. Lodge knows about it. In the middle of the night Pete sends his nurse for "John" and has him open the safe and burn a paper. When Aunt Matilda finds him there she fires the nurse. "John" sends for Dr. Lodge.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

ANIMOSITY.

It was a bad five minutes before Dr. Lodge got there. Aunt Matilda refused to speak to me when I asked commonplace questions. Neither of us sat down. I think Pete Bowman enjoyed it. From a glance I got out of the corner of his eye I believe he would have applauded if he could have had the use of his hands.

Dr. Lodge seemed a little drowsy when the nurse wheeled him in. I surmised that the effects of his sleeping medicine hadn't quite worn off yet.

Much to my surprise I was allowed to explain the situation and my stand in the matter without interruption. Aunt Matilda stood by with her lips grimly pressed together until I had finished.

Finally she spoke. "This young man, after never coming near his father for over twenty years, suddenly arrives on the scene and thinks he knows more about the case than we who have slaved over it—you and I—giving the best years of our lives so that my brother has been properly cared for."

That was clever of her, including the doctor with herself as a fellow-slave.

Dr. Lodge, however, was not particularly impressed. In fact he yawned prodigiously.

"There's no use of getting upset or upsetting Pete over this matter," he declared. "You're probably both right. There should be a professional nurse on the job, but if you don't like this one, Aunt Matilda, I'll get a new one out from Clovis or Amarillo in the morning. In the meantime——"

"In the meantime I won't have that lazy incompetent in this room." Aunt Matilda's voice rose a little.

"All right, all right," Dr. Lodge said soothingly. His faculties were coming back to him now and with them his professional manner. "We can fix that. You must get some rest, Matilda, so you'll be ready for the wedding tomorrow, but you needn't leave Nurse Acadia in charge, either, if you feel that way about it. It so happens that Mrs. Lodge is a graduate nurse—a very good one, too—and I'm sure she'll be glad to take over for the balance of the night." He looked at his wrist watch. "It's after four already." He addressed the nurse. "Go to my bungalow and ask my wife to come over at once. I'll tell her what it's all about when she gets here."

After Nurse Acadia was gone Dr. Lodge, now thoroughly alert, stuck to his bedside manner. He excluded all chance of further argument and recriminations by doing all the talking himself. He spoke not at all of Pete Bowman's case, but instead recounted some of his own personal experiences.

The nurse was gone quite a while. We were all watching the door more or less expectantly and, when it opened next, Mary, who stood there a moment looking at us with anxious eyes, was the center of all attention.

"Is father——?" she started to say.

"No," Dr. Lodge interrupted. "Everything is all right."

She had on over her nightgown about what you'd expect her to wear, a navy blue tailored flannel dressing gown, very simple, very young and very sweet. She came quite naturally to me. "I had a bad dream. I thought that you had gone away. It was so vivid that I went in to reassure myself. But you really were gone and I had to find out about it."

She put her arms around me and we held each other tight for a moment.

"Very touching, isn't it, doctor?" was Aunt Matilda's mirthless comment. "He stays away for twenty years and now she can't let her worthless brother out of her sight."

Mary might have said something in my defense but I pressed her slightly as a signal to be silent. I was watching Pete Bowman, and he approved.

Before anything further could be said Nurse Acadia really did come back. There was a funny look in her eyes. "Mrs. Lodge isn't in her room."

"She sleeps very soundly," the doctor said, "probably didn't hear your rap."

"I went in," the little nurse continued. "She wasn't there."

Dr. Lodge was still in charge. "There's no sense in everybody standing around shivering and yawning. I'll stay here myself until Mrs. Lodge gets back and——"

That sentence wasn't finished either. Charles Ferdinand walked in wearing a huge white terry cloth bathrobe over black bathing trunks—nothing else. If you think that costume isn't becoming to a blond giant, guess again.

"I was swimming in the pool and when I saw lights around in various places," he said easily, "I thought that Father Bowman——"

"Not yet," interrupted Aunt Matilda with what I thought was the world's high point in lack of tact.

Mary released herself from my embrace. She didn't go to Charles, though. "It's awfully late or awfully early, I don't know which, to go swimming, isn't it, Charles?"

"Late, I guess, darling," he answered easily. "I had a lot of work to do on the books. I was tired and I just dived in for a quick bath."

"Dived in?" Dr. Lodge repeated. "Got wet all over, then?"

"Of course. Why?"

"I just thought it was funny the water didn't wash off the lipstick you've got on your cheek."

"Lipstick—where?" Charles started to raise his hand to his face and then arrested the motion. He was a fast thinker, that lad. "O that isn't lipstick—it's iodine I put on a place where I nicked myself shaving."

"That's right," corroborated Aunt Matilda hastily. "I remember giving him some from my own medicine closet."

The doctor laughed, lightly but dangerously as he held up his hand. "You go to too much trouble and do me too much honor. It isn't worth it, dear lady. I admit it's iodine. It doesn't matter." Then he changed his manner brusquely. "Mary, if you'll do me a favor I wish you'd please go to my bungalow and bring Mrs. Lodge here."

"But," said the nurse, "she isn't——"

Dr. Lodge stopped her with a gesture. "She'll be there now," he assured her.

Charles said he would take the message but the doctor insisted that he would prefer to have Mary do it.

Mary left.

Her absence and the portent of her return left our little group in a state of supercharged animosity. The doctor's professional good nature failed him for once—he had no entertaining anecdotes to relate. He devoted himself to reading the nurse's chart which was hung by clamps to the foot of Pete Bowman's bed.

Surprisingly enough it was Charles who supplied the final conversational break.

He addressed Pete Bowman. "We had a little line trouble this afternoon, sir. Somebody cut our wire over near Rainbow Basin. We didn't lose any cattle that I know of but the boys did have a clash with some of the neighbors later this evening over there. They found Mosher and some of his friends prowling around and warned 'em off. I thought you'd like to know we're still puttin' the fear o' God into 'em just like you used to yourself."

"I wish they'd shot Mosher," Aunt Matilda said piously. "He's a thieving whelp if there ever was one."

It was then that Mary came in, followed in a moment by Mrs. Lodge.

Every kitchen which is fairly well stocked has the components of at least five or six simple fruit salads at almost any time. Even if oranges are the only fresh fruit on hand, there probably are enough of staples such as onions, raisins, dates, coconut, cheese; canned fruits such as cherries, pineapple; fresh vegetables such as celery or green pepper, to make possible any of a number of salads. Any of these items I have mentioned combines well with oranges. So, too, do bananas, fresh or canned grapefruit, avocado slices, and on and on, almost ad infinitum.

This group of fruit salads doesn't boast any unusual distinction, but tries only to represent what may be found frequently in the average home. My purpose is to show how easy it is to fix a hurry-up fruit salad at almost any time.

EASY-TO-MAKE FRUIT SALADS

APPLE SALADS—Diced apples, celery, nuts, slightly sweetened cooked dressing; the same combination plus sliced orange and dates, or plus grapes; sliced red apple and stuffed prune; diced apple with raisins; sliced apple, orange and avocado; diced apple, date, banana and marshmallow; diced apple, chopped peanuts and dates.

BANANA SALADS—Bananas rolled in chopped nuts; bananas with drained, sweetened cranberry sauce; bananas, oranges and dates; bananas and stuffed prunes or dates; bananas and pineapple; bananas and avocado with pimiento garnish.

CRANBERRY SALADS — Ground raw cranberries, sweetened celery and nuts, with cooked dressing; cranberry sauce in canned peach halves; cranberry sauce with diced oranges and nuts.

GRAPEFRUIT OR ORANGE — Grapefruit and orange with or without cherry garnish; grapefruit, orange and chopped chives; grapefruit, orange or both, with avocado and tomato, or with either alone; sliced orange and sliced onion; orange or grapefruit with stuffed prune or date; orange or grapefruit with cranberry sauce; orange, pineapple and coconut; orange, grapefruit and green pepper; orange or grapefruit with cheese balls.

CANNED FRUITS—Any mixture of canned fruits; pineapple, ground carrots and raisins; pineapple with cucumber slices; peaches or apricots with cheese balls; plums stuffed with cheese; pears with currant jelly in the dressing; pears with cheese balls; pears with chili sauce in the dressing.

And this is only the beginning. Any of these fruits may be served solo, of course, on salad greens with any dressing you like. The suggestion of chili sauce in dressing for canned pears may be carried over to apply to bananas, peaches, apricots and oranges, too. French type dressing, mayonnaise, or cooked dressing may be the base. The sharp accent which the chili sauce gives is splendid for the blandness of these fruits.

Our booklet, "Everyday Adventures in Salads," contains dozens of good recipes for fruit and vegetable salads, together with their dressings. It's 5 cents by mail. Requests should be addressed to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

The Curve Is Important in Beauty Today

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

What is meant by the curved line of beauty advocated by today's fashions, is simply a nicely developed bustline. Not more heavily curved hips nor more rounded waistline!

It wasn't so many years ago, some of us recall, when the flat-chested sister scorned the woman with the curved line. But fashion caught up with the flat one and has been urging her into a more feminine silhouette development, until today the flat-chested one hasn't any place in the scheme of really decorative women.

Well, there's hope for every ill the silhouette, face and hair suffer, as you know. To begin with, there are clever brassieres fashioned to lift and mold thin sagging breasts. If the breasts are too small to fill out the bras, they can be padded out with the addition of cotton to achieve a better shape.

But for permanency of beauty in this regard, the small breasted, thin and sagging one must go in for some exercise. Deep breathing exercises and good posture are perhaps the simplest measures to recommend for any bodily ill. Certainly, for the thin and flat-chested, they are the perfect means to beauty. They can be done any time, many times during the day, with the greatest of ease, too.

We would suggest that the flat-chested sisters get the early morning deep-breathing habit just to get their day started rightly. Practice deep breathing before an open window. Stand erect with hands on hips and take deep breaths, forcibly expanding the chest. If you will keep this up, you must elminate some of the flatness.

But poor posture is the real demon you must conquer. You never saw a thin girl with poor posture who had a chest line you'd want to own. Here is the sunken chest which makes the breasts sag in a homely way. Simply lifting the chest to its rightful height does a magic thing in creating the curved line.

Chic for the Older Woman

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

There's smartness for the older woman and chic for the young person in this frock with simple yet distinctive lines. The V neckline may have merely a contrasting facing, or it may adopt the treatment of a scalloped collar. The sleeves, puffed at the shoulders, may be long or short. Strategically placed darts lend a tailored finish to the shoulders, and also furnish a suitable amount of shirring for the bodice. Around the waist is a self-fabric or lether belt, and the flared skirt is gored.

Both prints and plain shades make up well. Dark colors are equally as suitable as pastels. Paris sends the news that all the shades of lavender are going to be tremendously popular this spring, and this should be good news to the matron, who likes to flatter the charming grayness of her hair.

Style No. 2966 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with 1 yard of binding for the neckline.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Young Soprano Lives Her Songs in the Right Way

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A young soprano named Burnette Bradley offered in Kimball hall last night a program which consisted almost entirely of unfamiliar songs. That the recital was a success is due to the persuasive, personal, and highly musical style which the singer employed. Less gifted recitalists would hardly dare to withhold their "Danny Boys" so resolutely nor to throw in only a single "Moon Marketing" even at the very end!

Familiar German, French, and American composers were represented on the program, but the songs, for the most party, came from the lesser known portions of their output. High points of the evening were Erich Wolff's ecstatic "Alle Dinge Haben Sprache," the Child's Air from Ravel's "L'Enfant et les Sortiliges," and Vittorio Giannini's "Tell Me, O Blue, Blue Sky." The last named composer, by the way, is the brother of the Dusolina Giannini who sang with the Chicago City Opera company last season.

In these songs and others Miss Bradley distinguished herself by seeming to live her music rather than merely sing it. This is the sort of thing which unconsciously produces the right phrasings and tone colorings and which frees an artist's mind from a nerve wracking search for "effects."

The young singer has a finely textured voice of no very wide range. High notes have a way of getting over on the toneless side once in a while. Also in the debit column of the Bradley ledger is the singer's distrust of a true pianissimo, a device which would have come in handy in much of the French group and would have made the songs even more expressive than they were.

Serge Prokofieff, Russian composer and pianist who was scheduled to play a recital here on Feb. 7, has canceled his American tour. The Adult Education council of Chicago, sponsor of the series in which Mr. Prokofieff was to appear, announced yesterday that Josef Lhevinne, Russian pianist now living in America, will play in Orchestra hall on Feb. 7 in his compatriot's stead.

Front Is Back and Vice Versa in This Sweater

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Women can be as "two-faced" as they like today and never have a guilty conscience if they wear this hand knitted sweater. The front is knitted in the stockinette stitch, with a two inch band of ribbing at the neck. The back is composed of knit 2, purl 2 ribbing above the waistband. The neck is straight across in both front and back so that the garment may be reversed with ease. The sleeves are straight and tight and knitted in the stockinette stitch with ribbing of K1, P1 at wrist. Instructions are available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions for knitting the "two-faced" sweater, No. X-137, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Too Crowded Quarters Are Hard on Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Solemnly we ponder: Why is Bill so out of bounds these days? Why is Audrey so irritable and restless?

Or we quiz ourselves: What is the matter with me? I'm getting to be a common scold; the children will get to actually dislike me.

Solemnly we get psychoanalytical, look for deep dyed faults or emotional disturbances! And all the while the cause of the constant friction isn't a complex, involved affair at all. It's a practical, simple difficulty: We live in too close quarters.

For right here is the truth of the matter: The concerns, actions, and interests of children and grownups are essentially different; and they can't happily and comfortably carry on their own affairs in the same small space at the same time. Think about it and you'll admit it's so.

Children like, because they need them, noise, activity, nonsense, and bodily freedom. Adults, that is the average parents in their ordinary indoor life, like quiet, neatness, cleanliness, order, and seriousness. The two conceptions of living don't jibe.

But since grownups and children do live together they have to learn to adapt themselves to each other. And that's as it should be, and can result in happiness and profit for both. But close association in a confined space needs to be broken up, particularly when babyhood and little childhood are past.

Boys and girls of 8 and 10 are like big, active, playful, vigorous puppies. They need elbow room and "roughhouse," noise and nonsense and shouting.

If one has a large house or grounds, or easy access to outdoors, the children can be natural and still not be so close to their grownups that they interfere with each other.

But if the family lives in such a way that the boys and girls must play in the same room with parents and relatives, or near them, in a small apartment, there is almost sure to be friction.

Do two things in fairness to your 8, 9, and 10 year olds—first, if you live in close quarters, provide some sort of active outdoor life for them. If neighborhood playing isn't desirable, go to nearby parks [or send them], or make some connection with a group. And, second, develop in yourself a motherly hardihood of nerves.

As an afterthought, here's a third thing: Sacrifice [for sacrifice it will seem] some of even your small house or apartment to the pursuit of the hobbies or special interests of your inbetween boys and girls.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

"South's two heart bid was a compromise response. He was a little too weak for a three spade bid, and too strong for two spades, hence chose the in-between heart response. When North twice raised hearts, South saw no reason to persist with spades.

"West opened the club ten, dummy covered with the queen, and East won with the king. Now, since the lead looked like a doubleton [to both East and declarer, the club ace was washed and a low club was led to the third trick. Declarer could have discarded a diamond, but naturally was afraid that West might be able to ruff with a low trump and that the heart queen still would be outstanding in East's hand for a good trick. Moreover, since declarer now had at least one club trick in dummy which he always could use for a diamond discard, the best chance of making an overtrick was to ruff with the heart ten and hope that West would be unable to top it. The ten spot, however, was overruffed by West with the queen, and a heart was returned. The ace, king, and jack of hearts were cashed, and declarer then led a low diamond to his ace. Next, he carefully cashed his own last trump, discarding a low spade from dummy.

"As will be seen, this play resulted in making matters very uncomfortable for the defenders. A low spade now was led to the queen, the ace was cashed, and then the club queen provided a discard for South's six of diamonds. The club queen also gave West a severe headache. In order to play to this trick he had to let go his spade stopper or his diamond king, either of which would be fatal. Since there was a chance that declarer did not have four spades, West naturally and correctly chose to let go a spade, but now declarer's king and ten of spades became perfectly good for the fulfilling tricks.

"R. W. W., New Kensington, Pa."

DE PAUL HANDS ST. JOHN'S FIRST DEFEAT, 40 TO 26

Neu Scores 13 Points in Garden Battle.

Games Tonight

Minnesota at Notre Dame.
Chicago at Ohio State.
Drake at Loyola.
Butler at Michigan State.

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Led by Bobby Neu, sharpshooting forward, De Paul university of Chicago sent St. John's quintet of Brooklyn down to its first defeat of the year in Madison Square Garden tonight, 40 to 26. St. John's had won nine straight games.

It became evident early that De Paul was the better team. The Blue Demons took control after eight minutes and led at the half, 23 to 12. Their ability to snare rebounds from the backboard and thus retain posession of the ball kept the Demons ahead.

Neu Scores 13 Points.

In the first half Neu stepped up to the free throw line seven times and scored each time. Since he also sank a pair of field goals, he had 11 points before the game was half over. He got another basket in the second half.

Neither team did much to work the ball in close. De Paul had more chances, but it was set shooting on the part of both quintets that accounted for most of the points.

De Paul took a 36 to 17 lead with six minutes left in the game. St. John's rallied, but the Blue Demons coasted home with an easy victory. Lineups:

MINNESOTA VS. NOTRE DAME

Another Minnesota team will invade Notre Dame tonight. It will be the Gopher basketball quintet, which after having beaten seven pre-conference opponents and won four of five Big Ten contests—to take the Western conference lead—will attempt to reverse the result of recent Gopher contests at Notre Dame.

Two years ago a Minnesota five that had won the Big Ten championship was routed at Notre Dame. Then last fall, a Gopher football team that was on its way to the conference title, was badly beaten. Now the veteran Minnesota quintet, winner of twenty of its last twenty-one games, will attempt to defeat an Irish five that has run alternately hot and cold this season—and during the last week has been hot.

Minnesota took the Big Ten lead by coming from behind to defeat Illinois, 35 to 33, last Monday. The Gophers were paced by Gordon Addington, forward, who scored 13 points, including two points that won in the final minute. Notre Dame overwhelmed two eastern opponents over last week-end to set a three-day Notre Dame scoring record. The Irish whipped Canisius, 72 to 36, Saturday, then routed John Carroll, 74 to 37, Monday.

Maroons Face Buckeyes.

Chicago's Maroons will attempt to stop Ohio State's rush toward a tie for the conference lead in Columbus tonight. The Maroons, winners in one of four Big Ten contests after having won five of eight pre-conference games, are considered dangerous, particularly if their two scoring stars, Dick Lounsbury and Joe Stampf, find the range of the basket. Capt. Bob Cassels, only recently declared eligible, is expected to be improved after two weeks of practice.

Ohio State, paced by Jimmy Hull, third ranking conference scorer, is the favorite. The Buckeyes, beaten in four of their seven early games, have won three of four in the conference. Their only defeat was by Illinois, 45 to 31. Last Monday they crushed Michigan, also 45 to 31.

Hull can tie for the conference scoring lead if he duplicates his performance against Michigan. He registered 16 points in that contest to run his total to 58 points, 16 less than the conference leader, Pick Dehner of Illinois, has scored.

Chicago to Meet Minnesota.

The Maroons will meet another conference giant Monday, when they face Minnesota in the Chicago fieldhouse.

Two "five-man" teams will clash in the Loyola alumni gymnasium tonight when Loyola faces Drake in a return game. The Ramblers won the opening game in Des Moines, 46 to 32, after Drake had matched them point for point during the first 35 minutes.

Michigan State will entertain Butler in a return game, after having lost to the Bulldogs, 34 to 33, at Butler last Saturday. The Spartans may be without the services of Chet Aubuchon, sophomore guard and star scorer, who has been out of practice all week because of illness.

In the Wake of the News

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 27.—It pays to be friendly with Joe Louis. . . . He didn't like Max Schmeling at all when they met for the second time in Yankee stadium last June, so he knocked him out in 2 minutes and 4 seconds. . . . Joe is a good friend of John Henry Lewis, so he permitted him to last 25 seconds longer. . . . They talk about the suffering John Henry endured in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, but what about George Halas and Charles Bidwill, Chicago's professional football magnates? . . . That was the second time they spent their season's profits attending Louis bouts and they received less than 5 minutes' action for their combined trips. . . . Need we point out, however, that they saw more rowdyism displayed in those 5 minutes than you ordinarily enjoy in 20 rounds of heavyweight boxing? . . . Louis may be ruining the game because of his paralyzing punch, but he has eliminated any question about the honesty of his efforts. . . . Fans have been clamoring for a puncher since the days of Jack Dempsey. . . . They have one now and he's a greater puncher than Dempsey ever was. . . . Let's take a look at Joe's heavyweight rivals, if they can be called that—Tony [Dat Bum] Galento, Bicycle Bob Pastor, Lou Nova, and Max Baer. . . . Would you be willing to give odds that any one of them would come up the second round in a bout with Louis? . . . When can you recall a similar situation in heavyweight boxing?

The Philadelphia Eagles last season returned a profit for the first time in several years. . . . Bert Bell, owner of the club, dropped $88,000 before the tide turned. . . . Bell, who drew Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian in the National Professional league draft, prefers players from Texas to those from the eastern schools, the Big Ten, or Pacific coast. . . . "Boys down there really love to play football," he explains. . . . Yale expended $489,000 on athletics in 1938. . . . If that sounds like overemphasis be assured by the fact that Black Mountain college in North Carolina spent only $12.80. . . . Tom Killefer, son of Wade Killefer, manager of the Hollywood ball club, has been awarded a Rhodes scholarship from Stanford. . . . Roy Parmelee, former Giant, Cardinal, and Cub pitcher, will have a trial with the Athletics this year, but Connie Mack isn't too optimistic. . . . Parmelee led the American association last year in wildness, issuing 167 walks and committing 25 wild pitches. . . . Dr. J. Lloyd Bohn, wrestling coach at Temple university, is an art detective. . . . He spots painting forgeries.

Thank You!

Several days ago a woman reader penned a note to the editor of THE TRIBUNE expressing her surprise that poems the quality of those found in the Wake should be "hidden" in a sports column. Among hundreds of letters received in response to the item was this:

"I discovered the Wake 'way back in the days of H. E. K., enjoyed its brilliant and witty gems and extend sincere regrets to all the cultured women who may have missed the same. The Wake became a gold mine after its late beloved Harvey sent out his call for Help! Help! I have clipped many jewels from the pens of T. E. B., Anne Jesty Rogers, Hilda Butler Farr, dear old Jazbo, and numerous others. Often when writing to friends I inclose a copy of one of these poems, thus spreading the enjoyment I get from them. I prize my copy of the recent Wake book. The Wake is the first thing I read when THE TRIBUNE arrives, via rural delivery, away out here sixty miles from Chicago."

Some birds, when summer time is gone,

So start a feeding station now!

Will welcome you each day.

The day that they left town.

I remember watching a robin
Teaching her young to fly,
She gently pushed them from the nest
While she anxiously flew near by.

She taught them how to use their wings,
Then she let them do the rest,
But something tugged at her heartstrings
When she looked in that empty nest.

JOE LOUIS AIMS A VERBAL HOOK AT MR. GALENTO

Calls "Two Ton" a Third Rate Fighter.

Joe Louis berated Tony Galento yesterday for uncomplimentary remarks Galento made anent Bomber Joe's ability after Louis successfully defended the heavyweight championship against John Henry Lewis in New York Wednesday. Louis stopped briefly in Chicago, then left for Detroit.

Galento, recognized as No. 1 challenger by the National Boxing association, is attempting to force Louis into a match next summer.

"Galento is only a third rate fighter who happens to have a good punch," Louis said. "He's a great fighter if he can hit you, but he won't hit me if we meet.

Good for Four Rounds.

"He's a four round fighter and that's all; after four rounds he's through. His stamina and endurance aren't so good. I'll be glad to meet him any time Promoter Mike Jacobs says."

Louis may make his next title defense against Bob Pastor March 31, he said. He also expects to face the winner of the Max Baer-Lou Nova encounter, which is said to have been switched to Madison Square Garden bowl, Long Island, for May 25. He wants to put his championship on the block three more times this year.

Silent on Schmeling.

Louis refused to comment on whether Max Schmeling, who is returning to this country, is entitled to a third bout with him. After being knocked out by Schmeling June 19, 1936, Louis obtained revenge by stopping Max last June 22.

It has been rumored that negotiations have been started for a Galento-Schmeling fight in Chicago next June.

STUDY EXHIBITION TOUR

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Joe Louis has reached that stage in his ring career where he is confronted with the necessity of undertaking an exhibition tour to get the ring activity he regards as vital to his competitive well being.

At least, this prospect developed today, in the course of a conference among Promoter Mike Jacobs, to whom the heavyweight champion is committed to exclusive contracts and John Roxborough and Julian Black, Louis' managers.

Consider Several Possibilities.

The possibility of a June struggle between Louis and Two Ton Tony Galento was reviewed, even to a discussion of June 29 or 30 as the date in one of the New York ball parks. The outlook for another Louis match with Bob Pastor, who lasted ten rounds with the champion when Louis was fighting his way to the title, likewise was discussed, as was the likelihood of Louis defending his crown against the winner of the Max Baer-Lou Nova battle.

C. are Charles Manna and Rocco Valento, 160 pounds; Vince Pellegrini, 135 pounds; Arthur Palladino, 126 pounds, and John Mazur, heavyweight.

Seventeen from Madden Park.

Malcolm H. Christian, athletic instructor at Madden park, 3800 Rhodes avenue, also has filed the entry of seventeen boxers. All will receive letters of instruction and parental consent blanks to report for Tuesday's physical examination. Another team entry received yesterday was from Franklin park, where Danny Spunt annually has developed one of the best boxing teams in the city.

Seven of the Franklin park boxers will compete in the Open division of the Chicago tournaments which qualify contestants for the Tournament of Champions. These boys are Dave Schimmel, 118 pounds; Ed Benedittto, 126 pounds; Joe Michaels and Mario Christopher, 135 pounds; Jerry Lewis and Art Catos, 147 pounds, and Frank Green, 175 pounds.

Timers Are Listed.

Twelve men, the same group which served at the international Golden Gloves tournament against the champions of Europe last May, will time all Golden Gloves bouts this year. All matches in Golden Gloves, sectionals and the Tournament of Champions, consist of three rounds of two minutes each unless, of course, a bout is stopped by the referee or one of the contestants is knocked out.

The list of timers follows:

J. J. Lipp, William Finn, William J. Dowling, S. R. Darwent, W. W. Adams, Harry Normoyle, Charles Sidebotham, Theodore A. Gross, Walter Sonnenleiter, Harry O'Hare, William Faehse, and James Taylor.

Each round fought in the semi-finals and championships March 10 also will be two minutes. Since the winners in the semi-finals fight twice that night in the Stadium, the length of a round is not increased to the maximum of three minutes. The sixteen intercity bouts with the Golden Gloves champions of New York, which will be held March 29 in Chicago Stadium, will be fought at this maximum limit.

Ramsay, Twice President of U.S.G.A., Dies

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Herbert Hartley Ramsay, former president of the United States Golf association, died here today at the age of 52 years.

Herbert Ramsay.

Long a prominent golf executive, Ramsay was elected as the game's chief official in 1930 and again in 1931. He was chairman of practically every committee of the U. S. G. A. at one time or another.

Born in Saginaw, Mich., on Feb. 16, 1887, the son of William E. and Katherine Penoyer Ramsay, he was graduated from Phillips [Andover] academy, where he was captain of the golf team, and received his bachelor of philosophy degree from Yale in 1908. Subsequently he attended New York university, which conferred upon him the degree of bachelor of laws, and later that of doctor of jurisprudence.

During the world war Mr. Ramsay was a lieutenant in the United States naval reserve forces. He was a member of the law firm of Rogers, Ramsay & Hoge, and was vice president of the Sterling Products corporation and a director of the American Machine and Foundry company, the International Cigar Machinery company, and Madison Square Garden corporation.

Surviving are his widow and two sons. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made

Gene Mako of Los Angeles, Davis cup doubles star, disposed of Jack Ohlhaber of West Palm Beach, 6-3, 6-4, to reach the semi-finals. Mako will play Johnny Doeg of Newark, N. J. Doeg defeated George Slaton of West Palm Beach, 12-10, 6-2. In tomorrow's semi-finals Sabin will meet Jack Tidball of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-3 conqueror of Burtz Boulware of Atlanta.

SECRETARY NEW PILOT; SIEBERT HIS ASSISTANT

Club Plays Hawks Here Tomorrow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, who have scored six goals in the eight games they have played since Paul Thompson succeeded Bill Stewart as skipper on Jan. 3, tomorrow night will see how another team responds to the shot in the arm which firing a manager is supposed to provide. The sixth place Hawks will engage the last place Montreal Canadiens, whose manager, Cecil Hart, yesterday was given the bum's rush, more or less.

Hart, for many years a prominent figure in the hocky world, has a two year contract to lead the Canadiens. Yesterday he was invited to resign, but declined the invitation. He then was told, in effect, that if he wanted to manage he had better cut out some paper dolls for himself—that Jules Dugal, for sixteen years secretary of the Canadiens, would be placed in charge of the team forthwith.

Hawks Have Own Worries.

The Hawks have little time to worry about the fate of Mr. Hart. He has managed the Canadiens, off and on, through eight seasons, and is one of two managers who have won the Stanley cup and successfully defended it the following season. So the Hawks feel that Cecil will do all right, while they are not so sure about themselves.

There is one thing about the Canadiens as a team. They have been no such jinx as the Detroit Red Wings, who whipped the Hawks for the fourth time under tragic circumstances Thursday night. The Hawks have lost and lost to the Red Wings, but Thursday night was the first time they had dropped a 1 to 0 decision to the Detroiters on a goal batted in by their own goalie, Mike Karakas.

Hold Edge Over Canadiens.

The Hawks beat the Canadiens, 4 to 3, in the second home game of the season and also won the Canadiens' second home game, 3 to 2. The Chicagoans beat the Canadiens again in Montreal on Dec. 27, by a score of 4 to 1 but here on Jan. 1, the Canadiens came from behind to win 4 to 3. This game, incidentally, was the last in which the Hawks have been able to ring up more than one goal.

Now, getting back to the case of Cecil Hart: According to dispatches from Montreal, Hart and Ernie Savard, president of the Canadiens, yesterday engaged in a stormy session, in which each called a skate a skate and a hocky stick a hocky stick. After it was all over Savard announced that Hart had not been fired, just relieved of his duties. It was said Hart will receive his salary for the remainder of this season and all of next season.

Siebert to Aid Dugal.

It also was made known that Babe Siebert, Canadien defense man, will coöperate with Dugal in handling the team on the ice. Siebert has been made captain of the Canadiens, heretofore captainless.

Before the Red Wings left town the Hawks negotiated a trade, in which they gave Phil Besler, utility forward, for Charley Mason, a right winger, now with the Pittsburgh Hornets. The Hawks sent Besler to Cleveland a week ago, whence he will report in Detroit. Mason is subject to immediate recall by the Hawks.

PROMISE TO PAY SENDS HOCKY STRIKERS ON WAY

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Members of the St Paul club of the American Hocky association staged a short "sit-down" strike today in a dispute over salaries, but left for Kansas City tonight after they had been assured by W. F Grant, league president, that the circuit would guarantee their pay.

J. E Goodwillie, St. Paul club president, earlier said there were no funds available to pay for traveling expenses to Kansas City, St. Louis, and Wichita. Although salaries for the last two weeks were not due until tomorrow, the players demanded their pay today before they would leave.

After Coach Virg Johnson had been assured by Grant that the league would see that the pay would be forthcoming, the players left by automobile for Kansas City, where they plan to confer tomorrow with Grant.

TOM KENNEALLY FORGES AHEAD; HE DEFEATS SAVOLDI

Scores Sixteenth Victory in 17 Fights.

Tom Kenneally, Catholic Youth organization boxer, advanced another step in his heavyweight campaign by defeating Leo Savoldi of St. Paul in an eight round bout in White City last night. The decision of Referee Norman McGarity and Judges James Lynch and John Bray was unanimous. Kenneally weighed 197 pounds, six more than his opponent. A capacity crowd of 2,678 paid $2,500 to see the bout.

Kenneally scored points in four of the rounds to record his sixteenth victory in seventeen fights. Savoldi did all the forcing. In the second round he landed a series of left jabs. In the sixth two left hooks to the jaw staggered Kenneally.

Verle Davis, Kankakee lightweight, continued his winning ways by knocking out McClure Carson, south side welterweight, in the second round of a scheduled six round semi-final. It was Davis' fifth knockout in nine professional starts. Verle weighed 137½ pounds and Carson 146. Marion Mosley, 195 pounder, also scored a two round knockout over Claude Cooper in the opening match.

Other bouts were won by Johnny Martin, Peoria welterweight; George Nelson, south side junior welterweight, and Art [Swede] Lind, Alborn, Minn., middleweight. Martin defeated Billy McFarland of St. Paul, Nelson beat Eddie Sparrow, and Lind whipped Johnny Shaw. Each match went four rounds.

Milton Aron, Chicago welterweight leader, finished boxing yesterday in preparation for his ten round bout with Indian Billy Lee of Milwaukee in Marigold Gardens Monday. He went three rounds with Lorenzo Lovings in Trafton's gymnasium. Wladyslaw Talun, 299 pound Polish wrestler, will open drills in Trafton's this afternoon for his match with Danno O'Mahoney in the Coliseum Tuesday. O'Mahoney yesterday worked out with Jack Conley, Phil Malloy, and Fred Grubmier. . . . It was reported last night that the proposed Henry Armstrong-Davey Day bout would be arranged for International Amphitheater late in February or early in March. Art Winch, one of Day's managers, said the switch in site was contemplated because of dissatisfaction with the terms offered by the Stadium. Sam Pian, Davey's other representative, said that he is awaiting word from Eddie Mead, manager of Armstrong, for further negotiations. Mead was due in St. Louis yesterday from Los Angeles. Armstrong has opened an exhibition tour which will take him to Milwaukee Feb. 6. Day, who has been forced to refuse an offer to meet Sammy Angott in Pittsburgh Feb. 6, returned Thursday from a vacation in Hot Springs, Ark.

A knockout at the hands of Lloyd Montgomery, Bauxite, Ark., heavyweight, Thursday, has cost J. D. Turner of Dallas, Tex., a ten round bout with Henry Wacker in White City next Friday. F. M.

Seabiscuit Is Out of Sprint at Santa Anita

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Charles S. Howard announced tonight that Seabiscuit would pass up the $10,000 San Felipe handicap at Santa Anita park tomorrow, leaving 19 other contenders for the six furlong event.

Seabiscuit was entered in the race this morning, but was declared out tonight because his handlers did not choose to take a chance of injuring him in the unwieldy field.

Look for Another Spot.

"We'll look for another spot to start him," Howard said after withdrawing his handicap champion.

Obviously playing a figurative game of checkers with owners of the other horses entered in the race, among them Marica, Sun Egret, Specify, and Speed to Spare, Howard said earlier his stable wanted to find out just how many really intended going into the event before making a final decision.

He said the No. 9 post position drawn by Seabiscuit was not to his liking because it was the middle of the large field, but earlier in the week his trainer, Tom Smith, said a rail position would be unfavorable to Seabiscuit's chances.

27 Originally Nominated.

Twenty-seven horses were nominated for the six furlong race last week, and Smith promptly announced that was too many—Seabiscuit would not be entered. He declared that while Seabiscuit must have a race soon to get in shape for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap March 4, conditions must be right.

G. Spaulding & Bros., 211 South State street.

Covering famed sports personalities and events, the original prints depict scenes from golf, boxing, curling, tennis, football, baseball, and a variety of other athletic activities. The exhibit will continue through Feb. 10.

Fischer Lauds Golf Chiefs for Amateur Stand

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Johnny Fischer applauded the United States Golf association today for drawing a strict line between amateurs and professionals and said its rulings were entirely justified to prevent the simon-pure links game from "becoming the sham that amateur tennis is."

The national amateur champion of 1936 was discussing a recent warning of the U. S. G. A. to touring women players not to accept reduced hotel rates, traveling expenses, or other favors from resorts staging tournaments.

Tells of Opportunities.

"The U. S. G. A. isn't out of line at all," he said. "Young amateurs don't have to travel around the country to get experience in golf. There are enough tournaments close by for an amateur to play in until he's ready for the big time.

"If he lives in a big city, a boy can play in four or five match play tournaments each summer, any number of invitation events, and then at least one big nearby sectional tournament like the Western Amateur and some others.

He'll Keep Playing.

"After a few years of those tournaments, a boy is ready for the National Amateur and the National Open. Amateur golfers don't have to barnstorm to get ready, and as a matter of fact, I think too many small tournaments hurt a player."

Fischer is here for a week of golf before returning to Cincinnati to practice law. He recently received his degree from the University of Cincinnati and now is awaiting his grade in a bar examination.

But he's not giving up competitive golf just yet.

MIDGET AUTO DRIVERS TO AID PARALYSIS FUND

Eight midget auto races, featuring an "Infantile Paralysis Handicap" and climaxed by a forty lap main event, will make up the program tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory. Racing stars from all parts of the country will contest prize money and title points.

Jimmy Snyder, winner of last week's feature, has as competition Cowboy O'Rourke of Los Angeles, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, Pete Nielson, also of the west coast, and three Chicagoans, Earl Simmons, Bert Knight, Ray Richards, and Ted Tetterton.

The eight fastest cars in the time trials will compete in the "Infantile Paralysis Handicap." The purse will be turned over to the Chicago office of the foundation.

Chicago Opens Fencing Season at Notre Dame

The University of Chicago's fencing team will engage in its first meet of the season, against Notre Dame, in South Bend today. Two surviving lettermen will lead this season's squad, Co-Captains Edward Gustafson and Charles Corbett. Gustafson won the Big Ten title in sabre last spring. Corbett was conference runner-up in epee. Notre Dame, perpetually a dangerous team, has already beaten Purdue, 10½ to 6½.

Baseball's Gambling Table

A Story of Expensive Failures and Surprise Bargains in Big League Player Deals

[This is the last of a series covering major league transactions in which, for better or worse, big money was spent either with a minor circuit or to move an athlete from one major team to another.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If there is any such item as an award for being baseball's No. 1 wholesaler, it should be pinned on Connie Mack, the only man who ever has managed the Philadelphia American league team. Crafty Connie always has had highly saleable stuff in a peak market and in the last six or seven years he has pulled approximately $800,000 of other magnates' cash across the counter.

But before creating an impression that Connie's ivory business has been all income without a trace of outgo, let it be mentioned that he also has done bits of fancy buying. It was he who paid $105,000 to the Baltimore club for Robert Moses Grove, who eventually didn't cost a cent. And it was Connie who paid $50,000 to the Salt Lake club for Paul Strand, who was touted as a hitter. Only 47 games in 1924 were needed to show Strand's bat wasn't of much value against major league pitching, so the $50,000 was written off as a loss and the athlete vanished from the news.

Tom Yawkey Comes Along with Cash and Pennant Hopes.

It was fortunate for Mack, who resorted to selling because the home fans didn't provide the wherewithal to keep his team on a sound financial footing, that Millionaire Tom Yawkey came onto the scene as owner of the Boston Red Sox. Yawkey wanted a pennant winner and his bank roll was available. Mack at various times has removed about $600,000 from that roll, not to mention the cash value of Boston players he took at the same time, and the generous Yawkey still owns a nice flag pole but lacks the pennant with which to decorate it.

Yawkey began doing business in a big way with Mack in December of 1933 and thereafter there was a steady procession of dollars from Boston to Philadelphia. The sum of $125,000 was expended for Grove, the same man Mack had acquired for $105,000. Mack not only got back his money with interest but he had had the use of Grove's pitching for nine seasons, during which three pennants were won. Along with Grove went Rube Walberg and Max Bishop for another $50,000. Bishop had cost $25,000 when taken from Baltimore but Walberg had been acquired at a nominal price.

Mack's outstanding sale was the one in which Jim Foxx, Johnny Marcum, Eric McNair and Roger Cramer were moved to Boston. Because income tax features were involved, one portion of the transaction was closed in December of 1935 and the other in January of 1936. For this batch of talent Mack received 350,000 Yawkey dollars and four players. Of this sum Foxx was supposed to represent $150,000. He had cost Mack practically nothing and fetched this fancy figure after having given ten seasons of service to the Athletics' cause. Boston also paid Connie $15,000 for Infielder Dib Williams. Another whack at the Boston roll was the $150,000 paid to Washington for Shortstop Joe Cronin.

White Sox and Tigers Are Good Customers, Too.

The wily Mack also profited handsomely in transactions with the Chicago and Detroit clubs. He had had eight seasons of work out of Al Simmons when, in September of 1932, he sold him, along with Jim Dykes and Mule Haas, to J. Louis Comiskey, the White Sox owner. A year later he sold to the same club George Earnshaw for $25,000, a sum in excess of what the big pitcher had cost originally. At the same time he took $100,000 from Detroit for Mike Cochrane, who had been an Athletic member for nine seasons. But under Cochrane's management the Tigers won two pennants, so the $100,000 investment paid off.

Although Mack undoubtedly tops all big league clubs in total sales, he doesn't own the distinction of being involved in the biggest single transaction. That honor, so far as is known, belongs to the Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals. They touched an all time high, according to available records, when $185,000 and three Cub players went to St. Louis so that the famed as well as crippled Dizzy Dean could get into a Cub uniform last April. And whether the Cubs ever will realize on this expenditure still is doubtful.

Another Chapter in Story of Futile Purchasing, Maybe.

If Dean's arm is beyond repair, the Cubs will have added another sorry chapter to their story of futile purchases. Big money was spent for Chuck Klein because he was a hitter. As a Cub he couldn't produce as he did when with the reckless Phillies. Babe Herman was purchased, with the idea that he would hit, but his Cub career was of short duration. The Cubs also gave $150,000 and four players to the Boston Nationals in November of '28 for Rogers Hornsby, but they bought him too late in his baseball life. He soon started to slip.

EX-KAISER IS 80; BAN CELEBRATION BY GERMAN ARMY

Former Monarch Has Gala Party in Exile.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—The 80th birthday of former Kaiser Wilhelm II., who once was almost as powerful in Germany as Reichsfuehrer Hitler is now, was ignored today by the vast majority of his former subjects.

The former kaiser celebrated his birthday with German relatives who went to Doorn, The Netherlands, where he lives in exile. A small group of relatives who could not leave Germany and a few friends assembled in Potsdam for a birthday dinner in the most unpretentious of the Hohenzollern residences—the Villa Ingenheim, home of the former kaiser's second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich.

Army Celebration Banned.

Officers of Germany's new army, which carries on the tradition created by Prussia's Hohenzollerns, were warned not to attend birthday celebrations for the former monarch nor to send him birthday greetings.

Last year serious friction developed between official Nazi circles and officers who toasted their former war lord with too great enthusiasm at birthday parties. These parties were among the causes which led to the spectacular reshuffle of the German high command a year ago.

Circles close to the Hohenzollerns declare that despite the absence of notices in the Nazi newspapers, the number of birthday messages received by the former kaiser this year is greater than in previous years.

Wears a Dazzling Uniform.

DOORN, The Netherlands, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II., wearing a dazzling white uniform with gold braid, celebrated his 80th birthday with a gala dinner tonight.

Thirty members of Germany's former royal families were guests of honor, adding their brilliant uniforms, costly robes, and rare jewelry to the historic scene in Wilhelm's exile castle here.

After dinner a German film was shown depicting the life of Wilhelm's ancestor, Frederick the Great.

The octogenarian bore it all with smiles and showed no signs of unusual fatigue. He had a special smile for his grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, who had obtained permission from Germany's air force chief, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, to wear the bluish-gray uniform of a lieutenant in the Nazi air force.

'ADMITS BLOOD TEST AS PROOF OF INTOXICATION

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 27.—(AP)—In a decision having no known precedent in Illinois courts, Circuit Judge Henry J. Ingram ruled today that blood tests are admissible as evidence of intoxication in the manslaughter trials of Charles A. Binegar and Patrick Donoho.

Donoho was indicted for manslaughter in connection with the deaths of two women and a child in an automobile accident near Laura, Ill., last August. Binegar was indicted on a similar charge in the deaths of Clyde and Daisy Branson in an automobile collision last November.

Under 55 Tons of Cinders for Six Hours, Still Lives

East Orange, N. J., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Frank Pauleo, 35 years old, a laborer, survived tonight six tortured hours spent under 55 tons of cinders in a silo into which he had fallen unnoticed by fellow workers. Working frantically in shifts, a crew of firemen and police finally lifted the unconscious Pauleo from a hole they had chiseled in the side of the concrete cylinder. Priests stood by to administer last rites of the church. At a hospital it was revealed Pauleo was suffering from exposure, but no bones were broken. Doctors said unless pneumonia developed Pauleo would live.

An Old Horse Thief Stoops to Taking Gloves; Jailed

Frank Dickson, 68 years old, who has been behind bars most of the time since 1898, was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday for petty larceny. Dickson was arrested Wednesday as he was carrying off a case of gloves, valued at $90, from the Railway Express Agency loading platform at La Salle and Harrison streets. Dickson's record includes numerous sentences for horse stealing and stealing from the mails.

FOUR PAROLEES AND STOLEN CAR HELD IN CHENOA

Chenoa, Ill., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Four parolees were taken into custody as suspects by state highway police here today. They were surprised by State Policemen Tom Kasher of Bloomington and William Maskell of Streator as they were eating in a café.

The four are Charles and Richard Weed, brothers from Northville, Minn., parolees from Leavenworth penitentiary; Harry R. Waxler, 25, Napoleon, O., and William P. Henry, 22 years old of Chicago. The two last named were said to be parolees from the federal reformatory at El Reno, Okla. They were paroled yesterday.

The Weed brothers are wanted for several holdups and car thefts in Minnesota. The other two were held for federal bureau of investigation officials. A car stolen from Brainerd, Minn., in which all four were said to have driven into town, was found parked in front of the café.

WOMAN VICTIM IN DUAL SHOOTING WINS A DIVORCE

Mrs. Pearl R. Bradley, 30 years old, who was shot Sept. 4 by Clarence Rexford, a jealous suitor, yesterday was granted a divorce from her husband, Vernon A. Bradley, on grounds of desertion. The couple were married Oct. 22, 1934, and separated a year later. Mrs. Bradley lives on a farm near Elgin.

Mrs. Bradley and a friend, Bruno Pasziewicz, 22, both were wounded by Rexford, a farmhand, as they strolled together one Sunday. Rexford is now serving a one to fourteen year sentence in Joliet for attempted murder. Circuit Judge F. W. Shepherd, Geneva, who sentenced him, awarded Mrs. Bradley her divorce.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Despondent because buses will supplant many street cars here, Edward R. Cravens, 65 years old, veteran motorman, locked both doors of his street car, turned out the lights, and shot himself to death.

BOGUS ARMY AVIATOR 'GROUNDS' TWO VICTIMS AND FLEES IN NEW CAR

Police and federal authorities of Chicago and points east were trying last night to catch up with a fast talking, fast moving slicker who poses as a lieutenant in the army air corps.

He drove into Chicago from Los Angeles Thursday night with two share paying passengers, Miss Eva Arata of Brooklyn and Joseph Schulman of Cleveland. He borrowed $50 from them at their hotels and promised to pick them up next morning. But he failed to appear yesterday. They complained to police that he not only had all their money but most of their baggage, including a $150 violin.

Lieut. George Teeling of the stolen auto detail, soon traced the bogus army officer to a Michigan avenue automobile agency. Yes, Lieut. Blank had been there, the dealer said. He had just traded in his $1,200 car for a new $1,400 car, having radio and heater installed extra. He had also borrowed $200, to be added to the owed balance on the new car. The deal was a good one except, as it was discovered later, the car turned in was stolen. When last seen, the slicker was speeding east.

After Waiting for 4 Years, Slayer Learns Fate: Death

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The life or death decision for which Sylvester Warner, Kentucky's forgotten death row prisoner, has been waiting four and a half years was made today. It was death. Gov. A. B. Chandler announced he had rejected Warner's plea for commutation to life imprisonment. He fixed the date of Warner's execution in the electric chair for Feb. 10. Warner, 28 years old, was convicted with two other men of killing two men in a robbery. Former Gov. Ruby Laffoon granted Warner a temporary stay on the eve set for his execution, Oct. 25, 1934, and retired from office without making a final decision, leaving the case for Chandler.

JAPAN PREPARES FOR SOVIET WAR, SAYS TRUESDELL

Russia is the real enemy at whom Japan is aiming, Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell, commander of Fort Sheridan, told members of the Chicago chapter of the Military Order of the World War last night. A clash between the two nations along the Siberian border will occur in the indefinite future, he said.

Japan is sending relatively green troops into China for training in combat warfare and then transferring them to garrisons in the puppet state of Manchukuo, he said. The Japanese want economic control of the Chinese markets and raw materials, he said. He asserted that Japan can easily maintain enough troops in China for these purposes.

Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, was elected a member of the order at last night's meeting. He was an aviator during the war.

Pal of Baby Face Nelson Wins Extradition Fight

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe ruled yesterday that there was insufficient evidence to warant the removal of John F. Haggerty, 48 years old, ex-convict and associate of the late "Baby Face" Nelson, to Baltimore, Md., on a charge of bank robbery. Haggerty was arrested by police on suspicion on Jan. 12. Yesterday two officials of the Citizens' bank of Keedysville, Md., were unable to identify Haggerty as the robber. He was released from custody.

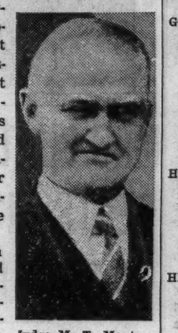
FEDERAL JUDGE WILL REPLY TO REPORT OF QUIZ

Denies Any Wrongdoing While on Bench.

New York, Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Martin T. Manton, senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, said tonight that he would issue a statement tomorrow concerning reports that federal and state investigations are under way into his conduct on the bench.



Judge M. T. Manton. [Copyright: Harris & Ewing.]

Judge Manton said he would issue the statement after perusing an article published in an afternoon newspaper regarding his alleged activities while serving in the judiciary.

"I am satisfied that my statement will satisfy the public that there is nothing wrong or immoral about my conduct," Judge Manton said.

Nothing Immoral, He Says.

Pending the issuance of his statement the judge refused to comment on the facts set forth in the article. He did say, however, that he was neither an officer nor a director of any business enterprises. Asked whether he thought there was anything wrong or immoral in a judge having business interests outside of his judicial duties, he said, "I never thought it was wrong or immoral. Almost every judge I know has."

The copyrighted news story charges that Judge Manton has acted in cases in which business associates were attorneys or had large financial interests. It further alleges that "he has appointed to lucrative receiverships men who previously or at the same time performed valuable financial services at his request from which he benefited."

12 Corporations Created.

The news story states that alone, or with one or more associates, Judge Manton has created 12 corporations since 1921. It states also that the judge had stockholdings of from 33 to 93 per cent in 17 corporations, "of which most at one time or other have claimed assets running into millions." Judge Manton has not been listed as an officer of any of the corporations, but his official secretary, Marie D. Schmaltz, has been an official in seven of the corporations at one time or another, the article continues.

It was reported that both District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York and agents of the department of justice have been investigating the judge's conduct. The judge, who is a Democrat, was appointed in 1918 by President Wilson. He is 58 years old.

SEC HAILS PLAN OF MANAGEMENT FIRM AS MODEL

Favors Reorganizing Chicago Company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—Officials of the Securities and Exchange commission today hailed the novel reorganization plan of the Public Utility Engineering and Service corporation, Chicago, as the best plan yet brought before it by management companies.

W. J. Hagenah criticizes practices of predecessors.

Hearings began today on the company's amended petition for reorganization and SEC approval was virtually assured. The hearings, which will continue tomorrow, are cut and dried, as the SEC conferred with company officials before the plan was formally presented to the commission. The reorganization of "Puesco" has been completed and the company now seeks SEC approval of what has been done.

Management Power Reduced.

The novelty of this plan is that it reduces a once powerful managing company, the former Byllesby Engineering and Management corporation, in the billion dollar Standard Gas and Electric company system, to a mere advisory function for the benefit of operating companies in the system. It once held direct management over these subsidiaries and reaped profits for its services. Now it operates on a cost basis.

In opening testimony today William J. Hagenah, president of "Puesco," sharply criticized the practices of the old régime while the Byllesby banking interests were still in direct control of the Standard Gas and Electric company system.

Work Out Reorganization.

The reorganization was worked out by Hagenah, Victor Emanuel, New York financier, chairman of Standard Gas and Electric, and Bernard W. Lynch, president of Standard Gas.

In a maneuver last October, sanctioned by the SEC, Emanuel succeeded Lynch as chairman, and Hagenah, who had been general counsel for Standard Gas, replaced Lynch as president of Puesco. The reorganization began on that date and Hagenah said today that it has been completed.

Emanuel was placed in control with SEC blessing because he favored quick integration of the system under the public utility holding company act of 1935. Reorganization of Puesco and SEC approval will now speed that process, Hagenah told THE TRIBUNE today, because it streamlines the engineering and service corporation into a more efficient system.

Plan Has Three Objectives.

On the witness stand Hagenah said that the reorganization plan has three objectives:

1. Decentralization of control.
2. Expert consulting and advisory service for each operating company.
3. Research for improved methods in utility operation.

There also has been a wholesale slashing of the staf and pay rolls. More than eighty people have been released and the pay roll has been reduced from $1,043,000 to $726,000 per year. Hagenah also estimated that reduction in other expenses will result in a total reduction in salaries and expenses of about $400,000 a year.

The estimated budget for 1939, Hagenah said, is $921,000. This compared with $1,309,000 in 1938 and $5,003,000 in 1927.

Service Now on Cost Basis.

"Byllesby Engineering and Management corporation for a long period of years," he testified, "collected fees for management service of 2½ per cent of gross earnings of the operating companies and 7½ per cent of construction costs for engineering services."

He asserted now the same services are given just as efficiently on a cost basis. Profits of the old management concern, which changed to its present name in 1935, went to Standard Gas and Electric, he said. They were charged to operating companies and even the officials of the operating companies received their salaries from the management concern.

He said that between 1919 and 1929 Byllesby Engineering had gross income of $36,990,000 and net income of more than $17,134,000.

The Byllesby banking interests still hold a large block of stock in Standard Gas, the top holding company, but are not allowed direct voting control, which since 1936 has been vested in a voting trust. Puesco, with a capitalization of $400,000, is now owned by the operating companies of the Standard Gas system, but after SEC approval it is contemplated that Puesco again will go under Standard Gas control.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 27.—(AP)—C. H. Bliss, vice president of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, tonight announced his resignation, effective Feb. 1. He joined Nash Motors at Kenosha in 1916. Bliss said his plans for the future were indefinite, although he would remain in the automobile business.

Hopson Group Meets Power Board Demand

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The H. C. Hopson utilities interests indicated today they would comply completely with federal power commission demands for books, records, and testimony in the government's investigation of Associated Gas and Electric system.

Relatives and business associates of Hopson announced through Moultrie Hitt, Washington attorney for the private power leader, that they would appear for oral questioning, without subpena, whenever called. It was the second such action by Associated Gas. They previously held the commission had no jurisdiction.

Officers for 14 Companies.

Hitt's statement today was for officers and owners of 14 companies selling technical services to utility operating companies. Their decision to submit records and testimony, Hitt said, was prompted by a desire to escape inference that they had anything to hide rather than any conviction the commission had jurisdiction.

The commission inquiry, they said through counsel, merely was to assist the Pennsylvania public utilities commission. The latter commission has said it wants to determine the reasonableness of costs charged against the operating companies by the service companies, and the effect on rates charged to consumers.

Denied Service Company Control.

Hopson, in a formal statement in 1935, denied personal ownership or control of the service companies which performed accounting, engineering and other functions for Associated Gas operating concerns.

Commission counsel said the service companies were owned and controled by Hopson's sisters and brothers-in-law—Perle M. Hopson, Mrs. Amy H. Starch, Mrs. Norma H. Jones, Daniel Starch, and S. Murray Jones.

These, Hitt said, would testify along with Edward J. Cheney, head of an engieering firm serving Associated Gas, and C. F. Lewis, partner of H. C. Hopson & Co. Hopson, himself, Hitt said, was too ill to testify.

STORES SALES' END DECLINES FROM YEAR AGO

National department store sales in the week ended Jan. 21 ended the declines from 1938 levels which occurred in the first two weeks this year. The federal reserve board reported yesterday that last week's sales were equal to those of the corresponding week in 1938.

In the preceding week the turnover was 3 per cent below that of the same week last year. In the week ended Jan. 7 the decline was 15 per cent. Sales in the four weeks ended Jan. 21 dropped 5 per cent below the total for the same period last year.

The seventh federal reserve district [Chicago area] sales rose 0.7 per cent above those for the corresponding week in 1938. Sales in Chicago declined 3.3 per cent.

Daily average sales of chain grocery stores in December were higher than for any month since April, 1931, and were 4½ per cent above December, 1937, the commerce department reported.

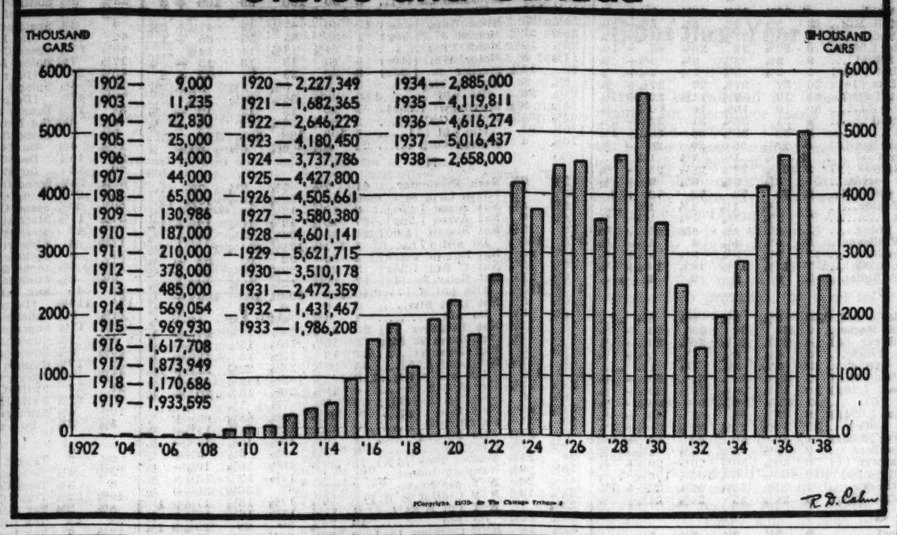
Annual Production of Passenger Cars and Trucks in the United States and Canada



National Truck Show Will Be Held in Chicago

The national motor truck show will be held in Chicago this year. The executive committee of the National Motor Truck Show, Inc., announced in New York yesterday that a survey made among leading truck and accessory manufacturers caused the decision to hold the show at the Navy pier Nov. 15 to 22.

The committee said it was advisable to have the annual show in Chicago at the time the American Petroleum institute is meeting here.

The show was held last year in the Port Authority building in New York City concurrently with the national automobile show at the Grand Central Palace.

This will give Chicago its third large automobile event of the year. The other two are the annual automobile show, which displays both trucks and passenger cars, and the annual show of manufacturers supplying automobile dealers with equipment, parts, and accessories.

Chicago Show Important.

Although the annual New York automobile display is named the national automobile show and is sponsored by the Automobile Manufacturers association, the Chicago show is looked upon as equally important. Sales at the Chicago show usually exceed those at New York and the Chicago volume is watched as a barometer of automobile business for the entire country.

Chicago's annual automobile show, which is sponsored by the Chicago Automobile Trade association, is expected to open Nov. 2 or 3. It is planned to have it include Armistice day on Nov. 11. Harry T. Hollingshead is president of the association. The New York show is expected to start Oct. 15, earlier than usual, because of the New York World's Fair.

Held at Same Time Year Ago.

Last year the Chicago and New York shows were held at the same time, but this did not work out satisfactorily. It forced officials of the various companies to run back and forth between New York and Chicago.

The annual show for parts and equipment is held on the Navy pier. It is said to be the largest trade show in the world. It is not open to the public.

PENSION PLAN IS ANNOUNCED BY LEATH & CO.

Leath & Co., which operates a chain of retail furniture stores in midwestern cities, yesterday announced that its employés were being offered a retirement plan. I. H. Hartman, president, said the plan provides regular monthly payments to employés after they reach the retirement age of 65.

The company will give an amount equal to that contributed by each employé. No earnings in excess of $6,000 annually will be considered in the plan.

WILSON COMPANY SUES UNIONS; CLOSED SHOP CONSPIRACY CHARGED

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Wilson & Co., meat packers, asked $300,000 damages today in a suit filed in federal court charging three American Federation of Labor unions with conspiracy to force the company to accept a "closed shop."

The company also asked for an injunction to halt the three unions from beating employés and customers, damaging company trucks and property, and wrecking customers' automobiles, boycotting dealers who patronize the company, and picketing the company's plant.

In a third demand the company asked the court to order local 195 of the Almalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Union of North America to abide by its agreement to give up the "closed shop" demands in return for wage increases. The two other unions involved are locals of the Brotherhood of Transportation Workers and the Storage Warehouse Employés.

The company said the meat cutters and butchers union had agreed to drop "closed shop" demands in return for wage increases, but since Dec. 29 had been renewing their demands and had launched a campaign of intimidation, coercion, and violence against the company and its customers.

The suit was filed under the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws.

PORK IMPORTS RISE SUDDENLY; EXPORTS SLUMP

The flow of pork into the United States from other countries increased unexpectedly last month, and there was a sudden drop in sales of American pork abroad, the department of commerce disclosed yesterday. The trade balance for packers of this country in foreign markets was the most unsatisfactory in three months.

Imports of all pork, exclusive of lard, aggregated 4,881,720 pounds during December, the largest purchases from other countries since last April. They were only 359,769 smaller than the imports during December, 1937. Imports during other months last year were substantially less than during the corresponding months of 1937.

Packers sold only 8,059,125 pounds of pork, lard excluded, to other countries, a decrease of 3,007,139 pounds, or 27 per cent, from the November exports. Sales abroad were only 3,177,405 pounds above the imports during December. November sales were 7,155,784 pounds above imports.

Lard exports in December were 19,198,388 pounds, compared with 16,008,964 during November, but they were smaller than the 22,295,451 pounds exported during December, 1937.

Federal Agency Has Loaned 188 Millions on Cotton

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Commodity Credit corporation reported today it had loaned $188,340,911 on 4,108,092 bales of cotton through Jan. 26. The corporation also reported it had loaned $66,065,598 on 116,039,193 bushels of corn.

Armour Heads View 1939 as Better Year

Frederick H. Prince, chairman of the board of Armour & Co., told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that 1939 promises to be a better year for the company than was 1938. Operations in the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1938, resulted in a loss of approximately $1,500,000.

Frederick H. Prince.

"The prospects this year indicate that it should be an entirely different story," he said. "We have every reason to anticipate a great improvement. I am looking forward to the time when we can resume dividends to our shareholders."

Stockholders reëlected all present directors. At a subsequent meeting of the new board all officers were reelected.

Blames Costs and Inventories.

The unprofitable operations last year, Prince said, were the result of the high prices which the packing industry had to pay for its unprocessed material. At the same time, he pointed out, it was necessary to absorb losses on inventories.

President Robert H. Cabell said the company effected in 1938 every saving possible without sacrificing the interests of the company.

"We believe these economies can be continued with benefit to our future results," he said. He said the company pays about $1,250,000 a day for live stock and that its labor costs average about $1,500,000 a week.

Tax Reserve Causes Loss.

About two-thirds of the 1938 loss, Cabell pointed out, represented a reserve setup to meet federal income taxes on earnings of subsidiaries which cannot be consolidated under existing federal revenue act.

Cabell said a reorganization of executive personnel was made last year. Under the new set-up each major branch of the business is responsible to a single executive. These divisions include live stock buying, plant operations and sales.

"The new arrangement," he said, "has been in effect long enough to permit us to see definite advantages in the change."

Sixty-four per cent of the stock was represented in person or by proxy at the meeting, which was held in the company's offices in the Union Stockyards.

Automobile Production Dips Slightly in Week

Automobile production declined slightly this week, Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., said yesterday. Ward's estimated the week's output at 89,200 units, compared with 90,205 in the preceding week and 59,365 in the corresponding week of 1938.

Dutch Currency Sinks Again as Capital Flees the Country

Dutch currency sank in value in foreign exchange transactions yesterday for the fifth consecutive day. The continued pressure on the guilder indicated further withdrawals of foreigns capital from Holland, exchange experts said.

Commercial demand for the currency picked up moderately as the value sank to 53.73 cents at New York, but this buying was not enough to offset the capital withdrawals. The guilder closed 0.16 cent below the preceding day's quotation.

The capital that is moving out of Holland, it is believed, is almost entirely owned by foreigners. There has been no indication that the Dutch themselves are exporting money.

Has Been "Hot Money" Refuge.

Because of the country's neutral position in Europe and the relative stability its currency has enjoyed, Holland has been a refuge for "hot money" for many years. It is now experiencing the unsettlement that results when such money is shifted elsewhere by its disturbed owners.

Weakness in the guilder began a week ago when Berlin protested to the Netherlands on the firing of shots at the residences of Nazi officials in Holland. Rumors said that German troops were engaging in movements at the Dutch border. These were officially denied in Berlin.

German currency, which declined earlier this week, was firmer on transactions yesterday. The travel and benevolent marks were each quoted 1-10th cent higher. The official rate was quoted at 40.15 cents, against 40 cents on the preceding day.

Pound and Franc Steady.

The British pound and the French franc were quoted at approximately the same figures as on the preceding day.

Gold in London rose to 148 shillings 8½ pence [$34.77] an ounce, an increase of ½ penny.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported gold engagements totaling $7,135,000 for shipment to this country. Of the total $4,680,000 was engaged in England and $2,455,000 in Holland.

STOCK MARKET RISES FOR FIRST TIME IN WEEK

Selling by Foreign Interests Ends.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 27.—The stock market rallied today for the first time since last Saturday. Gains in active shares ranged from fractions to about 3 points. Several individual issues climbed as much as 5 points.

The improvement was attributed chiefly to the lifting of selling pressure from abroad and the end of "sympathetic" selling in this country. Some short covering was believed to be another factor. Fresh domestic demand and some buying from European interests also helped the rise, according to observers.

Turnover was 1,054,830 shares. At the close 478 issues were higher, 166 lower, and 156 unchanged.

Opens Higher, Gains More.

Opening higher, the list added to its gains and prices closed generally around their high marks of the day. An undertone of caution prevailed, however. This was attributed to the desire of many traders to await Chancellor Hitler's speech Monday. Slightly better domestic business news helped buoy sentiment.

Airplane issues were strong for a time under the impetus of confirmation of French plane orders and President Roosevelt's request for an emergency outlay for army aircraft. Gains of 2 points were made by Douglas, United Aircraft, and Sperry corporation. Other good gainers were Glenn Martin, up 1⅞; Consolidated Aircraft, up 1, and Bendix, up 1¼; North American Aviation, up 1¼, and Boeing, up 1⅝.

Industrial Leaders Climb.

The recently depressed standard industrial shares made substantial gains. Volume honors went to General Motors, up 2 points. Chrysler climbed 3⅛ points. In the steels, United States Steel added 1¾ points; Bethlehem, 3⅛; Youngstown, 2¼, and Crucible 1⅞.

United States Rubber led its group with a gain of 2⅜ points. Metals showed gains running to almost 2 points.

Several power and light shares scored impressive gains. North American company and Consolidated Edison both advanced 1⅛ points.

Rail shares contributed good gains. Several advanced a point or more.

Westinghouse featured the heavy machinery group with an advance of 5 points. Texas corporation, up 1, and Standard Oil of New Jersey, up 1⅞, were standouts in the oils.

Ward climbed 2¼ points. Sears-Roebuck and Marshall Field edged fractionally higher.

BAR MADISON OIL TRIAL EVIDENCE IN CIVIL ACTION

A copy of a court ruling regarded as of major importance to the petroleum industry was received in Chicago yesterday. In the ruling Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye, Minneapolis, Minn., held that decisions in the famous Madison, Wis., oil conspiracy case were not admissible evidence in a civil suit.

The decision was made in a suit filed by the Twin Ports Oil company, Minneapolis, seeking treble damages amounting to $700,397 under the Clayton anti-trust act from leading petroleum companies. The suit was based largely on the finding of guilty in the case of a number of the petroleum companies in the Madison case.

Criminal charges of price fixing and restraint of trade were made against the companies by the federal government. An appeal is pending. Consequently Judge Nordbye ruled the decisions are not admissible as evidence because there has been no final adjudication of the case.

Sears' Meeting Extended; Rumor Important Change

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—Members of the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co. assembled here today in annual meeting. They held a long session and then said their business had not been completed and that they would reconvene tomorrow morning. It was rumored that an important change in administration was being considered, but officials and board members refused to comment.

Business Books

"Monetary Policies of the United States," by Dr. James D. Paris. [Columbia University Press, New York City. Price, $2.75.]

Return to an international gold standard "to promote confidence in the currency and to prevent watering" is urged by Dr. James Daniel Paris, research economist, in this volume. The author also advocates that "greenbacks" should be retired and the right to issue them in the future be revoked.

Dr. Paris says further that repeal of the silver purchase act is desirable, and that subsidies to nonessential industries, such as silver mining, should be abolished. Agreements between the United States and other countries to exchange gold or dollar balances for silver are unnecessary and, with repeal of the silver act, should be allowed to lapse.

This volume is particularly timely in view of present agitation in congress and among economists over the nation's silver policy.

I. C. C. Studies Loan to North Shore Railway

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Members of the interstate commerce commission told an Illinois-Wisconsin citizens' committee today the commission would investigate eligibility of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $3,500,000.

The committee represented various groups, including employés, endeavoring to assure the continued operation of the line. The loan would require I. C. C. approval. No application has yet been made to either the RFC or the I. C. C.

Present Petition to RFC.

Before conferring with the commissioners, the committee gave Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC a petition signed by 69,756 citizens asking for the loan. The line serves an estimated 300,000 persons in 25 communities.

A spokesman for the I. C. C. said its investigation probably would be made in coöperation with RFC representatives whom Jones is expected to send into the railroad's territory.

The commissioners expressed considerable doubt that they could approve any application for a loan while the railroad was in its present financial condition.

Suggest Taxes Be Reduced.

They suggested the communities interested might improve this by reducing local taxes on the railroad's property. The committee said it would see what it could do along such lines.

Another suggestion by the commissioners was that the communities interested in having the road continue operations might form an organization to take over the road and either operate it or contract for its operation.

A commission spokesman said the proposal was suggested only as a "last desperate measure." One member of the committee said it was "out of the question."

NATIONAL SLUM CLEARANCE PLAN IS RECOMMENDED

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A nine point program for expansion of slum clearance and low rent housing was recommended today by the national public housing conference in its eighth annual meeting. It included a proposal that federal aid be so increased that a million families might be rehoused in the next five years.

Other suggestions were that housing authority laws be passed in all states; financial assistance be furnished by the states through loans and subsidies; activities of local housing authorities be increased; local subsidies be made available through tax exemption or otherwise; building costs be reduced; families displaced by slum clearance be given first claim on new structures, and that cities having housing authorities provide adequate appropriations so that administrative expenses would not be charged to tenants.

One recommendation was that 100 per cent public loans—but no subsidies—be provided to coöperative tenant societies for the erection of dwellings to be used by families whose incomes are above those for whom subsidized housing is built.

INCREASE POWER OF ENGINES FOR 'CITY OF DENVER'

The Union Pacific and North Western railroads will increase the power of the Diesel electric locomotives that pull the two streamlined City of Denver trains from 2,400 to 3,600 horse power and will add an all-room sleeping car to the trains, W. M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific, announced last night.

The power will be stepped up by the addition of a 1,200 horse power unit. This will provide extra power to maintain the trains' high speed despite the added weight of the new sleeping cars.

One City of Denver will reach 1,000,000 miles of service tomorrow on the westbound trip from Chicago at a point two miles west of Darr, Neb. The eastbound train will reach its millionth mile next Monday morning at Ogden, Ia. Both trains went into service on June 18, 1936. They are owned jointly by the North Western and Union Pacific railroads.

HOUSING NOTES OVERSUBSCRIBED IN RECORD RATIO

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The treasury announced tonight a record over subscription for $100,000,000 of five year, 1% per cent notes of the United States Housing Authority.

Investors filed subscriptions aggregating $2,775,000,000, or nearly 28 times the amount of notes for sale. Subscriptions were so large that the treasury decided to allot subscribers only 4 per cent of the amount they asked, but not less than $1,000.

The notes, which are guaranteed by the treasury, were the first to be offered by the housing authority.

Officials attributed the huge oversubscription to the glut of idle money which has sent the lendable excess reserves of banks to the unprecedented figure of $3,600,000,000.

Continental Baking Plans to Merge with Subsidiary

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Directors of Continental Baking corporation will submit to the annual stockholders' meeting at Baltimore, Md., on March 7 a proposal to merge the corporation with its wholly owned subsidiary, Continental Baking company, for the purpose of simplifying its corporate structure and effecting tax economies. The corporation is a holding concern and the company is its principal operating unit, owning 82 of the 87 bakeries in the system.

U. S. OFFICIALS HOLD PARLEY ON GIANNINI PROBE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—Attorney General Frank Murphy today held a conference with high government officials in connection with the Securities and Exchange commission proceedings against Transamerica corporation. It was learned that the justice department is considering entry into the case, either joining in the SEC proceedings or advising the SEC on procedure.

Atty. Gen. Murphy.

SEC hearings in which Transamerica must show cause why its stock should not be delisted from the New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco stock exchanges have been suspended until the local federal district court hears arguments on a Transamerica injunction petition brought against the SEC.

False Statements Alleged.

The SEC charges Transamerica and subsidiaries, including Bank of America, fourth biggest in the nation, with filing false and misleading statements with the SEC. Transamerica seeks through the courts to enjoin the SEC from bringing the Bank of America into the case, charging lack of jurisdiction and illegal acts in obtaining information from the controler of the currency.

Transamerica is the 200 million dollar holding company of A. P. Gianinni, California banking magnate and former New Dealer.

Those who attended Murphy's conference today were: William O. Douglas, chairman of the SEC; Chester T. Lane, general counsel of the SEC; Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation; Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board; Cyril B. Upham, first deputy controler of the currency, and Edward Foley, acting general counsel of the treasury.

Murphy Seeks Information.

The closed conference is understood to have been called in order to acquaint Murphy with the facts in the case.

It is believed likely that the Transamerica injunction case will be carried to the United States Supreme court, no matter how the District court decides. Both the government and Transamerica are preparing for appeal in case the decision is against them.

This prolonged legal battle may also tie up the SEC's proceedings, although the court may allow hearings to continue on Transamerica, barring mention of the Bank of America until a final ruling is made.

The SEC today filed a brief answering the Bank of America injunction petition. It made a blanket denial of all charges filed by the bank and further alleged that national bank examiners have "repeatedly criticized" the conduct of Bank of America and its officers.

Arguments on the injunction petition will be resumed Monday.

Asks Correspondence Release.

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—L. M. Giannini, president of Bank of America, tonight urged Secretary Morgenthau to "release to the people of the country" correspondence involving his institution and its affiliate, Transamerica corporation, now under investigation by the Securities and Exchange commission.

An alternative proposal by Giannini was that Morgenthau deliver the correspondence to a committee of three nationally known bankers who would determine "as to whether the officers of the bank had committed any error of commission or omission not in the best interests of depositors, stockholders, and the public."

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Recovery tendencies ruled in the bond market today. Corporate liens and some United States governments won back a modest part of the week's substantial losses.

Improved support throughout the domestic list indicated that traders generally felt the market had placed an exaggerated value on recent political developments in Europe and was due for a rally.

With a large section of the foreign list, however, the troubled situation abroad continued as a depressing influence. Italian government 7s slumped 5½ points on fairly heavy selling, and other Italian issues and Prague 7½s were forced down 1 to around 5 points. German government obligations were firm.

Recovery touched only a part of the United States government list after a week of almost steady decline. The better acting treasuries moved up 1-32 to 8-32ds, while those continuing the retreat had losses ranging to 13-32ds.

Investors' Guide

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

NOT OFFERED YET.

Investors' Guide: An article in the paper the other day said that Howard Aircraft of Chicago was putting some stock on the market. I do not find the shares listed on any exchange nor have I ever seen any reports of the company's operations. Can you tell me anything about its sales and earnings? I gather from the paper that it is a small firm, but am interested in it because of the apparently bright future for aircraft stocks.—D. T. H.

Answer: The Howard Aircraft corporation is only about two years old and had a total net loss of $73,000 in the twenty-three months ended Nov. 30, 1938. Sales for the same period were $329,396.

The new stock you mention has not yet been offered, but has been registered with the Securities and Exchange commission, and will be placed on the market when and if the SEC approves the registration.

The company plans to market, through underwriters, 400,000 shares of common stock at $3 a share. This would provide more than a million dollars in cash to expand its plant and operations. For the period to Nov. 30, 1938, the company had made twenty-seven planes, all four passenger models. It now plans to build also large transport and military planes.

On Nov. 30 total assets were $123,483. At the close of 1938 there were 57,715 shares outstanding, of which Ben O. Howard, president, owned 38 per cent.

LOST—WHAT TO DO?

Investors' Guide: What can I do about a lost stock certificate? I had ten shares of Kellogg Switchboard and Supply bought in 1928. Under some sort of stock rearrangement in 1933 I was supposed to exchange the ten shares for two new shares. But I lost my old certificate, and so now can't get $4.20 in dividends that have been paid on the new shares. Please tell me what to do.—H. J. P.

Answer: Just as soon as you knew you had lost your certificate you should have notified the treasurer of Kellogg Switchboard and the transfer agent for the stock. You should do this at once. In this case one letter will be enough, because the company itself is the transfer agent.

You must then obtain from a reliable surety company a bond which will protect the corporation and the registrar of the stock from loss in case the lost stock should turn up in some one else's hands. The bond must be for at least twice the current market value of the stock. After this procedure you may get a duplicate certificate when the board of directors authorizes its issuance.
